

Formality of impeachment vote all that's left

House Republican leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona tells newsmen Tuesday that he will vote for the impeachment of President Nixon, saying no person, not even the President, is above the law, and "coverup of criminal activity and misuse of federal agencies can neither be condoned nor tolerated."

WASHINGTON (AP) — One by one they took their stand on the impeachment of President Nixon, and at the end of the day it was clear the vote in the House will be a mere formality.

From Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona to freshman Rep. Robert E. Bauman of Maryland, a number of House Republicans announced their support for impeachment, many of them calling for Nixon's resignation as well.

The list included all 10 Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee who had voted against the articles of impeachment that will be brought to the House floor Aug. 19.

Their statements, issued in response to Nixon's admission that he withheld evidence linking him to the Watergate coverup, left no doubt Tuesday that Nixon faces a Senate trial and possible removal from office if he does not resign.

And despite repeated statements from the White House that Nixon will not resign, the belief persists in Capitol Hill that it remains a possibility, especially if there is a heavy House vote for impeachment.

Rhodes said at a news conference he felt Nixon would resign whenever he felt he was unable to govern. Asked to evaluate Nixon's ability to govern now, Rhodes said, "I would say it has been sadly impaired."

The hopelessness of Nixon's situation in the House was underscored by Rhodes' response to a question as to whether there was anything the President could do to save himself.

"I suppose there might be, but right now I couldn't say. I'm at a loss to know," he said.

Meanwhile, administration and congressional sources said the disclosures by Nixon had been prompted in part by St. Clair, who had learned last week that Nixon had withheld important evidence from him.

The sources said St. Clair told Nixon "You make a statement or I will," after which the decision was made to release the material.

The surge in support for impeachment brought with it a marked release in tension among House Republicans, who had been "dreading the coming vote. Although they made frequent references to the sorrow and anguish of their decision, they found comfort in the numbers of their colleagues joining them.

"Obviously, it relieves the pressure on a number of members who were just on the brink, who were beside themselves," said Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill.

So strong was the surge, members reported it was hard to find anyone who still opposed impeachment. "I don't think there will be anybody in the House who will vote against impeachment," said Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich.

But reporters found one in Rep. Earl F. Landgrebe, R-Ind., who said his support for Nixon is unshakable.

"I'm going to stick with my President even if he and I have to be taken out of this building and shot," said Landgrebe.

He said a lynch mob frenzy had swept the House following Nixon's disclosure that he knew of the Watergate cover-up long before the March 21, 1973, date he spoke of in repeated public addresses.

"Even if he lied or obstructed justice, where's the disadvantage?" asked Landgrebe. "No traumatic thing is happening to the country."

Few members shared that view, however. Rep. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., called Nixon's conduct in the Watergate affair "an appalling betrayal of his responsibility to his country."

Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J., said the whole country is paying the price of Watergate because "many decisions at the White House have been made on the basis of self-interest rather than with the welfare of our country foremost in mind."

In other reaction to impeachment developments:

—Rabbi Baruch Korff assured Nixon of his continued support in a meeting in Nixon's office. In a statement issued through his National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, Korff said, "This President will go down in history as the greatest president of the century."

—California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Nixon should subject himself to interrogation by the House during impeachment proceedings and answer any questions the lawmakers have.

—Reflecting the latest impeachment developments, the stock market pulled away to strong morning gains, then dropped nearly half the advance.

—The U.S. dollar remained steady on European money markets and some foreign exchanges reported what was felt to be the increased possibility of Nixon's resignation had helped to strengthen the U.S. currency after months of unease.

As a means of inducing a favorable attitude toward resignation in the White House, some members revived talk of legislation that would grant Nixon immunity from criminal prosecution.

The proposal was quickly squelched, however, by Rhodes and Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee.

Rhodes said he doubted that Congress had any authority to grant immunity, which is a power reserved to the executive branch. "It wouldn't be worth the paper it was written on," he said.

Conable said he thought it was especially important to answer

Nixon's top aide confers with Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's closest aide, White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., held a private, hour-long meeting with Vice President Gerald R. Ford today as demands mounted for Nixon to resign.

The meeting in Ford's office was requested by Haig, said Ford's press secretary, Paul Miltich.

Miltich said the two men "exchanged views on the current situation" but refused to elaborate, saying, "that's all I can tell you."

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked whether Haig's request for a meeting was at the President's instructions, responded, "I'm sure it is at the President's behest." He said Ford and Haig had been meeting often, although the last previously announced session was about a week ago.

Earlier, White House sources acknowledged that presidential resignation remains a possibility.

"Sure it is — all options are open," said one source.

Another agreed, saying that despite Nixon's vow to his cabinet Tuesday that he has no intention of resigning "the situation is fluid. We don't know what is going to happen."

The sources' comments in interviews reflected the clearly perceptible mood of uncertainty cloaking the corridors and cubby holes where the President's men work.

One after another, Nixon aides responded with a sigh or a shrug of their shoulders when asked what could or would happen next.

Some said they thought the wave of resignation and impeachment demands would subside. Others weren't too sure and privately were glum about the President's chances of clinging to the nation's highest office.

Washington Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward reported, meanwhile, that "There are guarded statements and reluctant confirmations, generally in the most restrained language, that the President is under great psychological strain."

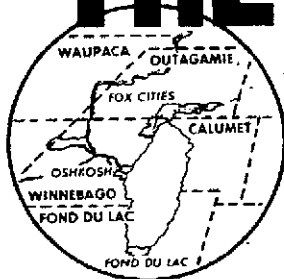

They quoted one source as saying: "I don't mean to be alarmist, and it has to be said delicately, but the President will not listen to anyone, not really listen ... He's serene, I'd say serene, but not in touch with reality."

Woodward and Bernstein said the source had first-hand knowledge of the President's mood.

Presidential spokesmen did little to dispell the mood of uncertainty when they stopped short of ruling out a possibility.

Between towers

French professional stuntman Philippe Petit carries a balance pole as he walks across a tightrope suspended between New York's World Trade Center twin towers early today. Petit, who had performed similar stunts in Paris and Australia, hung by his heels at one point and crossed the cable twice. (AP wirephoto)

Tower power sparks high-wire hijinks

NEW YORK (AP) — A 24-year-old daredevil from France walked a tightrope for a half hour between the rooftops of the World Trade Center's twin 110-story towers this morning, balancing on a metal cable seven-eighths of an inch in diameter.

"If I see three oranges, I have to juggle," Philippe Petit told authorities later. "And if I see two towers, I have to walk."

The stunt thrilled the curious below as Petit stood, lay down and at one point hung by his feet, police said. Police rushed to the rooftops to apprehend him and when it was over they took him to a hospital's mental ward for examination.

Police at the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey said he had performed similar feats in Paris and Australia.

Petit's walk atop the 1,350-foot-high buildings almost doubled the previous record for the highest tightrope walk. The Guinness Book of World Records lists the walk of Karl Wallenda over the 750-foot-deep Tallulah Gorge in Georgia in 1970 as the previous record.

In Paris, Petit had walked between the towers of the Cathedral of Notre Dame; in Australia it was the towers of the Sydney Harbor Bridge, according to David Forman. Petit and his friends — at times

there were six — played the roles of delivery men, workers, or messengers, Forman said.

Petit and an assistant spent the night on the south tower's rooftop, hidden at first under a tarpaulin. Two other friends with cameras stayed on the north tower. At dawn, they used a five-foot longbow to fire a fishing line attached to the cable across the 90 feet that separates the structures, Forman said. At about 7 a.m., the stunt began.

Petit, clad in black tights and carrying a balancing pole, walked from the south tower to the north and back again. Then he did it again, as crowds gathered on the lower Manhattan streets and traffic snarled.

Forman and other friends described Petit as an accomplished aerialist who has been living in New York since last winter and earning his living as a street entertainer who passes a hat.

When Petit's walk was over, Port Authority police were waiting for him on the rooftop. They took him and his assistant, Jean-Franco Heckel, 25, into custody, but the two accomplices on the other rooftop eluded capture.

Petit and Heckel were taken to Beekman-Downtown Hospital, where they were placed under psychiatric evaluation.

Senators may ask Nixon to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Senate Republicans are considering whether to send a delegation to President Nixon with word that a majority of GOP senators wants him to resign and that chances of conviction in an impeachment trial are growing.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott told reporters late Tuesday afternoon the GOP leadership will meet again today "to discuss the desirability and means of conveying to the President" views expressed earlier in the day at a party luncheon.

After that luncheon, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., told reporters "It is my guess that the majority sentiment among Republican senators is that he should retire from office."

The Texas Republican, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, said that there was "great concern that the President does not comprehend the great hazard he faces in coming to trial in the Senate."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., former national GOP chairman, said today that "all but a handful of Republicans in the Senate would like to see resignation." He had been quoted Tuesday as saying that no more than 20 pro-Nixon votes could be counted on.

In an interview on the CBS "Morning News," Dole said that if an impeachment vote were taken in the Senate "as of today," Nixon would be removed from office.

Dole said he still had the feeling that Nixon was giving serious consideration to resignation, either under the 25th Amendment provisions allowing him to turn over power temporarily or outright resignation from office.

"Something is in the air, something big," he said.

Other GOP sources said the majority favoring resignation was overwhelming and that "there was no expression of support" for Nixon at the meeting, a regular Tuesday session at which Republican senators discuss policy and politics.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford spent about 30 minutes at the luncheon, sketching for senators the President's vow not to resign delivered at an earlier Cabinet meeting.

Ford conducted himself "very circumspectly," according to Tower, and then left as the senators began to discuss their next step.

Tower said "it is pretty obvious there is growing sentiment for resignation." A longtime Nixon supporter, he said he had his own views on the matter but planned to keep them private.

He said Republican senators were split between whether Nixon should resign or whether the impeachment process should proceed. They discussed whether the GOP leadership should present their views to the President or whether they should all seek a session with Nixon.

"I think there will be a little cooling off period before any collective action," Tower said.

Later in the afternoon, GOP leaders gathered to brief Scott, who had spent the day at a funeral in Philadelphia.

Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Jacob K. Javits of New York, representing the GOP's conservative and liberal wings, attended the meeting along with Scott, Tower, assistant GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin, GOP Conference Chairman Norris Cotton and Campaign Committee Chairman Bill Brock.

Choosing his words carefully, Scott told reporters "we are considering where our responsibility lies."

He said "there is a feeling that the President needs to be advised directly" of the situation in the Senate and "it should not be filtered to him" through his aides.

Kissinger vindicated in wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has withdrawn his threat to resign after receiving vindication from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee over a wiretap controversy.

The committee found no fault with his account of his role in wiretapping of newsmen and government officials.

But in a report issued Tuesday, the committee did not endorse the wiretapping, which was aimed at stopping the leaking of classified information to reporters. In fact, Chairman J. W. Fulbright said he opposes the practice and thinks the committee does, too.

The committee's investigation, begun June 10 at Kissinger's request, concluded there was nothing shown to bar his service as secretary of state.

Kissinger, who had said he would quit if not cleared in the wiretapping matter, withdrew his threat after the results of the committee investigation were announced. "Given the content of the report the secretary no longer sees any reason for resignation," a spokesman said.

The secretary issued his resignation threat after newspaper stories, apparently based on FBI files, indicated Kissinger had ordered the wiretaps in 1969 and 1970.

During his confirmation hearings before the committee last September, Kissinger had testified:

"I did not initiate the program. I did not recommend the program, and I had nothing to do with its establishment. I then participated in the program, once it was established, according to criteria that had been laid down in the President's office."

Appearing to be in conflict with that story were three memos, submitted to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment investigation, in which the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover cited Kissinger as the authority for instituting wiretaps.

The Fulbright committee conceded the discrepancies and said it probably will never be possible, because of the deaths and loss of memory and records to determine exactly what took place. The report said the panel was left with two questions:

"1. Is there a basis in ascertainable fact to conclude that Dr. Kissinger misrepresented his role in the wiretapping during his testimony last year?"

"2. Would the committee, with all of the information it now has concerning the wiretapping program, reach the same conclusion as it did last September that '... Dr. Kissinger's role in the wiretapping of 17 government officials and newsmen did not constitute grounds to bar his confirmation as secretary of state?'"

The committee answered "no" to the first question and "yes" to the second.

Buyers stampede for 9 per cent Treasury notes

NEW YORK (AP) — Unprecedented demand for a $2.25 billion offering of U.S. Treasury notes marketed Tuesday at a record 9 per cent interest is expected to carry over to two more government offerings today and Thursday, dealers in government securities say.

All three offerings have a special allure for the small investor as the Treasury notes being offered can be bought in denominations as small as $1,000.

The three government offerings this week total $4.6 billion. The first offering, which had to be bought by 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, carried a 9 per cent interest rate, the highest on small denominations since Civil War days. It reaches maturity in 33 months.

As the deadline for purchase of the first offering approached, near-mob scenes were reported in front of Federal Reserve Banks in New York, San Francisco, Boston, Richmond, Va. and other branches where the bonds can be bought commission-free.

The other two bonds due for marketing are a $1.75 billion offering maturing in six years. Deadline for purchase on those notes is 1:30 p.m. today. Still another offering, $400 million of 24-year bonds will be available until 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

While these last two bonds will carry interest rates of about 8½ per cent — somewhat lower than Tuesday's offering — that's still about 3 per cent higher than the maximum rate under law that a savings bank or savings and loan association can grant on savings accounts.

Commercial banks and some brokerage houses also sell the government securities, but charge a fee.

The demand for these bonds, perhaps the greatest ever according to several Federal Reserve spokesmen, are causing serious trouble for the nation's thrift institutions, which have seen large withdrawals in the past few days.

"We've lost $3.2 million in deposits in the first three days of August and more than half of that went out yesterday," a spokesman for the Dime Savings Bank of New York said.

Incumbents do well in primaries

By The Associated Press
Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton has easily won renomination in Missouri's Democratic primary but the man dropped as U.S. to sell metal finders to U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has approved shipment to the Soviet Union of American-made magnetic metal detectors designed to combat aircraft hijacking. The move Tuesday marked the first special export license issued since the department, under pressure from Congress, clamped stricter controls July 19 on exports of police equipment to the Soviet Union, the People's Republic of China and other Communist nations.

"This action was taken in consultation with the Departments of State and Justice, in accord with the administration's policy of cooperating with all states in airport security and the prevention of hijacking," said Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent.

A department spokesman said the license applied only to display of the magnetic detectors at an international exhibition of crime control equipment opening next week in Moscow.

If the sales of the antihijacking devices are arranged at the Aug. 14-28 exhibition, "Krimtekhnik 74," a separate export sales license must be approved, the spokesman said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Wash., and Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, have charged that several American companies hoped to sell the Soviets sophisticated investigatory and electronic surveillance equipment which could be used against political dissidents.

After the tighter export controls were imposed, most of the U.S. companies said they were cancelling their participation in the Moscow show.

There have been few reported aircraft hijackings in the Soviet Union, where the government generally tends to play down or suppress news about crime.

his party's 1972 vice presidential candidate is ruling out any future bid for national office.

In Kansas, Rep. William R. Roy became the overwhelming choice of Democrats to run for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Sen. Bob Dole, former Republican national chairman.

Michigan Democrats picked former state Sen. Sander Levin for an election rematch against another Republican incumbent, Gov. William S. Milliken.

And Sen. Frank Church handily won renomination by Idaho's Democrats.

These were some of the results in the only four states that held primaries Tuesday.

Less than one-third of Missouri's registered voters turned out, but Eagleton rolled up 88 per cent of the tally. He will defend his seat against former Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, his Republican counterpart who also had little trouble being nominated. In 1968 Eagleton won his first Senate seat by narrowly defeating Curtis, then a nine-term congressman from St. Louis.

"I have no national ambitions whatsoever, and you can put a triple exclamation point after that," said Eagleton. Two years ago he was removed from the second spot on George McGovern's presidential ticket after he disclosed that he had undergone treatment for mental depression.

In the predominantly black 1st District of St. Louis, Missouri's only black congressman, William Clay, won the Democratic primary over Clifton W. Gates, the ex-president of the city's first black-owned bank.

In Kansas, Roy rolled up 84 per cent of the vote to crush former state treasurer George Hart. Dole was unopposed in the GOP primary.

State Senate President Robert F. Bennett held a tenuous lead early today over attorney Don Concannon in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

State Atty. Gen. Vern Miller was unchallenged for the Democratic nomination for governor.

In Michigan there also was no opposition for Milliken as he won renomination from the Republicans.

Levin brushed aside the challenge of former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh by a 2-1 margin to capture the Democratic nod.

In 1970, Milliken edged Levin by one per cent of the total vote, and on Tuesday he immediately challenged Levin to a debate. Levin promised to give the voters a straight answer, because "people don't believe in politicians any more."

Only three of Michigan's 19 congressmen were opposed for renomination, but Republican Elford Cederberg, and Democrats Donald Riegle and Lucien Nedzi all won easily.

As the voters went to the polls Michigan's nine Republican congressmen announced they would vote for impeachment of President Nixon. As late as Monday, all were undecided or leaning against impeachment.

In Idaho, three-term incumbent Sen. Frank Church won the Democratic nomination for re-election in a landslide over Leon Olson of Boise. He will face Republican nominee Bob Smith, a former aide to GOP Rep. Steve Symms. Smith swamped two opponents to become the Republican choice.

Interest in Idaho's congressional races focused on the Republican primary in the 2nd District, where former Rep. George V. Hansen held a narrow but widening lead early today over three-term incumbent Orval Hansen. The two men are not related.

Awaiting the outcome of that race was farmer-real estate man Max Hanson, who easily captured the Democratic nomination for the district's congressional seat from Keith Holve.

Burns offers public service jobs program to combat unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns has urged creation of a public service jobs program involving up to 800,000 workers as a tool to curb rising unemployment.

Burns suggested Tuesday that the government hiring program be launched when unemployment hits 6 per cent. The jobless rate now is 5.3 per cent, but government and private economists expect it to jump to at least 6 per cent by year's end.

Burns estimated the cost of a new jobs program at $4 billion.

Testifying before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Burns also called for tougher antitrust enforcement and a more powerful inflation-monitoring agency than the one proposed by President Nixon.

He told the committee there is no quick way to cool spiraling inflation and predicted it will take at least two years "for the kind of inflation we have been experiencing to unwind."

The stock market, which has been depressed for more than a year and a half, will not make a significant improvement until there is "confidence that corporate profits will improve and interest rates will decline," Burns added.

Asked if impeachment proceedings against Nixon have hampered economic policy planning, Burns said, "I think economic matters are being attended to in the White House." But he added, "I'd like to see more energetic activity, yes."

Burns said he doubted that an anti-inflation agency proposed by Nixon could be effective unless it was empowered to suspend wage or price increases it considers inflationary.

He proposed that the government panel be authorized to hold up inflationary wage or price increases for up to 45 days while conducting hearings and trying to negotiate a possible cut-back.

His proposal for tougher enforcement of antitrust laws to improve economic performance is an exact opposite of the position espoused by Roy L. Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, and Alan Greenspan, who has been nominated by Nixon to head his Council of Economic Advisers. They have urged relaxation of antitrust laws.

However, Burns said the government should "enforce the antitrust laws more firmly and stiffen penalties for their violations."

As Burns urged greater government action to fight inflation, White House economic counselor Kenneth Rush called for more citizen participation in the fight.

Rush told delegates to the national conference of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service that Americans should "buy something else" when confronted with a product in great demand but short supply.

U.S. moves F4 Phantom jet squadron from Taiwan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has quietly withdrawn half of its F4 Phantom jet warplanes stationed in Nationalist China at a time when mainland China has started basing missile-firing boats near the Taiwan Straits.

Defense officials, acknowledging the pullout of a squadron of 18 Air Force F4s in late July, said there was no connection between the two events.

These officials said the withdrawal of the F4 squadron to the Philippines had been planned for some time.

They noted that the Air Force still has a squadron of Phantoms on Taiwan and that the United States remains committed to defend Nationalist China from attack, even while seeking improved relations with the People's Republic of China. The second F4 squadron is expected to be shifted in about a year, probably to Okinawa.

The two squadrons of F4s were sent to Taiwan in late 1972 to help protect the island republic after Nationalist China agreed to lend about 40 U.S. built F5 fighters to South Vietnam.

About 20 F5s have now been returned to the Nationalist Air Force on Taiwan after being reconditioned, Pentagon officials said.

The new F4 withdrawal reduces the U.S. military presence on Taiwan to about 4,000 men, less than half the 9,000 who were there last September before the United States removed four squadrons of C130 transport planes that had been hauling supplies to South Vietnam.

Most of the American military men left on Taiwan are engaged in advisory, logistics and headquarters tasks, officials said.

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence sources report Communist Chinese missile firing boats recently have been observed closer to the Taiwan Straits than ever before. These boats are armed with a type of missile that proved its ship-killing abilities in Arab-Israeli and Indo-Pakistan wars.

Ford staff said to be getting ready to take over presidency

DETROIT (AP) — Aides to Vice President Gerald R. Ford say he has signaled his staff to make preparations for his assumption of the presidency when and if President Nixon leaves office, according to the Detroit Free Press.

The newspaper said in today's edition that Ford aides, who asked not to be named, said they now feel they have the vice president's authorization to draw up policy and personnel proposals that Ford would have to act on in the White House.

Ford's staff said the mood represented a dramatic shift over the past day, according to the Free Press.

"In the last 18 hours things have changed," one aide was quoted as saying. "He understands what is happening because he is a realist. And because he knows what must be done for the country, he will make sure that he is ready."

Aides contrasted the situation to the orderly transition of power following an election, the Free Press said.

In addition, they said it was different from the ascension of a vice president following an assassination because Ford would want to move quickly to eliminate remnants of scandal from the administration and to restore public confidence, the paper said.

The Free Press said those who would have a key role in helping form a Ford administration include:

Robert T. Hartmann, his chief of staff; former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird; former congressman John Marsh; L. William Seidman, a Grand Rapids businessman who has become a top organizer of the vice president's office; and Philip Buchen, a close friend and former Grand Rapids law partner of Ford.

The Free Press quoted aides as saying that Ford has been preparing himself in a general way to assume the presidency by studying major problems — especially economics and foreign policy. He was said to be keeping close touch with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and top Pentagon policymakers.

One aide was quoted as saying that Ford realizes his political future following assumption of the presidency would depend on a successful assault on inflation and would make this his top priority.

Old Nixon opponent recalls his low opinion of public

NEW YORK (AP) — Helen Gahagan Douglas, the California congresswoman defeated by Richard M. Nixon for a Senate seat in 1950, says Nixon's low opinion of high office and the public contributed to his present situation.

"There has been a pattern throughout his campaigns," she said. "He always believed that the people would believe anything they were told. It's incredible."

"He never had the appreciation for high office that a candidate should have," Mrs. Douglas said Tuesday in a telephone interview from her Fairlee, Vt., summer home.

"But I never would have believed that it would go as far as this — that they would have been so stupid as to do the things they did and think they could get away with it," said the 74-year-old former officeholder.

Mrs. Douglas represented California's 14th congressional district for six years before losing in 1950 to Nixon, who accused her repeatedly during the campaign of having Communist sympathies.

Mrs. Douglas said she thought the President should — and would — be removed from office. But she declined to elaborate.

Impeachment not to be on CBS?

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If House leaders put undue restrictions on live TV coverage of the House impeachment debates, CBS may consider "pulling out" of the coverage, says Richard S. Salant, head of CBS News.

However, Richard Wald and Elmer Lower, his counterparts at NBC and ABC, each say they feel coverage rules that don't threaten television's journalistic independence will be ironed out before the debates begin.

The three were separately interviewed Tuesday after the House Rules Committee adopted a resolution allowing broadcast coverage of the debates. Approval of the measure by the full House is generally predicted.

No formal regulations for the coverage have been set, although a four-member special House committee now is working on them. House Speaker Carl Albert would have final say on any regulations and be authorized to halt or limit coverage if they were transgressed.

The question of a possible CBS pull-out came when Salant was asked about unofficial proposals to limit TV's view of the debate to the Speaker's rostrum and tables set aside for the party managers of the impeachment bill presented the House.

"All I can say on that one is that it presents us with an agonizing problem," Salant said. "I find it unacceptable. And I don't know which way I'd go on that. I think I'd very seriously consider pulling out."

And, he added, "How about you? What would you do if somebody allowed you into a congressional hearing and said, 'But the minute you turn your head from the speaker and look anywhere else, out you go.' Would you go?"

He said CBS has made it a feeling known to the leadership of both the House and the Senate.

He said his network has told both sides "we're willing to take any restrictions that might have to do with physical arrangements which might distract, but not on our news judgment and news content — at whom we may look, and what we may say or who may say it."

Any pullout by CBS would sharply raise the financial cost of rotational coverage of the debate by NBC and ABC.

To minimize viewer complaints, loss of advertising revenue and give viewers a choice between entertainment and live history, the three networks rotated live coverage of this month's House Judiciary Committee impeachment debates and most of last year's Senate Watergate hearings.

CBS would handle the TV pool coverage of the coming House impeachment debates, Salant said, but no new rotational coverage agreement can be made "until we find out just what their (House leaders) conditions are."

He said he understands the special four-member House committee may propose its broadcast coverage rules today (Aug. 8) or Friday.

"I hope they don't issue them without giving us a chance to look them over and discuss them with them," he said. "There doesn't have to be a confrontation."

"My own feeling is, they really ought to be satisfied with our saying, 'Our intention is to provide the same kind of coverage we gave the House Judiciary proceeding.' 'ABC's Lower said he felt the networks and House leaders "could work out something" acceptable to both sides. NBC's Wald agreed.

"It's my assumption the House will want reasonable, responsible press coverage and will want to allow us a normal amount of journalistic freedom, consistent with the dignity of the House," he said.

He noted that "obviously, the question remains open that they could put such restrictions on us that it'd be impossible for us to cover it. In which case we wouldn't cover it. But I don't think they're going to do that."

Director Joe Kamp of "Benji," which opens today at the Viking Theater, says, "I think he (Benji, above) is the most incredible, fantastic, personable dog that ever lived and I'm convinced that no other animal in the country could have carried off the part the way he did." The dog's real name is Higgins and is familiar to TV viewers for his five years on "Peticoat Junction."

Andy and the Gad Greatsby

7-7:30 — Channel 11 — On "The Cow-boys," Cimarron (A Martinez) decides a drifter visiting the ranch might be the man who killed the parents of a little girl he has seen in town. Or is he merely using an over-active imagination? Brett Parker guest stars. (R)

7-8 — Channels 2-7 — Andy Griffith and Rod Hull and his wonderful Emu are guests on "The Hudson Brothers Show." The brothers contribute several songs, and "brothers" comedy bits which include skits about the Marx Brothers and the Brothers Karamazov plus a movie spoof called "Gad Greatsby."

7:30-9 — Channels 9-11 — "Wednesday Movie Of The Week: The Stranger Who Looks Like Me" has an improvisational quality to it that heightens reality but slows down drama. A study of the difficulty adoptees have learning the identity of their true parents, this really comes alive at the climax. Whitney Blake gives a beautiful performance as the real mother of adoptee Meredith Baxter. In real life, Whitney is Meredith's mother. Beau Bridges costars. (R)

8-9 — Channels 2-7 — "Cannon" (William Conrad) is headed for quiet fishing vacation in a place where there are no telephones. But he is being stalked by an escaped psychopathic killer. A pair of honeymooners and their dog become involved in the cat-and-mouse game. Luke Askew is the killer, with Cindy Williams and Darrell Larsen as the youngsters. (R)

8-10 — Channel 5 — "Wednesday Night At The Movies: The Healers" is a good film, a look at an experimental medical research center headed by John Forsythe, in his best performance in some time. Kate Woodville is also good in a show worth watching. (R)

LONDON (AP) — Stage and film star Julie Andrews and her husband, Blake Edwards, have adopted a 5-year-old Vietnamese girl orphaned by the Indochina War, friends say.

Chuckwagon Cookery

Lillian Mackesy

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

It won't be quite the same as the wide open spaces of the round-up, but the food and all the trappings will be there when the Wisconsin State Fair opens Friday in West Allis. A 5-trailer chuckwagon caravan will bring a touch of the Old West to the Fair, complete with an honest-to-goodness "sourdough" cook who will divide his time presiding over the food preparation in the kitchen-on-wheels and spinning his yarns to diners in the open air restaurant. There'll be authentic western "range" dishes; they have the beautiful names of their era — cowpoke beans, Texas red chili, Sunday cobbler, black night barbecue beef, sourdough biscuits, son-of-a-gun stew, skillet potatoes and such like monikers.

The western area will include something else, besides the food served cafeteria-style. One of the trailers will house a Western Heritage Museum where patrons will be able to see original paintings and sculpture of such famous western artists as Charles M. Russell, Olaf Wieghorst, and a Frederic Remington bronze. The art works are on loan from the Buffalo Bill Historical Center, Cody, Wyo. The whole thing started with trail boss Joe Nevitt and his wife Dolores, who have worked together in the food business for 25 years. The 5-trailer chuckwagon evolved over the last few years to become their Marlboro Chuckwagon venture, organized down to the last detail to serve 2,000 people daily with the help of a crew of 10, including their chief cook or "sourdough" who really knows his western campfire and chuckwagon cookery. Elmer "Teddy" Beer is that sourdough who tried his hand at range riding back in the mid-thirties. During these cowpoke years he also learned to appreciate chuckwagon cookery and its three main categories of Beef, Beans and Bakin's. Today, Beer owns a sizeable cattle spread in his native Illinois, where he also raises prize oxen. Every summer he takes off to travel and cook with the Chuckwagon crew. He's also adept at western yarns and spins a fine tale to anyone who'll listen.

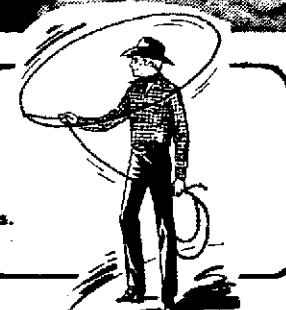

The bunkhouse and kitchen at the State Fair, of course, are a bit improved over the oldtime, rolling wagons hitched to the horse, but they spell the mood. Owner, cook and crew are proud of their recipes they serve outdoors on 40 long tables. The result is they are willing to share the authentic, western range recipes with enthusiastic outdoor cooks who may enjoy them long after the Fair has gone. Here are some of them:

women

The Post-Crescent Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis.
Wednesday, Aug. 7, 1974 A-11

The old chuckwagon cooks knew what they were doing, but there are only a handful left today still at work. Helping keep that tradition alive is Nevitt & Company, Teddy Beer and his famous sourdough flapjacks and biscuits, steak, skillet potatoes and campfire coffee. Their trail today is the circuit of state and regional fairs.

SOURDOUGH BISCUITS

2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 cups sourdough starter
2 to 3 tablespoons softened butter or lard

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into large bowl; pour in starter. Mix to make firm dough. Grease 12-inch skillet with lard. Pinch off balls of dough the size of walnuts. Place in skillet. Set biscuits in warm place for 10 to 15 minutes. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 24 to 30 minutes.

SOURDOUGH STARTER

1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 quart lukewarm water
2 tablespoons sugar
4 cups sifted flour

In large crock — at least 3-quart size — soften yeast in lukewarm water. Add sugar and 4 cups flour; beat to mix. Cover, let rise until light and slightly aged, 24 to 48 hours. The starter may be kept in refrigerator 7 to 10 days without attention. Then it should be stirred and equal amounts of sifted flour and water added to keep original consistency. To keep starter going, pour off amount required in recipe, then add flour and water to remainder. Amount depends on how much starter is left.

CHILI BEAN SOUP

2 pounds lean ground beef
1 green pepper, chopped
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup cooking oil
2 cans (1-pound each) tomatoes
1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder
1-½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon ground oregano
½ teaspoon cumin seed
3 dashes Tabasco sauce
1 cup hot water
2 cans (15 oz. each) pinto beans

Cook beef, green pepper, onion and garlic in oil until beef slightly browned. Add remaining ingredients, except beans. Simmer, uncovered, 45 minutes. Stir in undrained pinto beans; simmer 15 minutes. For a thinner mixture, add water. Recipe makes 8 servings.

SUNDAY COBBLER

¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup white sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup butter
½ cup chopped pecans

¼ cup sourdough starter
1 can (1 lb. 5 oz.) cherry pie filling ½ cup seedless raisins

Bread Dough Cake good dairy recipe

Mrs. Herman Julius, route 1, Greenville, has been a constant winner in the Outagamie County Dairy Recipe contest held each year by the Farm Bureau Women. Her recipe entries usually are wholesome types, rich in the use of dairy products and made with a finesse that speaks of her cooking talents. A member of the pioneer Julius family for whom Julius Road was named in Outagamie County, Mrs. Julius' recipe collection must contain many family "receipts" of yesterday. This one is for a delicious Bread Dough Cake that fits the pattern of yeast desserts in the dairy classification.

Mrs. Julius

BREAD DOUGH CAKE

1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup bread dough
1 cup sour milk, minus 2 tablespoons 1-1/4 cups flour teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
Chocolate Cream Frosting

Cream butter and sugar; add egg, cup of dough (from bread on baking day), and sour milk. Stir. Add dry ingredients and raisins, blending well. Pour into 9 x 12 greased pan; cover and let rise for 1 hour in warm place, free from draft. Bake in preheated, 350-degree oven about 30 minutes. Frost with Chocolate Cream Frosting.

CHOCOLATE CREAM FROSTING
1 pkg. pre-melted chocolate
3 ounces cream cheese
1-1/2 cups confectioners sugar
Milk or cream

Blend together pre-melted chocolate, cream cheese and sugar. Add just enough milk or cream to make frosting of spreading consistency.

Note: Mrs. Julius points out that it is easy to have a delicious cake the same day bread is being baked. Just save one cup of the sponge when bread is started; use this for the 1 cup of dough. Bake the Bread Dough Cake before the family bread is ready for the oven and the dessert's all done except for the frosting.

Checking skills

Grace School, head of the Appleton Public School speech therapy department, talks with Mia Laux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Laux, during a Kindergarten Round-up session for those children not screened in the spring. The round-up will continue through Aug. 15. Parents wishing to register their child may call the attendance department at the main office of the Appleton Public Schools. (Post-Crescent photo by Ralph Acker)

Preschoolers being called to kindergarten round-up

Children who have recently moved into the Appleton Public School District and did not have the opportunity to take part in the kindergarten registration and round-up in the spring are being called to another session any morning between now and Aug. 15. Parents of these children have been asked to go to their neighborhood school to register their child and make an appointment for the round-up or to call the Appleton Public School's main office and ask for the attendance office.

Site for the screening sessions is Washington School, 818 W. Lorain St. During the round-up children will talk with a speech clinician, have their hearing, vision and movement and coordination skills checked.

Another program of the school system is the pre-academic oral communication program. Designed for young children between the ages of two and five, the program is being offered to help youngsters improve talking and listening skills. Half day classes meet daily at several classrooms throughout the city.

Children who seem to be late to begin talking, those who communicate with few words or substitute gestures, who speak in short phrases, follow oral directions poorly, are inattentive when being read to or who do not seem to hear well will be screened for this class. Concerned parents may call Grace School, speech therapist, at the main office for an evaluation of their child's speech, hearing and language. These sessions have been scheduled afternoons between now and Aug. 15.

Californians have a favorite way for preserving plums by making Fresh Plum Leather.

It's a chewy, translucent, fresh-fruit candy that could be called a dessert jerky. The method for making it is an old-fashioned one used for years by early settlers and chuckwagon cooks on the round-up. However, it's easy enough for youngsters to tackle and will provide a lot of fun. What's needed are a batch of fresh, ripe plums, a small amount of sugar, a level surface for drying, a hot, sunny day and, above all, a generous amount of patience. The job of turning the plum puree (started in the kitchen) into dry, chewy strips may take up to 24 hours. It all depends on the temperature and humidity.

After the plum leather is dry, cut into strips for instant snacking. It also may be rolled in plastic wrap for keeping (possibly for a rainy day). The Plum Leather will keep for a year when stored in the freezer.

The snack or treat has a lot going for it because it's low in calories and sodium. It's high in vitamins, however, and contains trace minerals, besides being just plum good!

FRESH PLUM LEATHER
2 pounds fresh plums
1/2 cup sugar

Slice plums thinly to make 5 cups; discard pits. Place in large saucepan; add sugar and bring to boil, stirring until all sugar dissolved. Boil 3 minutes. Pour mixture into blender container; blend until smooth. Pour plum puree through strainer; discard any bits of skin. Set mixture aside to cool.

Meanwhile, prepare smooth, level drying surface in full sunlight. Cover cookie sheets or baking pans with clear plastic wrap. Pour strained puree onto prepared surface; spread to 1/4-inch thickness. Let dry in sunlight. This may take 24 hours. Drying may be finished indoors by setting cookie sheets with plum puree on it in 150-degree oven; leave oven door open. Fruit is dry when puree can be peeled off plastic.

For storing, roll up leather in plastic wrap. Wrap in more plastic wrap and seal tightly. Leather will keep for about a month at room temperature; 4 months in refrigerator; 1 year in freezer. Recipe makes 2 sheets of Plum Leather, about 12 x 15 inches each.

Fun candy

Chewy rolls of Fresh Plum Leather will please the whole family. It's a great snack, terrific when tucked into lunch bags, quick energy for the sportsman and fun for even the children to make.

COWPOKE BEANS

1 pound dried pinto beans
2-1/2 cups cold water
1/2 pound salt pork, cut up
1 red chili pepper
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
6 ounces tomato paste
1-1/2 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cumin seed
1/2 teaspoon marjoram

Wash and pick over beans; put in mixing bowl. Cover beans with cold water and soak overnight. Next morning, put beans and water in Dutch oven; bring to boil, then reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 1 hour. Stir in remaining ingredients; cover and simmer for 3 hours or until meat and other ingredients tender. Add more water if necessary. Recipe makes 8 servings.

SON-OF-A-GUN STEW

1/4 pound salt pork, cut in slivers
1 pound beef, cut in cubes
1 veal heart, about 3/4 pound
1 large carrot, thinly sliced
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1-1/2 cups tomato juice
1-1/2 cups beef broth
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
1 pair (about 1 lb.) veal sweetbreads
1 veal brain (about 1/2 pound)

In Dutch oven, lightly brown salt pork; remove and set aside. Heat fat until hot; add beef, browning quickly. Wash heart; remove membrane and excess fat; cube, then add to beef in Dutch oven. Add carrot, onion; sprinkle with mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Toss meats and vegetables, letting flour brown lightly. Pour tomato juice and beef broth over mixture; add garlic, bay leaf. Cover and bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer for 2 hours. Simmer sweetbreads separately in salted water 35 minutes; drain and slip off thin membrane under water. Remove connective tissue; cube. Soak brains in salted water 15 minutes; remove dark veins and cube. Check cooking beef; skim off excess fat. If sauce or juice is thin, turn up heat and cook rapidly few minutes. Reduce heat; add sweetbreads and brains. Heat thoroughly. Serve over rice or noodles. Recipe makes 6 servings.

Dorows wed for 50 years

HORTONVILLE — Friends and relatives gathered at the route 2 home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dorow on Sunday in observance of the couple's 50th wedding anniversary. Present at the celebration were their original attendants, Gertrude and Harvey Dorow, Oshkosh, and Carl Meyer, Dale.

The couple was married Aug. 6, 1924 at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Dale. They farmed in the Dale and Medina areas before moving to their present farm 38 years ago.

The Dorows have six children: Arlyn, Hortonville; Marvin, Appleton; Ellen Kluge, Neenah; Mildred Hedtke, Hortonville; Ronald, Hortonville, and Kenneth, Black Creek. There are 11 grandchildren.

Ann Landers

Try to be pleasant

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes I love you. More often I hate you. You're too darned self-righteous and old-fashioned. But you have a good mind which you will need to solve this one.

My father is a world famous nutritionist. (You may print his name if you wish.) I know very little about nutrition, although I try to eat sensibly. I was married recently and my wife told several people in the building who her father-in-law is. That was a big mistake.

I am a writer who works at home. Our neighbors are driving me crazy. Nothing, from diplomacy to insults, stops them from knocking on our door to ask me questions about health, diet, nutrition, as well as personal questions about my famous father.

I am cornered in the elevator, at the mailbox, in the corridors and even on the phone. It isn't good for a writer to have an unlisted number unless he's famous, which I'm not.

Since you are also a "name," perhaps you can tell me how you protect yourself against the public. I was dining with the son of one of the Marx brothers recently, and I asked him what he does when people pester him about his father. He replied, "I bite them."

I've considered this solution but I don't want to be sued. Can you suggest something?—D.F. Of Brooklyn

Dear D.F.: I have never heard of your famous father and could not find him in Who's Who, so, if I lived in your building, you would be safe from me.

My column appears in over 800 papers and almost every paper prints my picture. Consequently, I am recognized all over the world. When strangers ask me questions, I try to be pleasant, and if possible, helpful. On occasion I have had to tell them I do not counsel on the street. But I've never had the slightest urge to bite anyone. If fact, I thoroughly enjoy the warmth of strangers who consider me a friend.

I suspect the problem is more in your head than out of it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced two months ago. Several couples (long-time friends) have invited me to dinner, along with a single man. I have teen-age children and am concerned about their opinion of me. How do teenagers feel about their mother "dating"?

Also, how long should a divorced woman wait before she begins to be seen in the company of men in order to remain respectable in the eyes of society?—Corpus Christi

Dear Corp: These days most couples don't wait until the divorce is final before they begin to date—although some attorneys discourage it.

As for "respectability," my dear, five minutes after a woman is divorced, she is as free as she will ever be—and should not feel uncomfortable about dating.

Most teen-agers, if they are considerate, want their mothers to have a social life, especially since it's an even bet that Dad is not sitting at home twiddling his thumbs.

Wine on the table

BY WILLIAM CLIFFORD

In this Year of the Staggering Price Leap we've been paying particular attention to anti-inflationary wines. Frequently to wines from Spain.

"Buy why," asks a regular reader, "do you so seldom mention vin rose? We drink almost nothing else in hot weather."

Why indeed? Perhaps just because there are so many other good wines to talk about.

It's not secret that rose or pink wines are many people's favorites, even if they are generally overlooked by connoisseurs. Most of the popular imported roses are soft and fruity, made for easy drinking, simply for pleasure. Usually they are not totally dry. For example, the Spanish house of Bodegas Bilbainas ships a Brillante Vino Rosado in the same tall elegant bottle as their successful Brillante white. Bilbainas is a leading winery of the Rioja, which is Spain's finest wine district and almost a guarantee of quality. Wine of this type needs to be sound, light, young, and above all inexpensive. Brillante Rosado qualifies on all counts.

A well-chilled glass does wonders for the appetite at a backyard barbecue. It keeps particularly good company with salads, vegetables, and all the cold foods of summer. Ever wonder what wine goes with chicken salad and corn on the cob? This one does.

One of the first authorities to tell us to drink what we liked was Francois Rabelais. If rose is your hot weather drink, his 450-year-old "fait ce que vouldras" is still good advice. Especially when the rose is as good as Brillante.

House votes $300 million cut in Vietnamese aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted a $300 million cut in U.S. military aid for South Vietnam, in what proponents called notice for the Thieu regime to negotiate a political settlement with Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

The cut to a post-Vietnam war low of $700 million in U.S. military aid was

Authorities search for bomb clues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities are inspecting heaps of debris in an effort to determine who placed a bomb that killed two persons and injured 36 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Federal aviation officials said the explosion on Tuesday was believed the largest ever to hit an airline terminal in the United States and the first to kill anyone.

The blast apparently occurred inside one of 20 public, coin-operated wall lockers in the Pan American World Airways section of the International Carriers Terminal, police said.

Officials said they could conceive of no motive for the explosion and had no leads. They ruled out, for the moment, the possibility that radical groups were involved.

William A. Sullivan, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, speculated that the person who planted the bomb which exploded on Tuesday may have wanted to take it on a plane but was frustrated by tight security at the terminal entrance.

Officials said there was no warning of the blast, but afterward some other airlines received false bomb threats.

Several flights were canceled or re-routed and one Pan Am flight, to Hawaii, was detained immediately after the blast. Airport operations were back to normal seven hours later.

The explosion killed Harper Glass, 64, of Inglewood, a skipjack who was walking past the bank of wall lockers, and Leonard Hsu, 47, of Los Angeles, a Pan Am employee.

Among the injured was the Rev. Rhett Patrick Shaughnessy, who had a leg amputated. Sixteen other persons were hospitalized.

"The first thing I saw was an orange flash and then I heard a noise that was unbelievable," said John Rich, an Pan Am service representative who was standing behind a wall six feet away.

Cathleen Wylder of Tarzana, Calif., was seeing her daughter, Linda, 24, off on a Hawaiian vacation when the blast killed the young woman toward a baggage counter.

"I looked and saw her flying through the air," Mrs. Wylder said. "Her head went into the counter and I thought she had been killed. I leaned over her and she was rigid, like she was dead. I started screaming. Then she opened her eyes and talked to me." She was not seriously injured.

Police investigator Michael Strong said, "It was a scene of utter devastation."

made in a $83.4 billion defense appropriation bill approved by the House 350
to 43 on Tuesday and sent to the Senate.

The House voted down initial funds
for a new binary nerve gas weapon criticized as too costly and a possible threat to international chemical warfare control.

An effort to cut the defense bill $2.5
billion across the board was rejected.
So was one to write off the 10-year-old
$5 billion Safeguard antimissile system
as a failure.

The $300 million cut in U.S. military aid to South Vietnam was approved 233
to 157 over opponents' contention the cut would be interpreted by Hanoi as a weakening, if not abandonment, of U.S.
support of South Vietnam.

But the cuts' cosponsors, Reps. John
J. Flynt, D-Ga., and Robert N. Giamo,
D-Conn., said it was needed to put pressure on South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu to stop trying to fight the North Vietnamese and to work out the political settlement they said was directed by the 1972 Vietnam cease-fire.

"We must say, 'We're serving notice on you that we're cutting you down to $700 million which is enough for you to defend yourselves and sit down and work out a political settlement,'" Giamo said.

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., read
a letter from Secretary of State Henry
A. Kissinger saying such a cut would undermine South Vietnam's ability to defend itself against the North.

All $5.8 million initial funding for the new binary nerve gas projectile was cut out of the bill by a vote of 214 to 186
despite backers' contention the new gas weapons would be safer to handle and store than existing weapons.

The new weapons were to hold relatively harmless chemical compounds in separate chambers which when mixed together create a deadly nerve gas.

The amendment to knock initial production money out of the bill was made by Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., who said they would cost up to $2 billion
when the U.S. stockpile of 50 million pounds of nerve gas is adequate for all future needs.

Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, D-
Wis., of the House National Security Affairs subcommittee, said hearings into the new binary weapons produced testimony from several administration officials that they would complicate efforts
in Geneva to negotiate international chemical warfare control.

sible Nixon resignation.
Resignation demands mounted Tuesday, especially among congress-sional Republicans in the mushrooming reaction to Nixon's dual, damaging disclosures Monday that he tried two years ago to thwart a major phase of the FBI's Watergate investigation, and that he withheld this information from Congress and his own lawyer.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L.
Warren skirted direct answers to reporters who pressed him repeatedly to say flatly that Nixon would not resign.

Finally, Warren said, "He does not intend to resign."

Rather, the spokesman said, Nixon intends to "see that the business of the people continues ... as we move through the constitutional process."

By constitutional process, Warren said he meant a Senate impeachment trial.

But he dodged questions on whether the "constitutional process" might include invoking the 25th Amendment, which sets procedures for a president to temporarily step aside if unable to carry out the duties of office.

Warren said that when Nixon met
Sunday with his closest aides at Camp David, Md., there was no discussion of using the 25th Amendment to install Vice President Gerald R. Ford as acting chief executive until completion of a Senate trial.

But the spokesman confirmed what other White House sources disclosed Monday night — that Nixon again considered during the weekend whether to resign.

"Obviously, the President did not choose that course," Warren said.

Instead, Nixon issued a statement and made public the partial transcripts of three more White House tape recordings disclosing his attempt to sidetrack the FBI investigation of his campaign committee's bankrolling of the Watergate burglars.

Then, on short notice, Nixon summoned his cabinet to a Tuesday White House meeting where participants said he told them he "intends to stay on and allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simmon said afterwards that while Nixon did not seek expressions of support from his cabinet "of course he got it."

Israeli jets attack suspected guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon after raid

By The Associated Press

Israeli planes raided suspected guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon twice
today, and first reports said at least 14
Lebanese villagers were hospitalized.

The attacks were the first into Lebanon since July 23, and apparently were in retaliation for the latest guerrilla raid on the frontier.

The Israeli command said its jets
made their first raid early in the morning, blasting targets near Hareba Junction, just across the Lebanese border.

A spokesman said the raid lasted five minutes and all planes returned safely.

Witnesses in southern Lebanon said
the second raid came in the afternoon
and lasted two hours.

But the Israeli command said the afternoon attack lasted only several minutes, and again all planes returned safely.

The witnesses said the planes
bombed and strafed the eastern slopes
of Mt. Hermon in the Arkoub region.

The villages of Zaghlal and Abu Kamha in the district of Hasbaya were the main targets of the afternoon attack, the witnesses said.

The two raids came 24 hours after a mortar and artillery duel along the Israeli-Lebanese frontier. Each side blamed the other for the gunnery battle, which lasted almost an hour.

Lebanon's Defense Ministry had accused the Israelis of precipitating the Tuesday afternoon battle on the border

cially wrong for Republicans to be seeking immunity for Nixon.

"The Republicans shouldn't put themselves into the position of defending illegal acts," he told a reporter.

However, in the Senate, Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin said he was leaning toward support of legislation to grant immunity.

The prospect of an overwhelming
vote for impeachment led House leaders to revise their schedule for the debate and vote, for which they had planned to allow 10 days to two weeks.

Some members suggested running through the whole process in a day, and others said it could be done in hours,
but Speaker Carl Albert and Chairman
Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., of the Judiciary Committee, are resisting any such drastic pruning of the schedule.

After a meeting between leaders of both parties and Rodino and the ranking Republican member of the Judiciary Committee, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., it was tentatively agreed to try to confine consideration
to the week of Aug. 19.

In anticipation that radio and television will want to cover the House debate, the Rules Committee Tuesday approved a resolution permitting it to be broadcast. The resolution is expected to be approved by the House later this week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas lawyer
Jake Jacobsen today pleaded guilty to a charge of bribing his one-time friend
John B. Connally with $10,000.

In return, the Watergate special prosecution force agreed to drop the government's seven-count indictment against Jacobsen in an unrelated savings and loan scandal in San Angelo,
Tex., and to bring no further charges against Jacobsen concerning matters
already uncovered by the prosecutors.

Jacobsen was indicted last week at the same time Connally was named in a five-count indictment charging bribery, perjury and a conspiracy to obstruct justice. Connally is scheduled to enter his plea Friday and has said he is innocent.

Jacobsen promised prosecutors to testify truthfully at a trial if called as a witness. He is expected to be the Watergate prosecutor's star witness at the anticipated trial of Connally, a former secretary of the Treasury and one-time
governor of Texas.

Jacobsen said, in pleading before
U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr.,
that he had given Connally two $5,000
payments on behalf of his client, Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative.

Connally in return for his help in persuading President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971.

late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

OK of I-57 may mean start in 1976

GREEN BAY — Federal approval of the design of Interstate 57 in Sheboygan, Manitowoc and Brown counties has been received by the state division of highways.

With approval by the federal highway administration, the division now believes that construction can begin in 1976. It is anticipated that the entire section will be opened to traffic in 1980, with usable portions opened at an earlier date.

The approved project in Sheboygan County begins at the junction of U.S. 141 and the Sheboygan River and proceeds northerly along present U.S. 141 to the interchange at State 42, utilizing the existing highway right-of-way. From State 42 to the north county line, the roadways would be on relocation generally one-half mile west of U.S. 141.

From the south Manitowoc County line, the roadways would be approximately one-half mile west of U.S. 141, bypassing the Village of Cleveland and interchanging with State 149. From County Trunk X, just north of Cleveland to the County Trunk C interchange, the roadways would follow existing U.S. 141. From County Trunk C to U.S. 151, the roadways would parallel U.S. 141 about one-quarter mile to the west.

The approved route bypasses the City of Manitowoc just west of the White Water Acres residential development and interchanges with U.S. 151, County Trunk JJ and County Trunk D (relocated U.S. 10). From County Trunk D to the Village of Francis Creek, the roadways parallel U.S. 141 about one mile to the west and interchange with Hillcrest Road. Between Francis Creek and Denmark, the roadways generally will take a northerly direction paralleling U.S. 141 to the west and interchanging with County Trunk H and County Trunk Z.

In Brown County, the approved roadways will interchange with State 96 west of Denmark, remaining west of U.S. 141, and then generally parallel to existing U.S. 141 about one-half mile to the west to the interchange with County Trunk MM.

The division also received federal highway administration approval of the location and design for U.S. 10 from the Branch River bridge northeast to County Trunk D, then concurrent with County Trunk D to existing U.S. 141.

All interested people are welcome to see maps, aerial photographs, sketches and other information submitted in support of the request for design approval at the district office, 1125 N. Military Ave., Green Bay.

Part-time county counsel urged

Reduction of the corporation counsel's position to part-time and creation of a fulltime secretary to the county board has been recommended by the Outagamie County Board's coordinating committee.

Those recommendations, along with the county executive's salary at $22,500 for the next four years, were sent to the personnel and finance committees for study.

The coordinating committee, which consists of the chairmen of the nine standing committees, plus board chairman and vice chairman, cannot make recommendations directly to the county board, but must work through the standing committees.

The recommendation for a legislative secretary carried a $13,400 salary tag while the proposed salary for part-time corporation counsel was $9,600. The corporation counsel now makes $21,400.

County Board Chairman Eugene Higgins, arguing for the proposal, said "the county board needs counsel. Now it's without counsel. There is no one fulltime for the county board." He said he envisioned the legislative secretary as drawing all of the resolutions and doing research for the board. Higgins also suggested the person might be an attorney, but that this would not be a requisite of the job.

The proposal comes out of a growing rift between the county board and Corp. Counsel William Schuh. Many board members, and Higgins in particular, have contended that Schuh has only represented the interests of County Executive Alvin Woehler, who appointed him, and has not represented the county board.

Higgins said that he has asked Schuh for "15 to 20 decisions and he has never replied." He said he is stilling waiting for an answer from Schuh on a question he asked when he was chairman of the board of social services.

The board chairman noted that when the corporation counsel's position was originally made fulltime he estimated three-quarters of his time was spent doing legal work for the social services department and handling juvenile court cases. "Now we have a special assistant in the district attorney's office to do that."

Supv. Al Lewandowski questioned the control of work time over a part-time employee. "Keep the job full time and if it's not worth $21,400, cut the salary." Higgins answered that they should go part-time and then if the work load is too much the board could increase the position to three-quarter or full time.

The committee was unanimous in its support for creating the position of leg-

Summer in the city

Those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer become long for school children on vacation by the time August rolls around. Sometimes, days are filled with such time-honored hour killers as going to the banks of the Fox River. That's what the three Appleton youngsters shown here did Tuesday. Cindy Berg, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Berg, 808

E. Hancock St., looks at ripples in the water caused by a stone she threw in the river while her brother, Robert Jr., 15, explains to Jodi Nemecek, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nemecek, 35 Fairway Court, what to expect when she enters Appleton High School-West next month. Kaukauna apartments approved

BY MARY JO HIBBERT

Post-Crescent staff writer

KAUKAUNA — The City Council Tuesday night cleared the way for a planned 48-unit apartment complex to be built next year on the south bank of the Fox River on the city's west side.

Aldermen voted identical 4-3 ballots to rezone the property, located on Altemor Place, and to adopt the ordinance on the zone change.

The approval came despite strong objections from nearly 30 neighborhood residents who primarily were concerned with the traffic problems that they believed could be caused by the increased residents in the area.

The property is being developed by the River Heights Development Co., Appleton, which explained its plans to the group. Support for the project came from the mayor and others.

The aldermen opposing the zoning change were Robert Gertz, council president, and James McDaniel and Franklin Potter, both representatives of the area involved.

The vote for a zoning change followed the defeat of a motion by McDaniel that the rezoning be denied.

Spokesmen at the meeting opposed to rezoning outnumbered those in favor. "It's a case of doing what is right for the advancement and success of the City of Kaukauna," Mayor Robert La Plante told the group.

Frank Danielski, architect for River Heights Development, gave a slide presentation of similar projects, including Appleton's Windsor Park, and the building pattern.

Developers plan to construct "low-profile" dwellings of not more than two stories, constructed of stone, stucco and redwood. Landscaping and open areas will surround the one- and two-bedroom apartments. Total cost of the project is estimated at $600,000.

The council Tuesday also granted four liquor licenses, referred several letters to committees and accepted monthly reports of the police and justice departments.

A report of the public protection and safety committee included acceptance of the single Gustman Chevrolet bid of $5,275 for two new city squad cars. That report also provided for the hiring of four firemen, two on Dec. 1 and two on Jan. 1, 1975, to fill vacancies created by retirements.

The committee recommended installation of a "no parking here to corner" sign on Gertrude Street before the Draper Street intersection, and relocation of a mail box that was reported to have caused traffic congestion at the intersection.

The council also backed the Monday public works board decision to appeal for county help for a new lift span on the Wisconsin Avenue Bridge, and agreed with that committee to readvertise the railroad property if no action is taken by the Kaukauna Development Co. by Aug. 20.

In other action, the council approved five ordinances. They involved:

- The aforementioned rezoning.
- Installation of stop signs at 16 city

County committee backs data processing lease plan

On a 3-2 vote, the Outagamie County Finance Committee has recommended that the county lease data processing equipment rather than contract for the service from a service bureau.

Supv. John Hennessy, who cast the deciding vote, said he would support the lease plan only if a table of organization establishing a single person in charge of the program was included in the resolution accepting the lease.

Supvs. John Schreiter and Gene Retzlaff had supported accepting a proposal from Action Data, Inc., of Appleton to do the county's data processing work, while Supvs. Joseph DeBruin and Irving Isenberg had backed the leasing arrangement.

The decision came after a comparison of bids from two service bureaus with a low bid lease proposal made by NCR nearly a year ago, but which the firm has agreed to maintain through the end of this year.

Action Data had submitted a bid proposal that would cost the county $27,470 annually to do payroll, tax billing, alimony and support and general ledger accounts, except accounts payable. In addition, there would be a one-time setup charge of $2,300.

The other bid was from Data, Inc., of Green Bay which had bid on a unit basis. Robert Steffen, systems analyst in the county executive's office, said that based on his estimate on the number of units involved, the annual cost would be $38,106. There would be a one-time setup charge of $1,282.

A representative of Action Data estimated that it would cost about $6,000 a year additional if the accounts payable were added to the program.

NCR's base lease bid was for about

Burial vault race fever high

MARION — Excitement continues to mount in this northeastern Wisconsin city over Saturday's fourth annual world championship burial vault races.

The races are expected to be the highlight of the city's homecoming and corn roast celebration this weekend. The crowd may not be as big as those at the Indianapolis "500" or the Kentucky Derby, but the races are expected to draw from a wide area, perhaps as far away as Appleton.

The first race will be at 2:30 p.m. on Marion Pond. Two-man teams, competing with or without sponsorship, will race all the way across the face of the pond and back again.

The Marion Advancement Association, sponsor of the race, intends to enforce all rules strictly. A spokesman warned that any entry which does not adhere to the rules set down by the race committee will be disqualified.

Race vaults are made of fiber glass and resemble a canoe. Persons interested in getting a sneak preview of the vaults can contact assistant digger Don Raisler, who, between annual races, is city coordinator. Vaults may be viewed at city hall. Raisler's superiors on the race committee are Ward Peterson, chief commander, and Hollis Sether, chief digger.

The committee hopes for good weather, but said the races will be held rain or shine. A prize ceremony will be conducted after the final race.

Pairings for the various heats will be posted at 10 a.m. Saturday at the headquarters stand.

Fly-in marred by 1st deaths

OSHKOSH—With its 21-year safety record shattered by two fatal accidents which claimed three lives, the annual convention of the Experimental Aircraft Association, its biggest ever, ended here Tuesday night.

At the 22nd annual fly-in at Wittman Field, the second plane crash in five days claimed two more lives Tuesday. For the first time in EAA convention history, the yearly gathering of thousands of flying enthusiasts was marred by fatalities.

Two Addison, Ill., persons were killed about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday when the single-engine homebuilt craft they were riding in crashed and burned within moments after takeoff.

Last Friday, the 21-year EAA convention safety record was broken when Dewey Bryan, 53, Highland, Mich., died when his experimental folding-wing plane crashed after leaving the runway.

Al Neunpeufel, 33, was piloting an experimental plane Tuesday, a Thorp T-18. His passenger was 16-year-old Karen Bos, a friend of the Neunpeufel family. Both were attending the convention with their families.

Neunpeufel, who owned an auto repair shop, was a pilot for 15 years and had helped organize the Chicago EAA chapter. Married and the father of three children, he was in charge of campsite registration this year at the convention. He had built the T-18 himself and had flown the all-metal, low-wing craft for eight years without a serious mishap.

According to EAA president Paul Poberezny, Neunpeufel was taking Bos for a short flight. The plane took off going south on the north-south runway

When it reached altitude, a witness said, one of the nine-foot wings came off the craft. The plane hit a tree line, crashed in a wheat field about a half-mile from the end of the runway and burst into flames.

Neunpeufel's body was found in the wreckage. Bos was discovered 50-75 feet from the crash site. Both were killed instantly.

The Federal Aviation Administration, which launched an investigation, declined to speculate on the cause of the crash, although Poberezny said the rivets on the faulty wing may have sheared off. The wing was found five-eighths of a mile from the wreckage.

Poberezny and FAA officials accepted the news sadly but calmly, citing the fact that when people get in

Speener faces new charges of misconduct

BY DON CASTONIA

Post-Crescent staff writer

New charges, citing specific cases of alleged misconduct, were filed this morning against Outagamie County Health Center Supt. Eugene K. Speener by the center board of trustees.

The complaint alleging the charges was signed by James Bayorgeon, Kaukauna attorney who was retained by the trustees last March to investigate Speener in his role as health center superintendent.

The new complaint was served on Speener and his attorney, Dennis Herrling, immediately after Brown County Circuit Judge William Duffy denied a petition for a writ of prohibition filed by Herrling to block a hearing scheduled for Thursday on earlier charges against Speener.

However, Thursday's hearing was postponed, as Duffy granted a temporary stay to permit Herrling to appeal his ruling to the state Supreme Court. A new hearing was set for 9 a.m. Aug. 21.

Herrling, after quickly reading the new charges, indicated he may not appeal Duffy's ruling "because it appears the new charges answer my complaint." He said he would make his decision after studying the new charges in detail.

Herrling had sought the writ of prohibition to block Thursday's hearing on the grounds that the charges against Speener were not specific enough for him to prepare an adequate defense and that this would result in a denial of due process of law for Speener.

The hospital superintendent was charged with misconduct, malfeasance, neglect, inefficiency and dereliction in office.

In the new set of charges, Speener is charged with misconduct in granting a pay increase to an employee on Jan. 1, 1973 "without approval of the county board or board of trustees" and that on other occasions he gave unauthorized pay increases to the superintendent of nurses and assistant superintendent of the health center.

He also is charged with misconduct in making personal long distance telephone calls and charging them to the county in 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1973 and that he continued to do so after being specifically ordered not to do so.

He is charged with inefficiency and neglect in administering personnel practices and procedures in that he "promoted individuals to positions for which they were not qualified, terminated employees without giving them prior notification... refused or disallowed shift changes for employees on the grounds that vacancies were not available and at the same time advertised for additional employees to fill vacancies which present employees wished to fill; failed to pay terminated employees amounts which they had due or accrued to them, and delivered to some, but not all, employees paychecks in advance.

The final specific charge is that he was negligent in the supervision, expenditure and accounting of public funds and petty cash funds.

Eight specific travel vouchers are cited for which there was no documentation, was submitted for verification and that two of the travel vouchers appeared to be for the same trip. "The said Eugene K. Speener has been reimbursed in an amount double to the expenses allegedly incurred on said trip."

Because of the practices, the complaint states, there is no "adequate method or procedure whereby determination can be made that public funds

Man sought after stabbing at Kimberly

A stabbing and high speed chase in Kimberly at about 1:15 a.m. today precipitated an intensive manhunt involving officers from the Appleton, Brown County, Kimberly, Kaukauna and Little Chute police departments.

According to Kimberly Police Chief Dennis Jansen, David Kemps and his girlfriend were sitting in their car on Kennedy Avenue, Kimberly, which is under construction.

The couple was approached by a man claiming to be a security guard. He said he wanted to examine the trunk of the car since a nearby warehouse was broken into. He did not see anything amiss in the trunk and asked Kemps to open up the hatchback door of the car.

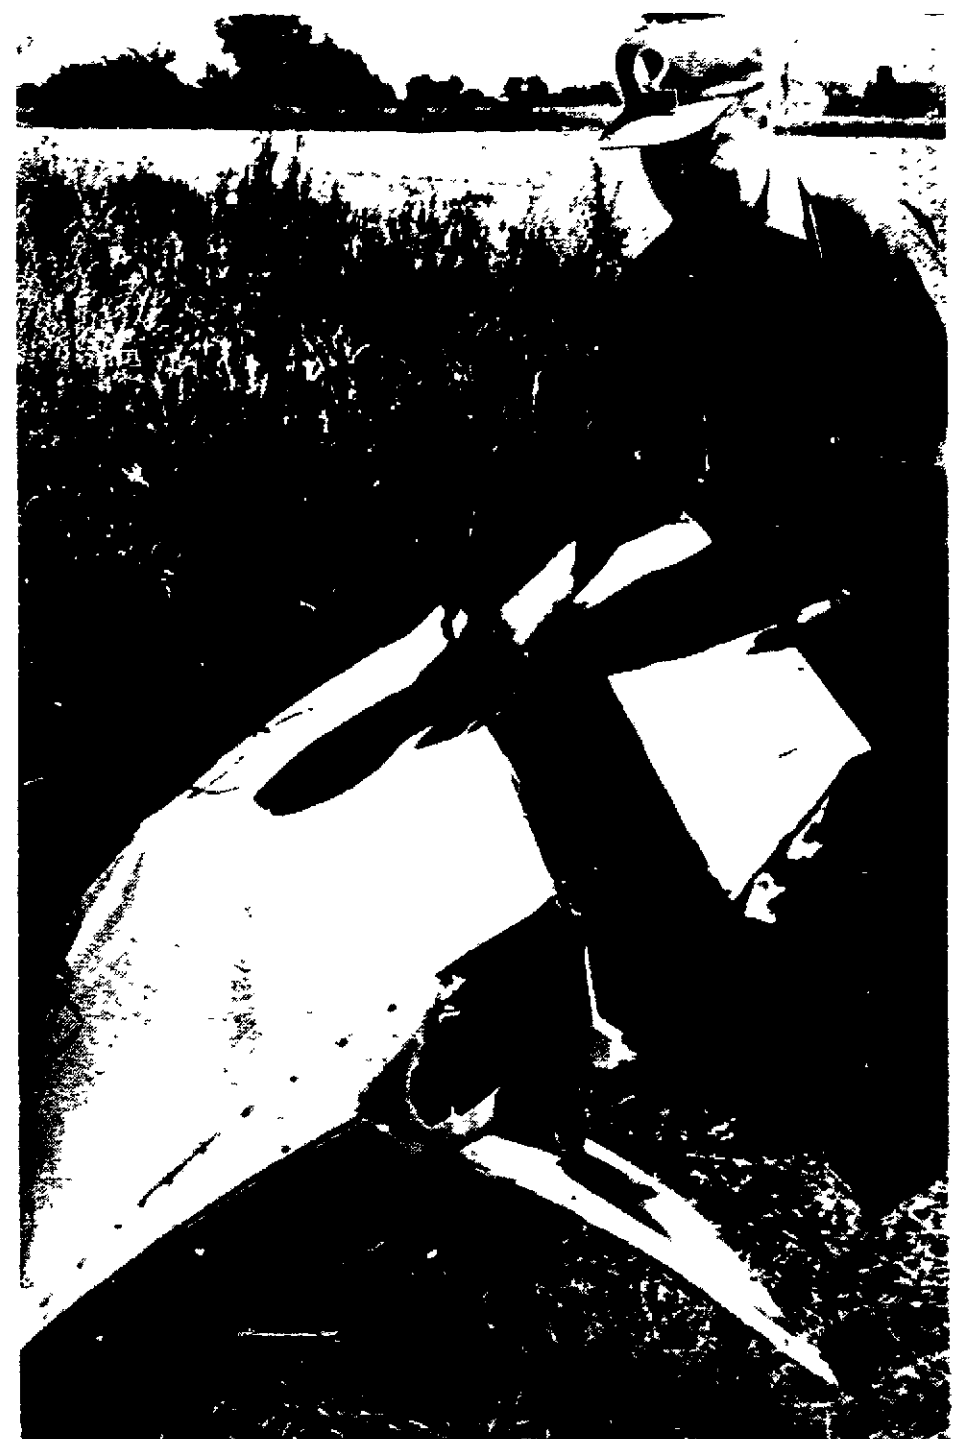

Kemps complied, and while he was opening the door, the man, for no apparent reason, stabbed Kemps twice in the back.

A fight subsequently ensued, and the assailant fled the scene in a blue Blazer Chevrolet car. Kemps was transported to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Appleton by an officer from the Combined Locks Police Department.

From the description of the car given by Kemps, an intensive search was begun by Kimberly officers. An Appleton police squad car saw a vehicle that fit the description and pursued it at speed ranging up to 90 miles per hour. The driver was able to elude officers, however.

Other police units from Brown County, De Pere, Little Chute and Kaukauna were also involved in the chase but none were able to apprehend the suspected assailant.

The assailant was still at large late this morning.

Safety pays

The Wisconsin Division of the American Automobile Association presented the Village of Little Chute on award Tuesday for its pedestrian protection program, which has resulted in no pedestrian fatalities for nine years. Sept. 10 referendum on $3.5 million plan

BY PETER BACH
Post-Crescent staff writer
MENASHA — With surprising ease, the fiscal control body Tuesday night adopted a resolution to spend $3.5 million for school district improvements but left the ultimate decision up to the voters in a Sept. 10 referendum.

City urged to sign option on new park site

A six-month option should be signed with the five property owners who want to sell the city about 5.5 acres of land on the city's northwest side for development of a new neighborhood park.

That was the unanimous recommendation of the Appleton Board of Public Works Tuesday. The option calls for a sale price of $17,600 for the land, with the city also agreeing to pay 1973 taxes and special assessments on the land, totaling about $4,600.

The six-month option will give the state time to act on the city's application for 50 per cent aid in acquiring the site located north of Lindbergh Street, between Lisa and Summit streets extended. That application went in last week, and officials expect to hear from the state within three months.

In addition to the agreement to pay due taxes and special assessments along Summit Street, the board also made a commitment to extend Lisa Street all the way from Weiland Lane to Lindbergh.

The board agreement Tuesday, if it is approved by the City Council, ends an effort that began more than a year ago with an offer to sell the property from four of the five landowners.

The city's original offer of $3,200 per acre was turned down by them at first. The agreement reached Tuesday also carries a price tag of $3,200 per acre, but includes the commitment to extend Lisa Street and pay the taxes and special assessments.

City Atty. David Geenen said he thought it was the best deal the city could get from the property owners. The land price was appraised by a city-hired firm at $3,200 per acre.

Public Works Director Robert Miller said the city had made a commitment to develop what has become known as the "Mason Street Park site," and should follow through with the agreement.

The board vote was unanimous.

The Appleton Park and Recreation Commission has gone on record in support of the park site purchase, saying that there is a lack of adequate neighborhood park development on the northwest side. The original offer to purchase from four of the five landowners — Alfred Foth, James Van Asten, Julie Conrad and Gary Case, all residents in the area — was made in early June, 1973. Another landowner has joined the group in the meantime: Frank Blazek Jr. Geenen said about $500 in property taxes levied this year on the property and about $4,100 in special assessments against the property that runs along Summit Street extended would have to be picked up by the city in order to get the property owners to go along with the city's purchase offer of $3,200 per acre.

to give the referendum a green light after noting that 1,025 certified signatures had been obtained on petitions calling for one. Just under 600 names were needed. Had the board voted negatively, the proposal would have been shelved.

The board adopted an initial resolution introduced July 2 on a 9 to 1 vote with First Ward Ald. Grace Heinz dissenting, to issue $3.5 million in general obligation bonds. It then went on to vote 8 to 2 to switch the referendum date from November to September. A three-quarter vote of the fiscal control board was needed to make the switch.

Heinz and Fifth Ward Ald. Hugh (Bud) Geibel were the dissenters.

The entire voting process took less than 15 minutes and there was no floor debate preceding the vote assuring a referendum and committing for bonds.

Baptist group performing in Appleton

A group of players and bell ringers from a Baptist church in Memphis, Tenn., are conducting a week long program, geared to youth and adults, at the Valley Baptist Church.

The puppeteer theater group, known as "Side Street Players," will present a 45-minute program at 7:30 p.m. today and will be available for special programs by invitation. The Rev. Jerry Pennington, pastor of Valley, is the contact.

The Youth Bell Choir is composed of 12 members. They will perform at 7:30 p.m. today, 7 p.m. Saturday and 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

Other events planned by the church are puppet shows in public places. At 10 a.m. Thursday, a show will be presented in the parking lot of Prange-Way. The group will move to Fond du Lac that evening, and go to city square in Waupaca Friday for a show at 11 a.m.

The players will return to Appleton and perform at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the Appleton State Bank plaza. A youth rally, open to area youth, will be at 7 p.m. at the church, followed by a fellowship session.

A musical presentation, "Celebration of Hope," is set for 5:30 p.m. Sunday as a wrap-up to the activities.

The puppeteers have performed at the Southern Baptist Convention, the Tennessee Baptist Convention and on weekends at the Calloway Gardens in Georgia.

Czarina, Kiszka, Punchki on Otto Grunski's menu

BY KIRK RUHNKE
Post-Crescent staff writer
MENASHA — If you happen to be in Jefferson Park this weekend, and hear someone shout "Kiszka," or "Punchki," at you, don't take offense. They are merely items on the menu for the Second Annual Otto Grunski Memorial Amateur Cup Bicycle Race and Polish Festival.

Other items on the menu include Kapusta Zeberkami and Kartofflane Kluski (sauerkraut with pork and potato dumplings), Grochowska and Kluski (pea soup and dumplings), Zupa Kartoflane (potato soup), Czarnina (duck soup) Siczka (wax bean soup), Pierogi (cottage cheese in blanket) and of course Kielbasa.

The Polish Dinners will be served Friday night from 5 to 7 p.m., Saturday from 12 noon to 2 p.m., and from 5 to 7 p.m., and Sunday from 12 noon to 2 p.m., and 5 to 7 p.m. Bratwursts and hot dogs will be served all day long.

The Menasha Business Association is sponsoring the festival, and suitable, downtown Menasha is flying a Polish flag along with Old Glory this week.

The entire event is named in honor of the Polish recluse inventor, Otto Grunski, who, as it will be recalled, invented the bicycle right here in Wisconsin several years before Columbus landed in the West Indies. There is some suspicion that Grunski is still alive, and may make a showing at this year's festival, despite his advanced age of 513 years. Grunski was reportedly spotted about two weeks ago near the Menasha Post Office by two youths who claimed that the old man took off at a high rate of speed on some sort of new super bicycle, probably another Grunski invention.

As a fitting tribute to this two-wheeled innovator, bicycle races in each of three men's and three women's categories will be held, along with eight special "Challenge matches." The Challenge Matches are something akin to grudge races, with one contestant attempting to humiliate the other, by means of a bicycle race.

Saturday Challenge Matches include Trivia Productions against Janus Ski and Sport Shop, Brat und Brau vs. the W-W Bar, and two as yet unfilled spots. Other races to be held Saturday include elimination races in the Men's 14-17 age bracket, and 18-29 group.

Challenge matches on Sunday include the Menasha Police Department vs. the Menasha Fire Department, the Menasha Lions vs. the Menasha Rotary Club, and a special match race featuring such community notables as Menasha Mayor Wiecki, State Senate Candidate Robert Torgerson, WNAM radio personality John E. Rock, Menasha Park Superintendent Thomas Van Buskirk, Menasha Attorney David Krizesky, Neenah Police Chief Vern Wolterman, and Menasha Police Chief Roman Rappert.

Also on Sunday, finals will be held in all categories, including Men's 14-17, 18-29, and 30 and over, as well as women's categories in the same age brackets.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers in each category, and medals will be awarded to each member of teams winning the Challenge Matches.

All this good Polish food and good Polish fun, not to mention the good Polish exercise, would seem to render the questions as to Grunski's whereabouts and intentions meaningless. Who needs him anyway?

Council lets Fido bark at night

MENASHA — Fido might laugh if he could. Instead, he will surely bark.

That's the net result of council action Tuesday on an ordinance calling for pet dogs in the city to be kept inside from sunset to sunrise. On motion of Sixth Ward Ald. Robert Winarski, the ordinance was killed.

Mayor Victor Wiecki, citing the excessive amount of police time spent on investigating barking dog complaints, authored the ordinance. By keeping dogs that incessantly bark inside, the problem for neighborhood residents would be solved, he said.

As it appeared in written form, the ordinance said incessantly barking dogs are "creating a nuisance to the well-being and decorum of the community in the evening hours," and shall be kept inside from sunset to sunrise. The ordinance would not have applied to dogs being walked on a leash.

The ordinance was slated for an introduction Tuesday night but instead Winarski got up and asked for it to be "referred back to its author."

Make way for new

The end of the old Badger Northland, Inc., plant on Second Street in Kaukauna spells the beginning on the new city hall. James McDaniel, chairman of the board of public works, delivers a blow to the old foundation Tuesday, as city officials and representatives of Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter and Duszak Architects, Ltd., of Appleton, watch. Mayor Robert LaPlante, third from right in background, and city treasurer Mary Cavanaugh are among those looking on. (Post-Crescent photo)

islative secretary, but two members, Supvs. Fred Rehfeldt and George Driessen, opposed cutting the corporation counsel's job to part time.

The vote was split on recommending the executive's salary at $22,500 with opposition from those who wanted the salary higher and those who wanted it lower.

The executive now gets $18,500, the salary which was set when the office was created in 1971. Two percentage increases had been given, but the attorney general has since ruled that the executive's salary cannot be increased during the executive's term of office.

The position is up for election next April, but the salary for the new term must be set before candidates start circulating nomination papers Jan. 1.

Supv. John Marzion was one who argued for a higher salary, suggesting $25,000. "The salary should be set compared to the responsibility involved."

Supv. Eugene Kloes, who made the proposal for $22,500, contended that with state takeover of programs "responsibility is diminishing at county level." Besides, he said, "if you could prove that for $7,000 more (over the current salary) you would get five more good men to run I would support it. But you can't guarantee nothing in an election."

"If we get the salary too high," Supv. Herman Ripp said, "we will be unfairly competing with industry."

Rehfeldt suggested a $20,000 salary with automatic step increases each year during the term. That was rejected as was a proposal by Supv. Russell DeLaHunt for a $20,000 base salary tied to the cost of living index.

Supporting the $22,500 recommendation were Supvs. Kloes, Lewandowski, Joseph Kasperek, Ripp, Higgins and John Dietz. Opposed were Supvs. George Driessen, Marzion, DeLaHunt and Rehfeldt. One supervisor, John Schreiter, who is a potential candidate for the office, abstained from voting.

cars and boats—or planes—accidents are bound to happen eventually.

"There were more than 6,000 airplanes here this week," Poberezny said. "Our standards of maintenance are high." Charles Schuck, an FAA official, agreed, noting that the federal agency supervises the construction of all homebuilts and that pilots must have their planes checked out yearly.

"The way I look at it, it's God's will," said Poberezny, who, as a pilot and former military man, has seen more than his share of flying mishaps.

More answers will be available when the FAA concludes its investigation into Tuesday's crash. Schuck admitted that Neunpeufel's plane had not undergone a static test, which is conducted to determine the strength of an airplane's wing. The regulation is not required and is used only as an optional safety measure.

But Schuck mentioned preventive maintenance as the flyer's best friend and said EAA flyers usually take painstaking care in the building and upkeep of their planes.

"You've got to keep looking at a piece of machinery," he said. "We try to get people to use quality material—and for the most part, they do."

Neunpeufel's plane, although experimental, was not one of a kind. It was designed by a Lockheed engineer and those EAA and FAA spokesmen who were asked thought the T-18 is a good aircraft.

Don Taylor, a retired Air Force colonel, was there in his homebuilt T-18, which he had flown from California without any trouble. He said he's flown 1,000 miles at a clip in the plane without any problems, although once an oil line conked out when he was on a 15-minute flight.

But he's proud of the plane and swears by its airworthiness.

Kimberly water rate to climb to $3

KIMBERLY — In action Monday night, the village board decided to accept the instruction of the state Public Service Commission and set water assessments at a rate of $3 per running foot, up from the former $2.50 assessment.

The board also adopted an ordinance to annex a piece of property owned by Robert Van Elzen on S. Washington Street and appointed new members to the board of appeals and the police and fire commission.

William Schmidt, 357 Welhouse Drive, was appointed to the board of appeals for a three-year term and Gerald Schumann, 1115 W. Fourth St., was appointed to fill the vacancy on the police and fire commission. Confirmation of the advancement of Thomas Oatman to police sergeant was also given.

The board also authorized City Assessor William Ruf to attend an assessor's institute Sept. 3-5 at Cable.

In other action, the board instructed Village Clerk-Treasurer Kathryn Lochschmidt to advertise for a laborer for the street department and to send a letter to the Outagamie County Highway Committee concerning road signs. Applications for the position with the street department are available at the clerk's office and must be returned by 3 p.m. Aug. 19.

The letter to the county highway committee will seek information concerning the possibilities of directional signs to the village on County Trunk CE at Marcella and Railroad streets. Lighting of the same signs will also be investigated.

Due to the Labor Day holiday, the next meeting of the village board will be held Sept. 3 instead of on the regular Monday meeting time.

data processing and not have one person responsible." He said he did not want to see another shredder plant situation occur.

Schreiter said he felt the county was "entering a new era of administrative equipment" and that he was looking for "established expertise to help us." Woelner's arguments, he said, "would be valuable in the future."

are in fact being used for public purposes. . . and that in addition, there have been instances of expenditures donated in private funds, specifically, the Outagamie County Hospital Patient's Fund and Gate Fund, apparently for purposes for which said donations were not intended."

During the hearing on his writ of prohibition, Herrling had charged that it was the trustees, and not Speener, who should be charged for failing to specify Speener's duties. "The trustees are guilty of malfeasance," Herrling said. Duffy, in denying the writ, said that the writ of prohibition "was not the proper remedy" in this case. Citing a Supreme Court ruling in another case, he said it would be "premature to assume" that the trustees would not "sharpen up" the charges to permit a proper defense. He noted that you cannot rule in advance on what a body might do. "There has been no action by the board to indicate that the petitioner's rights will be ignored," Duffy said.

However, he agreed that Herrling should have sufficient time to appeal his ruling if he so desired.

intersections and removal of such signs at two other intersections.

— Changing the makeup and terms of office for the members of the board of appeals.

— Creation of a Kaukauna industrial and commercial development commission to consist of nine citizen members appointed by the City Council for three-year terms. The ordinance also specifies the duties of the members.

— Amendment of the city ordinance on bicycles, dealing specifically with registration, rental agencies, bicycle dealers, traffic ordinances, traffic control devices and parking. The new ordinance also states that, unless provided for in a city ordinance, all state bicycle statutes are adopted by the city.

Ald. Henry Dreschler reported to the council that the final draft of the cable television report had been received and was given to City Atty. Donald Green, who said that too many changes had been made since his last consideration for him to recommend its acceptance.

Medical assistance may be big benefit from SSI

Qualifying for Supplemental Security Income brings with it a fringe benefit in the form of medical assistance which may outweigh the value of the gold check paid monthly to certain aged, blind and disabled persons.

The main thrust of SSI is to provide cash for persons with limited income and resources, but, for some, getting that medical assistance card may give a bigger boost to sagging budgets than that first-of-the-month check.

Thousands of state residents with low cash reserves receive a monthly payment which, when added to their other income, generally means a total of as much as $236 monthly. Where husband and wife both qualify, SSI payments build their total to $349 in most cases.

For some, the SSI payment is small. For instance, a widow receiving a standard Social Security benefit of $220 before her Medicare premium is taken out might qualify for $16 in the gold check.

Since she is covered by medical as-istance because she is qualified for SSI, she can have her prescription and certain other health care costs met by simply showing the druggist or provider of services the special card bearing her medical assistance number.

Some senior citizens are plagued financially by the on-going cost of prescriptions, eye glasses and dental work because of Medicare limitations. For disabled persons and persons over 65 who are qualified for SSI with its automatic entitlement to medical assistance, health care costs are less of a problem.

There may be a number of persons who have not signed up for SSI because they reason that the additional cash they might receive would hardly be worth the trouble to start the gold check flowing. Frank M. Donnick, manager of the Appleton Social Security office, suggests some might reconsider such a decision when they recognize the value of entitlement to medical assistance.

Toner reports for training

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Coach Dan Devine says he is pleased with his Green Bay Packers who cross National Football League picket lines, but is fussing about their lack of training.

"We have a great number of inexperienced ballplayers who need work," he said. "I'm beginning to become very concerned whether we can be in top shape for our opening game with Minnesota."

The Packers host the Vikings Sept. 15 to open their NFL agenda. They have five games left on the exhibition circuit, include Saturday's charity game in Milwaukee with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The number of Packer veterans crossing picket lines rose to 12 Tuesday when Tom Toner, a second-year line-backer, stroled into camp.

"I think these guys realize as they come in how rusty they are," Devine said. "By their own admission, they are."

Devine, the general manager, bemoaned the length of the NFL players' work-stoppage.

"We sent a great deal of time in the off-season deciding what we were going to do in training camp, and all that has been wasted," he said.

Team physician James Nellen said removal of a cast from the injured left leg of No. 1 draft choice Barry Smith disclosed reasons for optimism.

"Things look excellent, better than I anticipated," Nellen reported.

Smith, a running back, injured a knee during the Coaches All-American game in June.

Reporting to camp late this morning was wide receiver Paul Staroba, a free agent who joined the Packers last year.

Staroba did the punting after Ron Widby injured his back.

He is also the first player to report who was arrested at the Bear-Packer scrimmage two weeks ago.

Staroba is the 15th veteran (including Charley Napper and Lee Nystrom) to report to the Packers' camp. St. Louis has 16 veterans in camp.

Ohio team gains finals; Appleton eliminated, 7-5

Hamilton, Ohio, edged Hamilton, Ind., 7-6 Tuesday to move into the championship game of the Ohio Valley Sectional Senior Babe Ruth Tournament at Goodland Field.

The score was indicative of the play Tuesday in all three games. Chicago, Ill., nipped Westland, Mich., 4-3 in the opener and Frankfort, Ky., staved off a last inning bid by host Appleton 7-5. Appleton and Westland were eliminated from the double-loss tournament.

Chicago scored two runs in the first off losing pitcher Ron Taylor. Marty Murray walked, stole second and scored on Donnell Bowen's single. Bowen scored on a hit by winning pitcher Gary Glinsey.

Westland scored a run in the second on John Irwin's single with two out. Chicago scored two runs in the fifth on a single, double by Murray and single by Bowen.

The Michigan team took advantage of two Chicago errors and a two-run single by Jim Kholman in the sixth to narrow the score to 4-3.

Appleton eliminated itself on the basepaths Tuesday as twice runners were thrown out trying to take third on hits to the shortstop and the final out was made following a mixup on what appeared to be a run-scoring wild pitch.

Frankfort scored once in the first on a hit by Ed Smith and two errors. Appleton starter Bob Marx was taken out in the third because of a sore arm.

The Kentucky team scored a run off Kevin Gertsch in the third on a walk, single, fielder's choice and hit by Ed Riddle.

A walk to Tom Sommer and single by Tom Hanke, which was misplayed in the outfield scored Appleton's run in the fourth.

Frankfort appeared to have the game won in the fifth scoring five runs. Three walks, two errors and four hits figured in the scoring.

Appleton had runners thrown out at third in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The out in the sixth nipped a potential rally.

Sommer walked to open the sixth and was replaced by Craig Beaudou. Rick Gorman singled and Tom Hanke reached as Gorman was forced at second. An error allowed the run in and John Boya grounded to the mound to WATERLOO, Iowa — The rampaging Appleton Foxes increased their Midwest League Northern Division lead by another game Tuesday defeating Waterloo 6-3 in 18 innings.

The victory gives Appleton a 28-14 second half record and a four and one-half game lead over Waterloo. Appleton and Waterloo play single games tonight and Thursday.

Waterloo's pitchers were doing even better...Relievers Mike Larkin and Alex Gorgie held the Foxes hitless from the fifth until 18th inning.

With one out in the 18th, Gorgie hit Ray Rudacille with a pitch. Mike Ondina, hitless in six trips, lined a single to right. Kevin Bell flew out for the second out of the inning. Walters then delivered the key two-run double by lining into left-center. Ed Wheeler tripped to left to bring in Walters for the third run.

Sands, 4-7, retired the side without incident in the 18th to give the Foxes their 11th win in 14 games.

Waterloo took a 2-0 lead in the first on Bob Tuttle's infield single and a 335 foot homer to left by Tom Buettnier. It was only the fourth home run for Buettnier.

The Royals added a run in the fourth on a walk to Jay Freeman, a double by Richard Rich, an intentional walk to Steve Blomberg and a ground out.

The Foxes tied the game in the fifth. Wheeler and Mike Diugach singled. Mike Wolf grounded out to advance both runners and King brought in the first run with a single to shallow left. Clyde Jeter doubled to left to score another run. Rudacille brought home the tying run with a sacrifice fly to center.

King's outstanding effort — especially 11-plus innings — was a surprise considering his illness and Sands continued to be the stopper in the bullpen. Sands' ERA dropped near 1.00 with his six and two-thirds innings of shutout ball. He allowed only one hit, while striking out six.

Marichal helps Bosox sweep Brewers

By MIKE O'BRIEN

AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Juan Marichal has reclaimed his pitching magic of the 1960s, just in time to spur the Boston Red Sox' stretch drive and to all but knock the Milwaukee Brewers from the American League East race.

Marichal, on the disabled list for nearly two months until last Friday, shut out the Brewers on two hits for seven innings Tuesday night as the Red Sox completed a doubleheader sweep 6-0.

Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a single and three run home run in the nightcap and singled in the decisive run in the 6-3 first game victory as the Red Sox widened their East Division lead over runnerup Cleveland to two games.

Besides falling back into the cellar with their seventh defeat in eight games, the Brewers slipped 8 1/2 games from the top and six games under .500, both season lows.

Marichal, six times a 20 game winner for the San Francisco Giants, was relieved by Diego Segui after seven innings but recorded his 242nd major league victory, second to the 243 of St. Louis' Bob Gibson among active pitchers.

It was his first start since May 15, although he pitched six innings of two-hit relief against Baltimore last Friday. He had been troubled by a shoulder injury which impaired blood circulation to the index and middle fingers of his pitching hand.

Catcher Bob Montgomery said Marichal looked his best since Boston purchased his contract for a reported $100,000 last Dec. 7.

"He had super control all night, and a good screwball which he relied on 70 percent of the time," Montgomery said. "I don't think he's going to overpower anyone, but with that kind of control, he doesn't have to."

"He makes you swing at some pitches you don't want to, but you can't afford to take them, either," he said. "You could see that tonight. They hit a lot of weak flies and topped grounders. When that happens, you know they're getting pitches they can't handle."

Brewer Manager Del Crandall, who caught Marichal while with the Giants in 1964, said the 35-year-old right-hander "has still got the same good control and good variety of pitches."

"He doesn't throw as hard and doesn't throw his fast ball as often, but he had a good breaking ball," Crandall said.

Marichal said he is pitching better than at any time since he underwent back surgery in the fall of 1972. The surgery followed a 6-16 season, but he bounced back to 11-15 last year.

"After the operation, the doctor said I would need 18 months to completely recuperate," he said. "The second half of last season I started throwing good again, but they didn't score any runs for me."

"I don't fool myself—I don't throw as hard as I used to," he said. "I used to strike out over 200 batters a year, but I never tried for strikeouts. But I still throw the same way. I just want to make good pitches. If you get them where you want them to go, you've got a good chance to get them out."

The Red Sox went ahead to stay in the fourth of the opener, scoring two runs on five walks and a sacrifice fly for a 3-1 lead.

Kiwanis Little Leaguers scheduled for Iowa test

The Appleton Kiwanis Little League team advanced to Division play in Jefferson, Iowa, by capturing the State Tournament at Merrill recently.

Kiwanis opens against Earlville, Okla. Friday at 6 p.m.

The team is managed by John Gurholt and Lee Dallmann is the coach. In capturing the state crown, which included the Minnesota and Upper Michigan State champs, Kiwanis scored a total of 76 runs in six games.

It marked the fourth time in the last four years that the squad has competed at the state level. The 1971 team advanced as far as Division play in Baxter Springs, Kansas.

Mike Plaine and Mark Broehm head up a strong pitching staff under the direction of Rick O'Neill. Plaine has fanned 34 batters in 16 and a third in innings of tourney competition.

Bill Ellenbecker has contributed two successful relief appearances. Tim Riedl and Dave Gurholt round out the pitching staff. They have appeared in one game each during tourney action, was Ellenbecker the team's top hitter during the past six games with a .480 average. He has produced 12 hits and 16 RBI. John Hauser had wrapped out 10 hits in his last 18 trips to the plate for a .556 average. Other boys hitting over .400 are Andy Hare (.467), Mark DeWitt (.438) and Scott Forseth (.429).

Riedl had five doubles, while Plaine has contributed four two-baggers. Friday's starting lineup includes: Plaine (pitcher), Ellenbecker (catcher), Broehm (first base), DeWitt (second base), Hare (shortstop), Gurholt (third base), Forseth (left field), Hauser (center) and Riedl (right). Reserves include: Tom Stumpf, Eddie Meltz, Chris Brahan and Keith Romelesko. "Good defense will be the key to a successful showing at Jefferson," Manager Gurholt said. "This phase of play has steadily improved throughout tourney action and the boys played errorless ball in the championship game against Whitefish Bay."

Gurholt also noted that his team's fine spirit has played an important part in the success so far.

Housing big task for tournament

One of the big headaches for the Senior Babe Ruth tournament committee was finding housing for the 120 out-of-town boys participating in the meet.

Robert Struck, president, said, "It took us to the last day to do it (arrange housing). That's the hardest thing overall is to get people involved."

Sixty-three families in the Fox Cities opened their homes to the boys. They provide transportation to the park and also a meal or two.

Out-of-town teams are Frankfort, Ky.; Eau Claire, Wis.; Kanawha Valley, West Virginia; Westland, Mich.; Columbus, Ind.; Hamilton, Ohio; and Chicago, Ill.

Handling the housing arrangements were Carol Williams and Lorraine Struck.

Struck estimates the regional tournament brought about 2,000 people into the Appleton area.

Approximately 25 volunteers are working at the meet — mostly parents of Appleton players. However, other help is provided by the Babe Ruth League and Appleton Little League players. Little League players acting as bat boys and ball shaggers are Kevin Keefe, Steve Williams, Mark Jacobs, Dave Kraus and Don and Dave Guckenberger.

Dick Switzer, De Pere, and Tom Filz were PA announcers and Dennis Schenbroch is doing all of the scoring.

Pollart, Ben Chalupa, Frank Chalupa, Dave Kraus, Ken Mueller, Jerry Olm, Chesly Peerenboom, Vic Sullivan and Dick Weisgerber.

Pollart, a professor at UW-Oshkosh and CPA, got into umpiring while coaching youth baseball. "I'd split the players up and have to umpire the game. I liked it and began umpiring youth baseball," he said.

Pollart eventually went into the Big 8 and Rocky Mountain conferences as an official. "The Rocky Mountain plays better ball," he said.

Garvey, after Staubach reported the Dallas Cowboy training camp Sunday, was quoted as saying, "I'm glad I wasn't at Pearl Harbor with him."

The former star at the Naval Academy retaliated Monday by saying, "Normally I wouldn't say anything about it. But talking to a Navy man about Pearl Harbor...I just thought that was uncalled for. Garvey has been that way. He's made some strong statements about people who don't listen to his party line."

"If he hadn't said Pearl Harbor, if he'd just said, 'Staubach is a scab,' I wouldn't have said anything. But that is a really ridiculous analogy. It shows the type leadership we have if you have to use analogies like that to make statements."

Staubach seemed little soothed by a telegram from Garvey which read: "I was misquoted. I did not mean to criticize you. I respect your individual decision."

Staubach said he reported to camp because his personal feelings did not agree with the cause of other striking players.

"It takes more guts for me to stand up on this thing and get other players mad at me than it does to go along with the tide against my individual principles," Staubach said.

Staubach lets loose at Garvey

DALLAS (AP) — Usually soft-spoken Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach, incensed by a quote regarding Pearl Harbor attributed to Ed Garvey, has returned a salvo against the National Football League Players Association executive secretary.

Garvey, after Staubach reported the Dallas Cowboy training camp Sunday, was quoted as saying, "I'm glad I wasn't at Pearl Harbor with him."

The former star at the Naval Academy retaliated Monday by saying, "Normally I wouldn't say anything about it. But talking to a Navy man about Pearl Harbor...I just thought that was uncalled for. Calumet County to investigate recreational land sites

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent correspondent

STOCKBRIDGE — The possibility of acquiring more recreational land will be investigated by the Calumet County Park Commission. The group made the decision Monday afternoon after it learned that acreage is available near Brillion.

Charles P. Nikolai, corresponding secretary for the commission, was appointed by Gilbert Hipke, Chairman, to get more information, after it was pointed out that desirable sites are scarce.

The commission also is interested in getting a more favorable entrance to

Ledge Park near Chilton, and acquiring a small parcel adjacent to the present park. The possibility of getting a lease in order to pile snow for skiing also will be looked into.

At present, a fund of $72,000 has accumulated for acquisition purposes.

It was reported that the demolition of the former Zimmerman Rendering Plant at Ledge Park is under way and the commission agreed to give the highway commission permission to transfer ownership of scrap metal from the demolition project to the county highway department in payment of razing the structure and leveling the premises

Concern about vandalism to a fence at Ledge Park and slashing of hickory trees was expressed by commission members. Another matter of concern was the lack of buoys on Lake Winnebago, which were purchased last year. The commission agreed that buoys on the lake were more important now than earlier in the season when there is high water. Hipke asked Eldor Gilbertson, commission member, to see that the person who had agreed to put the buoys out did so.

In other business, the commission endorsed the resolution of the Kenosha County Park Commission for an increase in the statutory maximum tax rate for parks from 40 cents to 60 cents. Calumet County only has a 20 cent tax levy. Although Hipke noted Calumet was living "in a pretty prosperous atmosphere," he urged endorsement of the resolution to be brought before the county board, noting that land prices in some areas of the state were spiraling. Endorsing an increase did not mean a rate raise was forthcoming, he said.

An increase in the maximum has not been allowed since 1859.

Lothar Funke, park superintendent, was authorized to get all information and make preparations for the Sept. 3 meeting for placing drainage tiles in the main and beginners ski slopes at Calumet County Park to get rid of excess water from the springs. This is in accordance with the plan laid out by the Soil Conservation Service.

Funke reported that the drag for the snowmobile trails would cost $750 compared to the planned $660.

Asked to comment on the activities at the park and attendance compared to last year, Funke said it was "a little bit behind. He blamed this on the weather conditions for camping and boating. The possibility of putting in more campsites at the park was discouraged because of destruction of wooded areas. An age limit of 18 must be observed for camping. At least one person in a group, not camping with parents, must be 18.

Nikolai asked if trails at Ledge Park could be mowed to allow for teacher in-service in conservation Aug. 22 and possibly the next week.

The commission agreed to continue with the first two Saturdays in January for the ski school and Nikolai was allowed to use the slopes in the mornings around Christmas for about 15 to 20 persons who want additional training.

Crashes mar EEA gathering

OSHKOSH—With its 21-year safety record shattered by two fatal accidents which claimed three lives, the annual convention of the Experimental Aircraft Association, its biggest ever, ended here Tuesday night.

At the 22nd annual fly-in at Wittman Field, the second plane crash in five days claimed two more lives Tuesday. For the first time in EAA convention history, the yearly gathering of thousands of flying enthusiasts was marred by fatalities.

Two Addison, Ill., persons were killed about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday when the single-engine homebuilt craft they were riding in crashed and burned within moments after takeoff.

Last Friday, the 21-year EAA convention safety record was broken when Dewey Bryan, 53, Highland, Mich., died when his experimental folding-wing plane crashed after leaving the runway.

Al Neunpeufel, 33, was piloting an experimental plane Tuesday, a Thorp T-18. His passenger was 16-year-old Karen Bos, a friend of the Neunpeufel family. Both were attending the convention with their families.

Neunpeufel, who owned an auto repair shop, was a pilot for 15 years and had helped organize the Chicago EAA chapter. Married and the father of three children, he was in charge of campsite registration this year at the convention. He had built the T-18 himself and had flown the all-metal, low-wing craft for eight years without a serious mishap.

According to EAA president Paul Poberezny, Neunpeufel was taking Bos for a short flight. The plane took off going south on the north-south runway. When it reached altitude, a witness said, one of the nine-foot wings came off the craft. The plane hit a tree line, crashed in a wheat field about a half-mile from the end of the runway and burst into flames.

Neunpeufel's body was found in the wreckage. Bos was discovered 50-75 feet from the crash site. Both were killed instantly.

The Federal Aviation Administration, which launched an investigation, declined to speculate on the cause of the crash, although Poberezny said the rivets on the faulty wing may have sheared off. The wing was found five-eighths of a mile from the wreckage.

Poberezny and FAA officials accepted the news sadly but calmly, citing the fact that when people get in cars and boats—or planes—accidents are bound to happen eventually.

"There were more than 6,000 airplanes here this week," Poberezny said. "Our standards of maintenance are high." Charles Schuck, an FAA official, agreed, noting that the federal agency supervises the construction of all homebuilts and that pilots must

Mayor quits post with flood panel

NEW LONDON — Mayor Herman Gagnow resigned his position as chairman of the city's special flood control committee Tuesday after a committee member asked why nothing was being done to initiate a series of flood control proposals.

Ald. Wayne Toltzman (5th), who has long been pushing for faster action in lowering the plug on the Rasmussen Canal and installing culverts along County Trunk X to divert flood waters from the city, was named committee chairman by Gagnow.

Toltzman, pointing out that the committee hasn't met in six months, told Gagnow, "In as much as you are the chairman, I would like to know what, if anything, is being done. If nothing's being done, let's disband the committee."

Gagnow said, "The Department of Natural Resources doesn't know where it's at," adding that one DNR employee said the city wouldn't need permits to use the canal as a bypass for the Embarrass River, while another DNR spokesman said permits are required.

Toltzman said state Rep. Francis Byers, R-Marion, could help cut through the red tape, and pointed out that Byers has a special interest in the committee's progress since the panel is acting on a series of proposals he made after lengthy study.

"Have you checked with Byers?" Toltzman asked.

"I checked with everybody who would know," Gagnow said.

"Have you checked with Byers in the last two months?" the alderman asked again.

"No, I haven't," an angry Gagnow said. "But as of tonight I will make you

New London road project scheduled, detour planned

BY JOHN LEE
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEW LONDON—Construction on the $264,400 Pershing Road reconstruction project, which includes widening, paving, curb and gutter work and underground sewer work, will start next week, the City Council learned Tuesday.

Mayor Herman Gagnow said Central Paving Co. of Black Creek, which was awarded the state contract, will start Monday and complete the project within 90 days.

The council Tuesday designated the detour for the project. Motorists will travel from Wyman Street to Warren Street, south on Division Street to Eggert Road, and west on Eggert to Pershing.

Aldermen also transferred $10,000 in extra funds to the project account, since the city's costs include catch basins and other work not covered under the main state cost sharing formula.

The state will pay 70 per cent of the reconstruction costs.

Aldermen approved the appointment of four residents to the advisory parks and rivers planning committee, but rejected three nominations because the nominees lived out of the city.

Officials had asked local civic groups to nominate members to serve on the committee, but aldermen said they thought a committee that will recommend the spending of city tax dollars should be made up entirely of city residents.

Committee members who were approved include Peggy Helgeson of the New London Business and Professional Woman's Club, Nancy Gabriel of the Woman's Club, Richard Czaja of the Jaycees and Ethel Bauernfiend of the garden club Chamber of Commerce manager Carol Groeschel. Rotary nominee George Kubisiak and Lions nominee Marlin Fuerst were rejected as being nonresidents.

Those groups will be asked to nominate other committee members.

The committee will work with East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission members on a comprehensive plan for the parks and rivers.

The judicial committee reported it did not draw up a city policy for curb and gutter and sidewalk repair since the problem is covered by city ordinance. It recommended, however, that the board of public works establish definite criteria to determine when replacement or repair is needed.

The finance committee will advertise for bids for the city's fleet and equipment insurance, and said it would list many motor equipment pieces with the equipment policy rather than the fleet insurance in an attempt to lower pre-

Burial vault race fever high

MARION — Excitement continues to mount in this northeastern Wisconsin city over Saturday's fourth annual world championship burial vault races.

The races are expected to be the highlight of the city's homecoming and corn roast celebration this weekend. The crowd may not be as big as those at the Indianapolis "500" or the Kentucky Derby, but the races are expected to draw from a wide area, perhaps as far away as Appleton.

The first race will be at 2:30 p.m. on Marion Pond. Two-man teams, competing with or without sponsorship, will race all the way across the face of the pond and back again.

The Marion Advancement Association, sponsor of the race, intends to enforce all rules strictly. A spokesman warned that any entry which does not adhere to the rules set down by the race committee will be disqualified.

Race vaults are made of fiber glass and resemble a canoe. Persons interested in getting a sneak preview of the vaults can contact assistant digger Don Raisler, who, between annual races, is city coordinator. Vaults may be viewed at city hall. Raisler's superiors on the race committee are Ward Peterson, chief commander, and Hollis Sether, chief digger.

The committee hopes for good weather, but said the races will be held rain or shine. A prize ceremony will be conducted after the final race.

Pairings for the various heats will be posted at 10 a.m. Saturday at the headquarters stand

Relocated Brillion athletic field OK'd

BY JANICE JOHNSON
Post-Crescent correspondent

BRILLION — The board of education Monday authorized the relocation of the high school athletic field to a north-south position behind the high school, bordered on the west end by the previously proposed Elm Street extension.

The repositioning has been the subject of an extensive study to allow maximum use of the remaining available school land for future buildings playground needs and parking.

One of the reasons for proceeding with the project now is to meet city parking codes which will require more parking space before a permit for the gymnasium addition will be issued.

Because the new site overlaps the present field, considerable attention was given Monday to the timetable for working on the new field without causing disruption of the athletic schedule. It was decided that since there is little chance of the work being completed by the 1975 football season, no work will be started until the close of the 1974 season. Alternate arrangements will be made for next year's games.

Cost of the project is estimated at $17,000 and the addition of lighting is expected to be another $20,000.

A program to provide lunch to the elderly discussed at an earlier meeting, was tabled after it was learned that it is not mandatory for schools operating a school lunch program to offer such a service. Costs up to 20 cents in excess of the 65 cents per meal charge would have been paid under federal program.

School employees will pay higher rates this fall for school lunches. The board approved a 70 cent per day charge or $3.25 weekly, which is a 15-cent increase over last year. The increase was attributed to higher costs.

Students from kindergarten through grade 6 will again receive free milk once each day. The reimbursement rate for the program will be five cents per half pint, compared to four cents last year. The present rate quoted by the Brillion Dairy is 8 2/3 cents for milk and 8 3/3 for chocolate milk. The estimated cost for the year to the district is $2,300.

It was reported that a driver education simulator will be available for a nine-week period during the second semester. The first year cost will be $6,562, with an estimated $3,300 cost each year after. The board agreed that the simulator would provide maximum driving experience and cut down on behind-the-wheel instruction, but it was felt that 4½ weeks of simulator time was sufficient and the board authorized the use of the simulator on that basis if possible.

In other business, Supt. Gaylor D. Unbehaun reviewed the latest working draft on the "13 standards" which must be met by schools this fall if state aids are to be received. Unbehaun felt the district meets seven of the required nine standards and could quite easily meet most of the rest by drafting written plans.

Contracts signed were Stockbridge, cooperative vocational guidance and maintenance program, Mary Larson, part-time English, Debra Koerth, part-time physical education; and Ken Konop, summer driver's education.

Unbehaun reported that it is impossible to get bids on gasoline, though the Brillion Co-op has offered a base price of 47.7 cents per gallon.

Applications were signed for reimbursement for the school lunch and special milk programs

Waupaca okays street projects despite opposition

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent staff writer

WAUPACA — The City Council, after a public hearing Tuesday, voted to go ahead with a street project and levy special assessments to cover the cost, despite opposition.

The decision came after the council heard the four property owners involved express opposition to the installation of curb and gutter and a five-foot sidewalk on the north side and the widening and paving of Riverside Drive from Churchill Street to school district property.

The board of education supported the proposed improvements and Everett Anderson, board president, told the aldermen that the improvements were "desperately needed to assure the safety of the students going to the high school, both in cars and walking."

The school board dedicated the road from its parking lot to Riverside Drive and will improve its portion of the street, called Shoemaker Road, at an estimated cost to the district of $17,950.

According to present estimates, the improvements on Riverside Drive from Churchill to Shoemaker Road will be $17,950, with one-half the cost of curb, gutter and sidewalk, or an estimated $3,954 levied against four property owners, who can pay their share in five annual payments.

In the public hearing, the property owners who had petitioned the city to abandon its plans, asked if installation of the curb and gutter would solve the horn blowing and tire squealing, the traffic jams which occur between 3 and 4 p.m. every school day since the new high school opened and what and how speeding would be controlled.

Ray Jenner, a property owner, said, "There is no doubt that a sidewalk is necessary for the kids' safety but why do we need such a wide road? I know some kids are doing 50 miles an hour when they come out the school. I've seen a few make a complete 360 degree turn. Straightening out the street will only help them get up to 70 miles per hour."

"What is needed is a road into the school and another road out of the school property," he continued. "I would like to see a study made by the board of education to determine if an exit road can be built connecting with Harding Street on the north."

Anderson said that this would require a thorough study because long-range plans may include the development of its 30 acres east of the high school into an athletic field. If this were done, high school students would have to cross such a road to get to the athletic field area.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth O. Cook, property owners on the south side of Riverside Drive, asked the council to do something to preserve the trees on their property which would have to be removed if the 38-foot street, as required by ordinance, is installed.

The street improvement would allow for the two-way flow of traffic, from the school road to Churchill, with easy travel for school buses. An island will be built at the school entrance, requiring a yield for vehicles turning south on Riverside Drive.

The school administration had proposed that Riverside be made a one-way street, with traffic to the school entering from the west and traffic from the school turning south on Riverside Drive to Churchill. The bridge over the Crystal River, according to the board

Bench's homer ignites Reds as plot thickens in AL West

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Johnny Bench walked up to the plate thinking "home run" all the way. Then he translated his thoughts into action.

Bench hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning to carry the Cincinnati Reds to 6-3 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night and make the National League West race a little more interesting.

"We won tonight, now we have to win tomorrow night and then get about six more," Cincinnati's All-Star catcher said after the Reds cut the Dodgers' lead to 6½ games. "It's going to take a lot for us to catch them. Even if they split the games they have left (the Dodgers have 51 remaining), we'd have to play 700 ball."

Bench's game-winning blast came off

a screwball from Mike Marshall, the Dodger relief star.

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals took a doubleheader from the Montreal Expos 5-4 and 9-4; the Houston Astros blasted the San Francisco Giants 13-4; the Atlanta Braves stopped the San Diego Padres 5-2; the Philadelphia Phillies hammered the Chicago Cubs 8-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the New York Mets 9-8 in 11 innings.

With the Reds and Dodgers tied at 3-3, Pete Rose led off the 10th with a single and one out later, Bench blasted his 21st homer into the left field pavilion off Marshall, 11-7.

Los Angeles tied the contest when Wynn hit his 26th homer of the baseball season.

Cards 5-9, Expos 4-4

Mike Tyson's two-run triple highlighted a four-run rally in the fourth inning that carried St. Louis over Montreal in the first game of their doubleheader. The Cardinals scored seven runs in the third inning of the second game to complete a sweep.

and Houston rallied for three unearned runs in the sixth inning and went on to beat San Francisco.

Milt May's one-out single and a two-out single by Doug Rader started the rally. Matthews then dropped Helms' liner and both runners scored, breaking a 3-3 tie.

Braves 5, Padres 2

Home run king Henry Aaron drove in four runs with two homers and right-hander Phil Niekro hurled Atlanta past San Diego.

Aaron, who passed Babe Ruth's record 714 homers in April, tagged his 14th and 15th of the season, raising his alltime record to 728.

A single by Ralph Garr and a walk to Darrell Evans set up a three-run homer by Aaron in the third inning and he opened the sixth with another.

Phillies 8, Cubs 3

Willie Montanez hit his first major league grand slam home run to lead Philadelphia over Chicago.

Pirates 9, Mets 8

Gene Clines reached base on an error by shortstop Bud Harrelson in the 11th inning and later scored on an error by pitcher Tug McGraw to help Pittsburgh beat New York.

Owners of leaping dog arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rarely had such speed been exhibited in a major league outfield, and the graceful leap was somewhat reminiscent of a World Series catch by Duke Snider two decades ago.

"What a center fielder," cracked Red Patterson, a Los Angeles Dodger vice president. "Sign it up."

On second thought, a Dodger spokesman said Tuesday that there were no plans to offer a contract to the would-be outfielder, last seen Tuesday morning wandering in the Dodger Stadium parking lot.

The Dodgers undoubtedly have little faith that the imposter could match Jimmy Wynn's prowess as a hitter.

But catch, Wow! And without a glove, using his or her mouth. Sex of the dog that chased and caught a Frisbee during Monday night's nationally televised game was not determined. The dog was tentatively identified as a whippet, a greyhound-like breed often bred for racing.

The crowd of 51,062 was on its feet cheering as two young men threw the Frisbee and the dog caught it. A national television audience for the Dodger-Cincinnati game also took in the exhibition.

The dog went free as the two men, aged 20 and 23, were apprehended by security officers, turned over to police and booked in jail for investigation of trespassing. The men were released on their own recognizance after about two hours of incarceration, but ordered to appear in municipal court at a later date.

They could be fined $250 each for the misdemeanor.

"No matter if it was a cute act or not," said a Dodger official, "it's against the rule for people to run onto the field."

One of the men, meanwhile, called Dodger Stadium to seek the whereabouts of the dog.

The dog and two men entered the stadium while the gates were open to permit fans to leave after the eighth inning. Security police were in pursuit when the Frisbee, then the dog, and then the two individuals, made it to the field near the left field foul line.

Cepeda shines in romp by Royals

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

You're excused if you closed the books on Juan Marichal and Orlando Cepeda, whose glory days are long past. But the veteran pitcher and the old slugger aren't quite through yet.

Marichal, who has spent most of the last two months on the disabled list, hurled seven innings of two-hit baseball Tuesday night as Boston blanked Milwaukee 6-0 to complete a double-header sweep over the Brewers. The Red Sox took the opener 6-3.

Meanwhile, Cepeda, who was cut by Boston in spring training and was languishing in the Mexican League until last week, showed up in Kansas City and ripped a pair of singles in the Royals' 17-3 romp over Minnesota.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday, Cleveland outlasted Detroit 9-7, Baltimore trimmed New York 4-1, Texas shut out Oakland 1-0 and Chicago battered California 12-2.

Meanwhile, Minnesota couldn't control Kansas City, which collected 19 hits. Amos Otis drove in four runs with a homer and a double but the most intriguing part of the attack were a pair of singles by Cepeda, who drove in two runs in his return to the big leagues.

Rangers 1, A's 0

Ferguson Jenkins limited Oakland to two hits and shut out the A's for his 15th victory in 25 decisions.

Texas scored the game's only run in

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Three New York errors helped Baltimore to three unearned runs and moved the Orioles past the Yankees.

Grant Jackson shut off a late threat to save the victory for Baltimore which was outlived 11-8 but took advantage of the loose New York fielding for the victory.

Paul Blair singled home two of the Orioles runs but errors by Bill Sudakis and Dick Tidrow in the first inning and Sandy Alomar in the seventh gave Baltimore the edge.

White Sox 12, Angels 2

Ken Henderson rapped three hits including a bases-loaded triple that capped a seven-run second inning as the Chicago White Sox thumped the California Angels.

Henderson opened the second inning by drawing a walk and eventually scored on a single by Carlos May and a double by Brian Downing.

Indians 9, tigers 7

John Ellis ripped five hits including a home run and Cleveland wiped out a five-run deficit to overtake Detroit.

John Lowenstein's seventh inning homer snapped a 7-7 tie and Buddy Bell singled home another run, moving the Indians to the victory.

A lot of rainbow

Third-ranked Joe Shear seeks WIR win Sunday

KAUKAUNA — With two races of the third annual Red, White and Blue State Championship Series for stock cars completed, Joe Shear is still looking for his first win of the year at the Wisconsin International Raceway in Kaukauna.

The 1973 Camaro driver from S. Beloit, Ill. finished seventh in the first race of the series this year and third in the second race of the series. He is currently ranked third in the "Red, White and Blue" point standings behind Steven Point's Rich Somers and Jim Back of Vesper. The final race in the series, a 100-lapper on WIR's 1/2 mile paved oval, is slated Sunday afternoon.

Last year Shear dominated the racing series by capturing the top spot in three of five major events at WIR. Dick Trickle of Wisconsin Rapids and Dave Watson of Beloit won the other events.

The 30-year-old driver began his career 10 years ago at the Rockford, Ill. speedway with a 1957 Chevrolet.

He then moved up to a Chevelle and won five straight championships at the track before switching to the more lucrative Central Wisconsin circuit.

In 1972 he won one of the "Red, White and Blue" series events and finished second to Trickle in the final point standings. Also that year he won the "National Short Track Championship" at Rockford.

Last year, although losing the "Red, White and Blue" crown to Watson, he managed to garner the WIR special

WFL rocked by reports of 'papering the house'

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Tonight in Philadelphia, the Bell will host the Memphis Southmen in a World Football League game. A crowd of 30,000 is expected, but it's anybody's guess how many of those will be paid admissions.

The rookie league has been rocked by reports of "papering the house" with free admissions to its games — most notably Philadelphia, which claimed over 120,000 spectators for its first two home games when in fact only 20,000 had paid for their seats.

So the surprising, often amazing claims of attendance in the WFL's first month have become suspect. After boasting an enthusiastic reception, the WFL has been sent running for cover.

Over-all, five of the 12 teams, responding either independently or directly to Associated Press inquiries, said they had given away 158,000 free tickets to their home games. Assuming that none of the other seven league teams gave tickets away, the paid attendance for the league's first 24 games is 563,000 or an average of 26,000.

Bell Executive Vice President Barry Lieb admitted his club gave the extraordinary number of tickets away. Only 13,800 of the home opening 55,534 admissions were paid; just 6,200 of the 64,719 paid for the nationally televised game against New York two weeks ago.

"We just had to do it or we would have been a joke," Lieb said. "I admit we lied to everyone. What can I say? I never thought the figures would come out."

But they did come out, as they have in a number of other places — to a lesser degree — around the league. And the reaction of people around the circuit has been surprise, shock and dismay.

"God, this really hurts," said Southern California Sun General Manager Curly Morrison. "Why in hell would they do something like that? It's bad. It didn't serve any purpose to inflate the gate."

League President Gary Davidson said that the league's initial policy had been for each team to announce only turnstile count and not divulge paid attendance.

Davidson added, "The thing I resent is that the management in Philadelphia misled the public," and acknowledged the WFL's reputation had been damaged.

The Jacksonville Sharks disclosed that the announced attendance of 59,112 for its TV opener and 46,780 two weeks later had been overstated, saying that a total of 44,000 had been admitted free and 2,000 half-price tickets had been sold to servicemen.

The general manager of the Southmen, Leo Cahill, said his team's giveaways go only to "people that have to get them" although he wouldn't specify how many "have tos" there were in Memphis.

In Portland, a Storm spokesman said firmly, "We have nothing to hide around here and we don't want to give anyone the indication that our figures aren't correct."

The Storm's count of 19,358 fans for the first game and 13,757 for the second one, he said, "Is a turnstile count right out of the stadium. That is a paid figure."

The Florida Blazers announced nearly seven thousand over the official paid figure of 18,265 for their home opener, while the New York Stars and Chicago Fire acknowledged giveaways of between 1,000 and 2,000 for their games.

Chain O'Lakes Association asks for stricter motorboat regulations

WAUPACA — The Chain O' Lakes Property Owners Association presented a proposed ordinance change Tuesday for the regulation of all motorboats on inland lakes in the towns of Dayton and Farmington the the Waupaca County Police chief fights newspaper suit to open arrest records

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Police Chief Harold Breier says public access to arrest records must be limited to preserve law and order and operate an efficient police department.

Breier responded this week to a lawsuit filed by the Milwaukee Journal. The newspaper asked that reporters be allowed to make routine examination of police records showing the names and addresses of persons arrested, their ages, time and place of arrest, names of arresting officers, occupation of the arrested persons, place of detention and cause of arrest.

Breier's response was signed by City Atty. James Brennan and Asst. City Atty. Thomas Hayes. It said the chief "is required to deny public disclosure of Police Department records whenever the public interest in law enforcement for nondisclosure outweighs the public policy of public disclosure."

"Public disclosure of arrest records will jeopardize the ability of the...department to obtain and retain such records for law enforcement purposes," the pleading said.

Breier again contended, as he did earlier in an exchange of letters with Journal editors, that giving reporters access to the charges placed against an arrested person could result in damage to reputations.

Breier said it was up to the Journal to prove that the public interest in disclosing arrest records was a substantial one.

law enforcement committee. Committee members had the proposed changes for several days and asked for more time to study the proposal.

Arthur Sturm, Manawa, told the association representatives: "We have to go over this more carefully. It should then be sent to the district attorney to make certain that the changes are legal."

"Following this legal opinion, it should be sent to the towns of Dayton and Farmington boards for their approval," he said. "When this is done, it will then be presented to the county board."

He said that the townships have the final say on the ordinance. The existing ordinance, adopted in 1968, has been approved by the county board so arrests can be made under a county ordinance and violators tried in the county court.

The ordinance proposal, presented by Miss Ruth Finch, chairman of the Association's Law enforcement committee and endorsed by its board of directors at a meeting last Friday is more restrictive.

The principle changes would be that: — It shall be unlawful to operate any water craft at anytime upon any of the following water, lakes or portions thereof in the towns of Farmington and Dayton at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake."

Taylor, Otter, George, Nessling, McCrossen, Limekiln, Othman, Black Bass, Beasley, Orlando, Knight, Manomin, Pope, Marl, Dake, Bass, Minor, Sunset Lake and Long Lake Cove.

Presently, the maximum speed is six miles per hour, and that limit does not include Long Lake Cove.

— It shall be unlawful in the towns of Dayton and Farmington to operate any water craft at any time in any channel at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake."

At present it is a six miles per hour limit.

— It shall be unlawful in the towns of Dayton and Farmington to operate a motorboat during the hours from a half hour after sunset to sunrise at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake."

"Slow-no-wake" speed is defined as the slowest possible speed necessary to maintain forward movement and steering.

As the ordinance is now written, motorboats can run at any speed after dark.

— The sheriff may issue permits for water shows, water-skiing shows and spectacles by public or private groups or organizations. Applications for such permits shall be made not less than 14 days prior to the event.

The ordinance now limits such permits to two per year.

— The penalty for violating any of the provisions shall be a forfeiture of not more than $200, plus costs of prosecution.

The penalty now is not more than $50.

If you bought lunch meat the way you buy bananas, you'd buy Schweigert's.

If you'd pick up packages of sliced lunch meat and compare 'em side by side — the way you do with bananas — we bet you'd buy Schweigert sliced lunch meat. ■ Try it the next time you're at the store. Hold a package of Schweigert's next to any other brand of lunch meat. Compare 'em for color, texture, that lean meaty look... and see if Schweigert doesn't make lunch meat better, too. ■ Of course, the ultimate test takes place inside a sandwich. We want you to make that comparison, too. That's why we have these coupons, good for 15¢ off on any kind of Schweigert sliced lunch meat. In whatever size package you want: 6 or 8 ounce.

And you'd save a bunch of money.

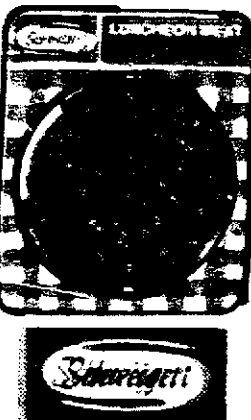

Schweigert makes it better a lot of different ways: bologna (including our new especially-for-kids mild bologna), salami, summer sausage, ham (boiled, chopped, minced or honeyed), ham sausage, thuringer, roast beef, head cheese, Dutch loaf, New England Brand loaf and several beef items.

Save 15¢

Arthur Sturm, Manawa, told the association representatives: "We have to go over this more carefully. It should then be sent to the district attorney to make certain that the changes are legal." "Following this legal opinion, it should be sent to the towns of Dayton and Farmington boards for their approval," he said. "When this is done, it will then be presented to the county board." He said that the townships have the final say on the ordinance. The existing ordinance, adopted in 1968, has been approved by the county board so arrests can be made under a county ordinance and violators tried in the county court. The ordinance proposal, presented by Miss Ruth Finch, chairman of the Association's Law enforcement committee and endorsed by its board of directors at a meeting last Friday is more restrictive. The principle changes would be that: — It shall be unlawful to operate any water craft at anytime upon any of the following water, lakes or portions thereof in the towns of Farmington and Dayton at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake." Taylor, Otter, George, Nessling, McCrossen, Limekiln, Othman, Black Bass, Beasley, Orlando, Knight, Manomin, Pope, Marl, Dake, Bass, Minor, Sunset Lake and Long Lake Cove. Presently, the maximum speed is six miles per hour, and that limit does not include Long Lake Cove. — It shall be unlawful in the towns of Dayton and Farmington to operate any water craft at any time in any channel at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake."

At present it is a six miles per hour limit. — It shall be unlawful in the towns of Dayton and Farmington to operate a motorboat during the hours from a half hour after sunset to sunrise at a speed greater than "slow-no-wake." "Slow-no-wake" speed is defined as the slowest possible speed necessary to maintain forward movement and steering. As the ordinance is now written, motorboats can run at any speed after dark. — The sheriff may issue permits for water shows, water-skiing shows and spectacles by public or private groups or organizations. Applications for such permits shall be made not less than 14 days prior to the event. The ordinance now limits such permits to two per year. — The penalty for violating any of the provisions shall be a forfeiture of not more than $200, plus costs of prosecution. The penalty now is not more than $50.

Moore is a graduate of the former Eau Claire State College with a degree in geography. He completed his master's work at the University of Wisconsin-Superior in school administration.

He taught at Owen-Withee high school in Clark County during 1955-56 and again in 1958-63, serving in the Army in the interim. In 1963-65, he taught in the Greenwood community schools and then entered the Job Corps.

From 1970 to the present, Moore was high school principal at Wabeno.

He is married and has two children, ages 8 and 10.

Industrial site work approved

BY JUDY WISEMAN
Post-Crescent correspondent

WEYAUWEGA—Council members voted Monday evening to authorize Roth & Van Dyke and Association to proceed with plans for the elevated tank, water and sewer mains, road and railroad to the present and new industrial park site.

They also agreed to carry over the license application of A & F Waste Disposal Co. until it is learned if an agreement has been reached between the company and the landfill owner, Tony Resch.

Roger Harrigan appeared before the council to explain the progress of the ambulance service committee meetings held recently at Fremont. The committee recommended that no action be taken on ambulance service for at least another year to allow the committee to further investigate the possibilities of obtaining funds and to learn further about state regulations. Each community has from four to five years to meet the state detailed rules for such services.

Mrs. Gary Rhone discussed the organization of senior citizen programs and focused on finding a meeting place for such citizens and a director to help organize programs. Further information will be disclosed later.

At the request of city disposal plant manager Lee Minton, the council decided to visit the new plant and view full operations at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 19.

Members also accepted an estimated bid of $335 to reccoat the city hall roof.

In further action, members voted to sell the old dock from the lake bathing beach and scheduled a public hearing Sept. 9 on water and sewer line extension on Harlon and Parker streets.

The council also authorized engineer Del Glass to proceed with working plans and a public hearing for storm sewer, curb and gutter and blacktop on Mary Street from Clark to Alfred streets and Parker Street from Mary to LaSalle streets.

Ald. Roy Anderson reported on a recent police committee meeting and noted that there would be a radar demonstration for the council and police department at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Claims totaling $20,092 were approved by the finance committee and authorized by the council.

Application by the Weyauwega Boy Scouts to sell cigarettes at the Waupaca County Fair was approved as was the Weyauwega Braves Baseball Team request to sell fermented malt beverages at the fairgrounds Aug. 11.

Shawano wins BABA title in east, trounces Gresham

Shawano won the sole championship of the eastern division of the Badger Amateur Baseball Association with a 20-7 trouncing of Gresham, while Marion clinched third place by beating Clintonville, 13-10, in games played Sunday.

Shawano had already been assured of at least a share of the 1974 pennant — thanks to Gresham's 2-1 make-up victory at Clintonville Wednesday.

In other action Sunday — the final games in the regular season — Big Falls beat Leopold, 8-2, to clinch second place in the west division; Tigerton upset first place Bowler, 4-3, in the west; Menomonee beat Cecil, 4-1, in eastern action; and Caroline edged Tilleda, 8-7, in the west.

Bowler and second place Big Falls will be host for the third and fourth place teams Sunday in the opening round of the western play-offs while Shawano will be host to Marion and Clintonville will be host for Gresham in eastern division play-off openers.

Gresham held a 5-0 lead until the fourth inning when Shawano broke loose to score in nearly every inning and bury the losers. Shawano collected 17 hits, led by Mike Stoehr with four and Chuck Stoehr with three, including a home run. Gresham had 11 hits, with Gary Schabow getting three, including a double. Carl Carmichael was the winning pitcher and Al Kuhn the loser.

Clintonville held a 4-2 lead going into the bottom of the fifth when Marion scored 10 runs as 15 batters went to the plate. Marion collected 18 hits, led by Ken Lodewegen with three, including five runs batted in, four of them in the fifth on two singles, including one with the bases loaded. Dave Bertram also had three hits. Mike Daly, Bruce West and Gordy Kojitzke had two each. Clintonville had 12 hits with Dick Koeppen, Randy Nelson, Pat Zingler and Randy Zastrow getting two each. One of Zastrow's hits was a double. Mike Daley went the first 6 innings for the win. Dennis Matz relieved and walked three batters and Ken Lodewegen came in and finished.

Big Falls collected 11 hits, paced by Marilyn Bailey with two, including a home run, Bill Opperman with two, including a homer, and Tim Dieck with two, including a double. Gene Krohn also had two. Leopold had just five hits with Pete Kristof getting two, including a double, while Jeff Conradt also doubled. Tim Dieck was the winning pitcher but needed relief help in the late innings from Jack Korb. Tom Kristof went 1 innings for the loss as he gave up six runs.

Mike Thiel was the winning pitcher for Tigerton as he allowed just four hits while fanning 11. Cal Ruska was the loser. The Tigers had 10 hits led by Greg Hintz and Charley Kielblock with homers. Mike Ernst homered for Bowler.

Caroline came up with seven runs in the eighth inning to take the lead over Tilleda and held on to win. Tilleda out-hit the winners, 15-7.

Winning pitcher Gary Grunewald had two hits for Caroline while Eugene Watters had three for Tilleda. Bob Brie was the losing pitcher.

Hilbert public schools set Aug. 26 opening

HILBERT — Classes in the public schools here will begin Aug. 26. Teacher in-service days are scheduled for Aug. 22 and 23.

In-service and orientation for new teachers in the school system will be Aug. 20 and 21 with a dinner for the new staff at 8 p.m. at Dino's. The regular faculty-board dinner also is planned.

Bus routes are expected to remain about the same as last year. Supt. Dr. Richard Cross said, and lunch costs will remain at last year's prices until it is found necessary to adjust them. Students in grades 7-12 will pay 55 cents a meal, elementary students 40 cents a meal and adults 80 cents a meal. Milk is expected to be five cents for students and 10 cents for adults.

Classes for elementary and high school students will again run from 8 a.m. to 2:36 p.m. Junior high school classes for grades 7 and 8 will be from noon to 5:21 p.m.

Kindergarten classes will be from 8 to 10:30 a.m. for village children and from noon to 2:30 p.m. for rural youngsters.

Only 45 kindergarten children are registered so far, filling only three sections compared to four last year, when 75 children were enrolled. Parents who have not registered children are asked to do so soon.

'Kiddie tours' to end Tuesday at Clintonville with picnic at park

CLINTONVILLE — The recreation department's "kiddie tours" will conclude Tuesday with a picnic at the Little Falls park.

All area children are welcome to attend, whether or not they have participated in the other tours.

The group will leave from the swimming pool at 10:30 a.m. and return by 2 p.m. Each child must have a signed parental permission slip, and should bring a sack lunch. Lemonade will be furnished.

Any adults willing to provide extra transportation should call the recreation department by Friday.

Hilbert school board awards bids, hires former Hortonville teacher

HILBERT — Bids for auxiliary vehicles, gas line, insurance and milk were awarded Monday night by the board of education. The board also hired a former Hortonville teacher to teach business education.

Central Garage, Potter, was awarded the contract for a 1975 Matador station wagon with a low bid of $3,997. The firm bid two other vehicles and Calumet Truck and Equipment submitted a bid for another vehicle. The vote was 5-2 with Marian Misberger and Dr. Dennis Ribbens voting no.

Leander Roehrig Insurance was awarded the insurance contract for the bus fleet, driver education car, leased vehicle and district-owned vehicle. The bid was $1,566. Other bidders were Stunner Insurance, Rural Insurance and Mutual Service Casualty. All bidders recommended that the uninsured motorist portion was too low and the board will investigate increasing it.

The gasoline contract was awarded to Parsons Standard, which bid five cents over wholesale price for a current price of 42.6 cents a gallon. Regardless of increase Parsons said he would stay at the five cents over wholesale cost.

Other bidders were Pethan's Service and Larry's Texaco.

The only bid for milk was received from Brillion Dairy at a cost of 8.23 cents for half-pint white and 8.93 cents for half-pint chocolate. The bid was accepted by the board.

In other business, the board signed the contract for principal George Guskick of Iron Mountain, Mich., at a salary for the 10-month contract of $16,500.

The resignation of Clifford Wixel, industrial arts teacher, was accepted. Wixel is returning with his family to teach in North Dakota and a contract for his replacement, Dean Ehlers of Tigerton, was signed. Ehlers has had one year of experience and is a native of Sturgeon Bay.

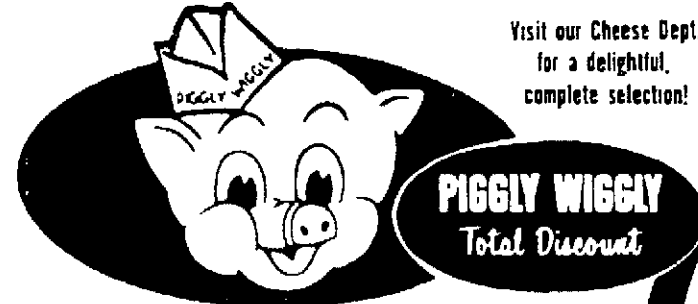

After considerable questioning from Ribbens, the board signed a contract for Rosemarie Lauer to teach business education. Miss Lauer, a native of Elkhart Lake, has a master's degree and has 19 years of experience, with 12 of them in the Hortonville system. She was among those fired after striking this spring. She was recommended by Supt. Dr. Richard Cross on the basis of experience, professionalism and empathy for children. His recommendation was confirmed by Alfred Fochs, chairman of the board, who also interviewed Miss Lauer. Ribbens' was concerned by the labor problems experienced at Hortonville, but the vote was unanimous to hire her.

Clintonville gyms to open

New opportunity to win world-wide stamps

BY CAPPY DICK

A package of 1,000 colorful postage stamps from countries all over the world is the national grand prize in today's blackboard prize-out puzzle contest. That's enough stamps to give any winner a fine start as a stamp hobbyist.

Five packages will be awarded, one to each boy or girl whosends in one of the five neatest and most original correct puzzle solutions. Considered in the final judging for these awards will be winners of qualifying prizes from each of the cities where this column is published, including the Fox Cities. There will be 10 preliminary prize winners in each city and in a review of these entries, the contest judges will select the five neatest and most original.

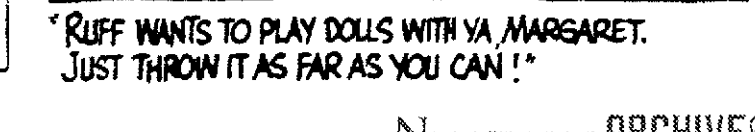

To enter the contest and try for a preliminary prize and for a national grand prize, study the blackboard picture above and black out certain letters of each line so the remaining letters in the line will spell a number.

When three numbers remain, clip out the picture, paste it on paper, print your name, age, address and Zip Code number beneath it and in any neat, original way, decorate your entry with paint, crayons or cutouts.

Address the completed entry to: Cappy Dick's Midwest Stamp Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the prizewinners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Tomorrow: How to play beach-style ticktacktoe!

House won't pass up impeachment debate

WASHINGTON—The impeachment panic now enveloping President Nixon was revealed when chief anti-impeachment legal strategist James D. St. Clair himself secretly felt out key Republican Congressmen on the "artful dodge" play of sending a pro forma vote of impeachment to the Senate for trial.

St. Clair, highly-regarded in the House as a fine lawyer with a lousy case, explored the now-discredited play at a private breakfast with the Chamber and Marching Society, an informal social group of Republican Congressmen which Mr. Nixon himself helped found 25 years ago.

"He was obviously interested in it," one key Republican who attended the closed-door breakfast on Capitol Hill told us.

Considered insult to house

The matter came up when St. Clair was asked if he saw any political advantage for Mr. Nixon to abort the predictably devastating House impeachment debate—now expected to yield at least a 2-1 margin against the President—and get the articles of impeachment sent immediately to the Senate for trial. Ducking a direct answer, St. Clair started questioning his hosts about the idea.

He got a rude awakening. An anti-impeachment Republican told him the proposal, first floated to President Nixon by two Republicans through high-level intermediary Melvin R. Laird weeks ago, was an insult to the House.

At the very moment St. Clair was revealing White House interest in finessing televised debate on the House floor, Nixon aide Patrick Buchanan was peddling the same line to reporters at Godfrey Sperling's breakfast club.

St. Clair's suggestion, that aborting serious debate and a meaningful vote in the House would get Republicans off the hook, evoked hollow laughter. That might have been true a month ago, but the 30-odd Republicans breakfasting with St. Clair knew that the real reason for exhuming the idea now was to get not them but Mr. Nixon off the hook of ruinous House debate. Mr. Nixon scarcely lifted a finger for his party in the 1972 campaign.

A footnote: The fact that Laird played emissary for Republican Reps. Louis Frey of Florida and John Mc Collier of Nebraska, original backers of the artful dodge play, shows that his old colleagues in the House are making full use of his unique backroom talents.

Secrecy on Connally

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's office handled the milk scandal indictment of John B. Connally with extraordinary security precautions in an effort to mitigate the previous flood of anti-Connally publicity which will seriously handicap efforts to convict him.

Total secrecy was maintained on the indictment. It was typed not by secretaries but by high-ranking officials on the prosecution force. Jaworski, who has excused himself from the case because of old Texas association with Connally, was not informed that the indictment was coming. Even after the indictment was announced, Jaworski's aides refused to discuss the case.

It may be too late. Edward Bennett Williams, famed defense lawyer representing Connally, intends to argue that his client's interests were damaged by the deluge of publicity preceding Connally's indictment for bribery and perjury.

Jaworski's lawyers regard that publicity as disgraceful, but they were not at fault. The leaks probably came from attorneys for erstwhile Connally associate Jake Jacobsen. In fact, the special prosecution force has privately scolded Jacobsen's lawyers for highly unethical conduct.

The publicity was an obvious attempt to win total immunity for Jacobsen in return for damaging testimony against Connally—in effect, plea bargaining via the media. It did not succeed. Although Jacobsen's testimony against Connally is expected to be critical, he was indicted for bribery along with Connally.

Bye-Bye Bayh?

Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana is running into potentially serious problems in his reelection campaign against Indianapolis Mayor Richard Lugar, once described as President Nixon's "favorite" mayor.

Secret polls taken by the respected Cambridge Survey Research for Bayh show a steady increase in Lugar's support, while Bayh holds firm at 48 per cent. Thus, in May 1973, pollster Patrick Caddell pegged Lugar at 27 per cent, last November at 34 per cent and in his latest survey, completed in July, only 7 points behind Bayh: 41 per cent to Bayh's 48 per cent.

WASHINGTON — The big question everyone in Washington is asking this week is, "If for some reason President Nixon has to leave office, will Ron Ziegler be able to get his job back at Disneyland?"

The consensus among most Ziegler-watchers is that he will. One watcher who asked not to be mentioned by name because he still has relatives in Orange County, Calif., told me, "I've been watching Ziegler now for five years, and as far as I'm concerned he never left Disneyland. Ron is a born believer in fantasy and he knows how to treat everyone like children. The very virtues that made him one of the best guides at Disneyland are now paying off for him as spokesman for the President of the United States."

"But wouldn't the Disney people be hesitant about rehiring someone who worked in the White House?"

The Ziegler-watcher shook his head. "Ron was never involved with Watergate. He's clean as a hound's tooth. You want to know why?"

"Sure," I said. "Because they didn't trust him. They were afraid if they told him anything, he'd spill it. Everyone else in the White House apparently knew what the hell was going on except Ziegler. They treated him like a dum-dum and now they're all going to jail, and Ron has the last laugh."

"I've never seen Ron laugh," I said. "It was just a figure of speech," my friend replied. "Do you realize that next to Al Haig, the President depends more on Ziegler than any other person in his Administration?"

"Why is that?"

"Because Ron still believes everything the President tells him."

"You mean Ziegler's not putting us on when he says now that we have all the facts the only conclusion we can arrive at is that the President knew nothing about the cover-up?"

"In his heart he really believes it."

"How could he?" I asked.

"Because he worked at Disneyland. Anyone who believes in Mickey Mouse, Snow White and Donald Duck is going to believe Mr. Nixon's story. You can say what you want to about Ron, but he does have a lot of faith."

"Does he believe in the Easter bunny?"

"I don't think the Easter bunny was a Walt Disney creation," he replied.

"You know, sometimes when I watch Ziegler on television, I get the feeling he isn't telling the whole truth . . . that he's making things sound better than they really are," I said.

"And where do you think he learned that?" my friend asked.

"Disneyland?"

"Where else? Disney created a world of make-believe and illusion. When Ron moved to Washington he just took that world with him."

"You seem to have a grudging admiration for Ziegler," I said.

"I do. When Ron first started in his job he didn't know very much, and he said whatever they told him to. But now he's adding his own fantasies to Watergate and they are as good as any being put out in this country."

"So you think that no matter what happens to President Nixon, Ziegler won't have to worry about a job."

"I know it," my friend replied.

"How can you be so sure?"
"No one knows this, but Ziegler never quit his job at Disneyland. He just took a leave of absence."

Police & fire

Ruth Morgan reported to police that between 1 and 8 a.m. Thursday, her garage at 511 S. Locust St. was entered and a black tape player, two speakers and 10 tapes were taken from her 1965 car. The car and garage door were unlocked. No estimate of the loss was reported.

Three wooden ladders values at $300 were reported stolen from the Bilt-Rite Construction Co., Inc., 602 N. Morrison St., between July 25 and Thursday.

Daniel C. Ziesemer, 149 S. Lee St., reported a shooting incident that broke a kitchen window glass at his home at about 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Two .22-caliber bullets pierced the glass.

The shots came from a location west of the residence. A 17-year-old youth was arrested and later released to the custody of his adult brother.

Larry Kasel, a groundskeeper at Riverview Country Club, 1201 S. Oneida St., has reported the destruction of three greens by an auto between Wednesday and Thursday. Damage may exceed $500.

GRAND CHUTE — Mrs. Gerald Maertz, 818 Ridge Lane, told the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department that someone broke into her garage Tuesday or Wednesday and stole a racket and half-inch drive socket set, a yellow gold brooch set with a cameo and an old pocket watch. Total value of the stolen items is $249.

Payroll costs of state, local governments rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau reported Monday the biggest increase in 15 years in the amount of money state and local governments spend on salaries.

The report said higher wages and an increased number of state and local employees pushed the governments' total payrolls up by 14 per cent between October 1972 and October 1973. State and local government payroll costs totalled just over $8 billion.

The increase was the largest since the jump of 16.8 per cent in 1958. Total state and local government employment moved from 10.8 million to 11.4 million.

Nixon to quit: aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon summoned Vice President Gerald R. Ford to the White House today to inform him he has decided to resign from the nation's highest office, a presidential aide said today.

The aide refused to be identified, but he is in a position near the Oval Office.

His terse response — "Yes" — to a newsman came amid other strong indications that the Republican chief executive's 2,026-day presidency was plunging toward an imminent end.

Official White House spokesmen continued to refuse to divulge Nixon's plans. But other sources said it appeared likely Nixon would disclose his decision later today.

One knowledgeable White House official stopped just short of saying a final presidential decision had been made. "I'm 99 and 9-10 per cent certain, but who really knows?" this official said.

Nixon and Ford, the man he picked for the vice presidency after Spiro T. Agnew resigned last October, met alone in the Oval Office. The session

Nixon asks for broadcast time

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked for network television and radio time at 8 p.m. CDT today, an informed source said this morning.

began at 11:01 a.m. EDT on a grey, muggy summer day as the nation and the world awaited formal announcement of the embattled president's plans.

Hundreds of newsmen and photographers milled in the smoke-filled White House press room while the two leaders conferred in the guarded office 36 paces away.

Some sources said flatly Nixon had made the decision to step aside voluntarily rather than allowing the constitutional machinery to grind on toward impeachment.

But those aides closest to the President refused to make such a flat assertion — as did official spokesmen.

Shortly after Ford's office announced he was postponing a scheduled 12-day political trip to the Far West, correspondents were called into the White House briefing room by Deputy Press Secretary Gerald R. Warren.

Warren then announced that Nixon had "asked the vice president to come over for a private meeting."

A few minutes later, the meeting had begun. The two leaders were alone in the splendid solitude of the Oval Office.

Law requires that any presidential resignation be submitted to the secretary of state. And Secretary Henry A. Kissinger was called to the First Family's living quarters Wednesday night for a private meeting with Nixon that lasted until nearly midnight.

But officials denied speculation that the embattled Republican president had given Kissinger a letter of resignation. Kissinger returned to the White House before 9 a.m. EDT today, but aides said he did not meet again with Nixon.

A spokesman for Ford, meanwhile, said the Western trip was still on, and that the vice president would leave "late tonight or early Friday."

Ford was to attend a Republican tele-thon scheduled for broadcast to West Coast states from Los Angeles tonight. That affair was put off because of "the fast-changing situation in Washington," according to a party official. And the Ford spokesman said "That was the reason for our going today and that's the reason the trip's been postponed."

A White House spokesman also confirmed that Nixon met until nearly midnight Wednesday with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the man to whom Nixon would deliver a resignation if one is forthcoming.

Asked about the purpose of the Kissinger meeting in the White House living quarters, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said, "I have no way of knowing. I really have no way of knowing."

Kissinger returned to the White House today but reporters were told he had not met with Nixon. And Kissinger told one newsman he had not received a letter of resignation from the President, but declined further questions.

There was little change in the mood of anticipation throughout the Capital. Rumors continued unabated that Nixon already had decided to end his long political career.

One official close to the Oval Office when asked about the timing of a presidential decision, said,

"I wouldn't go on vacation today if I were you."

Other sources said Raymond K. Price, Nixon's top speechwriter, had been assigned the task of drafting an "appropriate speech."

But they said they didn't know when or if the speech would be delivered.

President given assessment

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said he and two other congressional leaders told President Nixon he could be sure of 15 votes for acquittal if the impeachment trial goes to the Senate.

Goldwater, R-Ariz., outlined the meeting in a conference telephone call from Washington, D.C., to 21 broadcast stations, The Associated Press and newspapers in Arizona.

He said he chose the telephone call over a Washington news conference because he was disgusted with the media in the nation's capital.

Nixon called Goldwater, House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania to the White House "to give our best estimate of what the picture was in both houses of Congress," Goldwater said.

"The reports made by Rhodes and Scott were not favorable to him," Goldwater said.

Rhodes said earlier Wednesday that impeachment "is a foregone conclusion" in the House, and Scott had said Nixon's situation in Congress was "very gloomy."

Goldwater told Arizona newsmen "In the Senate, after Monday night's disclosures, it's felt by those of us in that body that he might be able to collect 15 votes against impeachment.

"And I must add that I have not made up my mind yet as to whether to vote for impeachment or against it. I'd have to wait until there is a trial in the Senate to make up my mind."

"If it comes to a vote, I will serve as a juror and I will be guided by what I hear and what I believe," he said.

Goldwater said resignation was not discussed. "It never came up," the senator said.

"He made no indication as to when he might make such a decision," Goldwater added. "The options are to resign and stand trial. He gave no indication at all as to what course he would take."

Asked what he thought would be Nixon's best course of action, Goldwater said "I don't think it would be proper for me to say what I think. He didn't ask us our advice on that."

The senator said there was no discussion of a possible plea bargain to immunize the President from prosecution if he is impeached and convicted.

"That didn't come up today, and I haven't heard anything about it. We have asked for an opinion on that," Goldwater said.

Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate, said he would have handled Watergate differently than Nixon did. "To begin with, there would never have been any Watergate," the senator said.

"His biggest mistake was not immediately saying, 'All right, we goofed. This happened,' and presenting the evidence. If he'd done that a couple years ago, it would have been all over," Goldwater said.

When asked whether he would accept the vice presidency if Gerald R. Ford becomes president and offers it, Goldwater replied, "No man can say no to that question. Certainly any way I can serve my country, I'll serve my country. If I can serve it by being vice president, I would do it."

"But I can lay you odds he's not going to do it. I'm not buying any new clothes or anything like that."

Asked about his charges on the Senate floor Wednesday that two television networks had lied in news reports about him, Goldwater said: "I was on the floor of the Senate, or I'd have said what was really on my mind. I'm getting sick and tired of this press back here, telling lies and slanting the news."

Immunity from criminal charges possible for Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon faces possible criminal prosecution should he resign or be removed from office, but several escape routes may be open to him.

Congress or special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski could take steps to save Nixon from a criminal trial. So could Vice President Gerald R. Ford if he succeeds to the presidency.

Some legal experts believe Nixon could even pardon himself of all crimes before leaving office, but that is viewed as only a remote possibility.

Most constitutional scholars concede that a president cannot be indicted while in office, although it is not an undisputed legal principle.

The Watergate grand jury ducked the issue when it chose to name Nixon as an unnamed co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Nixon was accused as a coconspirator in the plot to block the original Watergate investigation and conceal the White House involvement in the break-in at Democratic national headquarters June 17, 1972.

Monday, he admitted ordering the investigation halted for political reasons and concealing the information from his lawyers and the House Judiciary Committee.

Some members of Congress say Nixon, in effect, confessed to obstructing justice, a crime carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Multiple counts and related charges would increase the potential penalties.

If Nixon resigns, he would be vulnerable to an indictment.

If he were convicted in an impeachment trial, he would be removed from office and similarly vulnerable because the Constitution states that "the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

To avoid that fate, Nixon could attempt to strike a deal with Jaworski. The President could offer to resign in exchange for the prosecutor's promise not to bring criminal charges. But the deal would not necessarily bind a grand jury.

The prosecutor's office refuses to comment on the possibility of plea bargaining. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said on Wednesday he is not aware of any ongoing negotiations. Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, said he is "not prepared to discuss it."

Congress also could act to save Nixon from criminal charges.

After meeting

Republican leaders Sen. Hugh Scott, left, Sen. Barry Goldwater, center, and Rep. John Rhodes walk from the White House Wednesday afternoon after a meeting with President

Warren named U.S. judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Robert Warren was appointed to a federal judgeship in Wisconsin's Eastern District by President Nixon today.

The appointment came amid reports that Nixon's resignation was imminent, and a spokesman for the President said that the appointment would go to the Senate for confirmation even if Nixon should step down.

The judgeship has been vacant since the retirement of Judge Robert Teahan of Milwaukee in June of 1971.

Wisconsin Republicans had originally recommended Rep. Glenn Davis, a long-time Nixon friend, for the appointment. But Davis was unable to win the endorsement of the American Bar Association, which rated him not qualified for the federal bench.

At length, Davis withdrew his name from consideration, and state Republican leaders proposed Warren for the appointment three months ago.

Warren, 48, was elected attorney general in 1968 and reelected to a four-year term in 1970.

He is Wisconsin's top elected Republican officeholder, and had long been regarded as the party's best prospect to run against Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey this year.

But Warren was also thought to be in line for the judicial appointment if Davis didn't get it, and as a result he postponed a decision on the gubernatorial race.

He ultimately announced that he would not seek the party's endorsement for governor, and after Davis withdrew his name, Warren's was submitted to the Justice Department. The American Bar Association quickly approved him as highly qualified for the appointment.

That endorsement is regarded as an indication that the Warren appointment should not run into difficulties in the Senate. Neither of Wisconsin's two Democratic senators, William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, is expected to oppose him.

Traditionally, federal judges are not confirmed over the opposition of senators from the appointee's state. Nelson's announced opposition to a Davis appointment was considered a crushing blow to his hopes of gaining the bench.

Warren, born in Raton, N.M., moved to Wisconsin as a boy and graduated from Sturgeon Bay high school then from Macalester College in St. Paul. He earned a master's degree from the University of Minnesota and a law degree from the University of Wisconsin.

Warren was Brown County district attorney and a state senator before being elected attorney general.

sign, said he hoped there would be a decision by Friday.

"I hope so and I think so," Griffin told newsmen.

Sources said presidential speechwriters were instructed four days ago to prepare material for a possible resignation statement.

Nixon himself has been publicly silent on the rapid erosion of his position since he admitted on Monday that he tried two years ago to thwart an FBI Watergate probe and then withheld that information from Congress and his own lawyer.

But he summoned three Republican congressional leaders to the White House Wednesday and was told his situation on Capitol Hill "is very gloomy" very distressing.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, who used those words after the 35-minute meeting with Nixon, also said, "I think the situation will be resolved within a matter of days."

"He did not give any indication one way or another of whether he is going to resign," Scott said.

"There has been no decision made," added Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona at a news conference on the White House lawn.

The third leader, House Republican Chief John J. Rhodes of Arizona, agreed: "There is no time element involved; there is no idea given as to what any final decision might be."

All three said Nixon stressed that "any decision he makes will be in the national interest."

There were these other developments:

—An Associated Press national survey found many top Republican party officials want Nixon to resign, saying his prompt departure would benefit the country and improve GOP prospects in the November congressional and gubernatorial elections.

—Rabbi Baruch Korff, head of Nixon's largest citizen-support group, said he expects the President to resign unless there is an immediate outpouring of support. A White House spokesman said the switchboard was so overloaded with calls "heavily weighed toward expressions of belief in the President" that a corps of volunteers had to be assigned to help answer them.

—The House approved a resolution clearing the way for radio and television coverage of impeachment debate scheduled to begin Aug. 19. "We can't act on the basis of rumors. We must portedly was seeking Democratic support for a resolution declaring "it is the sense of the Congress" that if Nixon should resign, no federal or state officer "should bring, conduct, or continue criminal or civil processes against him."

The resolution would not have the force of law, but Brooke said he believes all law enforcement officials would abide by it if the Congress passed it.

Asked about congressional moves to immunize Nixon, the attorney general said, "The only people who can interpret what the American people want is the Congress. I think they're aware of this and if it were handled in that manner, it would not be a legal question."

If any immunity proposal survives in Congress, it would most likely be a resolution rather than a law.

A congressional grant of immunity by statute probably would violate the Constitution, according to several legal experts. The Constitution gives the President, but not Congress, the "power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment."

Laird heads list claimed for Ford

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford has compiled a list of 14 potential candidates for vice president if Ford assumes the presidency, the Chicago Sun-Times said today.

The newspaper also said in a story from Washington that sources close to Ford indicate the vice president has already instructed members of his staff to prepare an inaugural address in the event President Nixon resigns.

The Sun-Times quoted one unidentified source described as a close Ford associate as saying that Ford is likely to praise Nixon for his selflessness in resigning, outline the successes of the Nixon administration and assure the nation that the President's foreign policy initiatives would be continued.

In Washington, Ford's press secretary, Paul Miltich, said the report that the vice president had ordered preparation of an inaugural speech was a "complete fabrication."

The Sun-Times said former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, of Marshfield, Wis., heads the all-Republican list of potential vice presidents under Ford.

The newspaper said Laird is followed by Rep. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota and former Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York.

It said the list also includes former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sens. Howard H. Baker Jr. and William E. Brock of Tennessee, Sen. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio, Sen. Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

The Sun-Times did not say where it obtained the list.

proceed on the basis that the debate will take place," said the chief sponsor, Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill.

—Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said today he is discussing with other senators the idea of introducing a sense of Congress resolution urging that President Nixon be granted immunity from prosecution if he resigns. It would not be binding on an attorney general or on special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, he said. "I think that the American public has the right to know exactly what has gone on in Watergate, but the spectacle of an American president going to jail really distresses me," Brooke said in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" program. And the Chicago Tribune said a former White House aide was discussing immunity for Nixon with key members of Congress.

—Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, saying he is reluctant to discuss impeachment publicly, said it is up to Nixon alone to decide whether to resign.

As rumors of an imminent resignation swept the capital, Nixon spent hours in private with his family and closest aides.

He talked alone with both his daughters. First, Julie Eisenhower came to his hideaway office, an Executive Office Building suite where shelves are lined with gavel and toy elephants and other memorabilia of his nearly three decades in political office.

British newsman killed by land mine in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A member of a British television crew was killed by a land mine and four other foreign newsmen and photographers were wounded today as a press convoy entered the town of Lapithos in northern Cyprus, newsmen who were in the convoy said.

A colleague said Ted Stoddard, a soundman for the British Broadcasting Corp., was killed when he stepped on the mine after getting out of the lead car in the four-car convoy.

Other newsmen in the group said the procession came under mortar and small arms fire from Turkish troops occupying Lapithos, near the Cyprus port of Kyrenia.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett, who was in the area but was not involved in the incident, said he saw one of the cars at the nearby town of Vassilia, where the wounded newsmen were driven. He said six bullet holes were in the hood, and the windshield was smashed. There was blood on the front seat.

The cars flew British, American and white flags.

The wounded newsmen are Paul Roque, a French photographer of The Associated Press; Chris Morris, a British correspondent of the BBC; Lefkos Christodoulides, an American of Greek descent on assignment for The New York Times; and Simon Dring, another Briton with the BBC.

The first three were evacuated through Greek lines to Vassilia, then rushed by Greek Cypriot national guardsmen to a hospital in Nicosia, the Cyprus capital 30 miles from Lapithos. Surgeons said they were out of danger after bullets and shrapnel were removed from their bodies.

Dring was evacuated through Turkish lines to a military hospital at Boghaz, where he was reported to have undergone emergency surgery for serious wounds.

Martin Fletcher, correspondent for the British television organization Vis-News, said he saw Stoddard step on a mine. Fletcher said he did not know if there had been shooting as well, but other newsmen said the convoy was attacked.

Fletcher said the four cars were entering Lapithos, after having passed the final Greek Cypriot checkpoint west of the town, when the journalists noticed evidence of mines planted in the road.

Last of White House tapes turned over to Judge Sirica

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last of the White House tapes ordered turned over by the Supreme Court, save for 10 that apparently don't exist, are in the hands of U.S. District Judge John Sirica.

In turning over the subpoenaed tapes on Wednesday, White House attorney James D. St. Clair said at least 10 of the 64 conversations covered by the subpoena from special prosecutor Leon Jaworski were never recorded because they took place over a telephone which had no recording device.

St. Clair appeared in court Wednesday to account for the final 31 tapes sought by the prosecutor for use in the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled for Sept. 9.

Among the conversations which St. Clair said were not taped are three phone calls between President Nixon and former aides H. R. Haldeman or John D. Ehrlichman.

Those conversations were on April 16, 17 and 19, 1973, nearly two weeks before the two aides resigned.

Another conversation St. Clair told Sirica was not taped was of a phone call between Nixon and another ex-assistant, Charles W. Colson, that took place June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

In explaining why the 10 conversations were never recorded, St. Clair said most took place from Nixon's bedroom telephone which had no recording device.

Of one of them, St. Clair said, "We cannot find any such conversation and do not believe it ever was recorded."

Venetian parade

WAUPACA — The Venetian parade, a flotilla of water craft, will cruise the lower Chain O' Lakes from Edmunds Dock to the end of Long Lake and back on Aug. 24.

There has not been a Venetian parade on the Chain for about a decade but for a number of years, it was a popular event for families vacationing nearby and for area residents.

"There have been many requests during the past few years to bring back the Venetian parade and this year the Chain O' Lakes Property Owners Association is doing it," according to Mrs. Robert K. Schmidt, who is cochairman with Mrs. Gordon Meikeljohn.

Owners of boats wishing to enter the parade are to meet at Edmunds Dock on Taylor Lake before 7 p.m., Aug. 24 and lake residents are to join with their crafts as the parade sails through Sunset, Rainbow, Nessling, McCrossen, Round, Columbia and Long lakes, then returns to Edmunds.

Skippers are encouraged to decorate their boats. Persons who wish to participate may call either Mrs. Schmidt or Mrs. Meikeljohn before Aug. 23.

Arrangements are being made for barbershop music and instrumental and vocal groups.

Clintonville seeks recreation director

CLINTONVILLE — The park and recreation commission is advertising for a director of parks and recreation for the city, aldermen learned Tuesday night.

The position opened when Earl Carlson resigned to move to Waupaca to enter business. Temporary assignments have been made to cover the areas involved. Ald. Leon Steenbock (1st), a member of the commission, stated.

According to a job description for the position of director, under general supervision, he is responsible for the complete operation of the municipal park and recreation department, including reporting on planning, organizing, assignment, supervision and all related functions.

Applicants must have graduated from a college or university with major course work in parks management, recreation or related fields and/or have two or more years of park and recreation work experience in a supervisory capacity.

Drainage, bids topics for council

MARION — A request for correction of a problem of street drainage was one of numerous minor matters to get the attention of the City Council this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Vilas Lehman appeared before the council to report that the curb and gutter on the street above their property is causing extensive water drainage onto their land. The council agreed to assess the water conditions after the rojd is completed and correct conditions as necessary.

Approval was given for installation of a mercury vapor light in the area behind the ball park.

The bid for fuel oil for the city hall was awarded to Schroeder Oil Co. of Tigergon.

Bids for a truck and body were opened. They will be given further study before a decision is made.

Martin Lutzewitz requested that the speed limit be reduced on W. Garfield Street leading to the swimming area at the pond. The police department was instructed to investigate the need and report its findings.

City Coordinator Donald Raisler was authorized to attend an assessor conference Sept. 3-6 at Cable.

School board eases suspensions given New London High athletes

NEW LONDON — Suspensions given June 6 to 22 senior high school athletes for violations of the athletic code were reduced Monday when the board of education met in a special session.

The athletes, who were charged with breaking training rules under board policies set May 13, were reported to have been involved in beer parties toward the end of the school year.

The charges were brought by other students. The school athletic council, comprised of the athletic director and members of the coaching staff, suspended 22 of the 31 students for three athletic events each. Students were also taken off merit for next year.

In a series of motions after an executive session Monday, the board reduced the penalties for this group of offenders, changed some sections of the recently revised codes, and said it would appoint a committee to study a code of conduct for all students.

Some parents reportedly had brought pressure against the athletic department, asking that their children's suspensions be reduced to one event, or dropped totally.

The board reduced the suspensions to two matches, and said the athletes could remain on merit next year. But board President Robert Gabriel said the reduced penalties were only for the June 6 suspensions, and would not affect future violators.

However, the board voted to appoint a committee of two parents, two teachers, two students and one administrator to study a possible student code of conduct, and to report recommendations to the board.

The committee will be named later, Gabriel said.

The board also voted to amend the athletic code, saying other students could not report violations, and setting a procedure to be followed in notifying parents of pending charges.

Violations now must be reported in writing to the athletic director, and can only be reported by members of the teaching staff or by city, county and state law enforcement agencies.

Clintonville moves to stop dumping at pit, firearms use

CLINTONVILLE — Signs will be erected and notices published prohibiting the dumping of garbage and refuse in the old gravel pit and the use of firearms at the airport, according to a report to the City Council Tuesday night by Ald. Leon Steenbock, chairman of the board of public works.

It was pointed out that the gravel pit is not licensed for a landfill and fires there twice have necessitated calling out the fire department.

Police Chief M. M. Bodoh reported that an outdoor range is being set up, which then could be opened up to sight-in rifles. The illegal shooting at the airport has caused concern due to the ricocheting of the shells.

The board of public works has given ZIM-KAR permission to process chickens at its plant for approximately six months until it can start processing rabbits. However, if there is excess grease or feathers or other problems, the city will refuse to accept the firm's sewage.

The board of public works will have a public hearing Aug. 28 at city hall on petitions for curb and gutter on Pine Street and Riverside Drive. Blacktopping of the streets, which have been prepared, is expected to begin soon.

Chilton council accepts parking site

CHILTON—The City Council Tuesday night agreed to accept a parcel of land, on W. Main Street from the chamber of commerce to be developed into a parking lot. The land lies between Winkler Oil Co. and Karls' Plumbing store.

Nyles Papendieck and Ed Sohrweide told the council that the chamber would purchase the lot from the Commercial Bank and donate it to the city to be developed for parking space.

Studies have shown that the area could accommodate about 22 to 28 cars. The entrance to the parking area would be on Main street, with exits into the alley behind the lot.

Public works director Walter Muehl explained that developing the lot would involve filling, blacktopping and the installation of retaining walls.

The council plans to develop the lot, which contains about 65 feet of frontage, within the next 18 months.

In other action, the council accepted Steve Cota's resignation as assistant public works director. Cota, who began his work in Chilton in May of this year, has accepted a position in Peshtigo.

Norman Corenon of Channer-Newman Securities Co., Chicago, was present to discuss a loan of approximately $900,000 from his company to finance proposed city projects.

Corenon explained that there would be no fee for the company's services.

He offered alternative proposals that would delay principal payments for either one or two years.

Ald. Rueben Schultz, chairman of the finance committee, said his committee will meet soon with representatives of two other finance companies to compare proposals.

Ald. Andrew Pendl, chairman of the parks committee, reported that his committee met recently with the Calumet County Fair Association and had not yet agreed on the cost to the association for facilities and police protection during the county fair.

He noted that costs to the city will be higher this year because a new state law requires that a woman be hired to Man sought in stabbing found dead

The body of an Appleton man, who was being sought in connection with a stabbing incident in Kimberly, was found at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in a hay field about three miles south of Green Bay.

Russell L. Seidl, 21, 312 S. Telulah Ave., apparently took his own life.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by a deputy coroner from Brown County. The coroner said the victim had been dead for six to eight hours.

His body was discovered by Marvin Kempen, who owns the farm where the victim was found lying beside a truck.

The truck was the same one that police authorities from five departments in two counties pursued in connection with the stabbing of David Kemps, 817 E. Kimberly Ave., Kimberly, early Wednesday.

Kemps and a girl friend were sitting in their car on Kennedy Avenue, Kimberly, which is under construction. The couple was approached by a man claiming to be a security guard from a warehouse which he said was just broken into.

The man asked Kemps to open the trunk and hatchback door of his car. While Kemps was complying with the request, he was stabbed with a knife twice in the back and once in the chin for no apparent reason.

A fight then broke out and the assail-

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

New charges, citing specific cases of alleged misconduct, were filed Wednesday against Outagamie County Health Center Supt. Eugene K. Speener by the center board of trustees.

The complaint alleging the charges was signed by James Bayorgeon, Kaukauna attorney who was retained by the trustees last March to investigate Speener in his role as health center superintendent.

The new complaint was served on Speener and his attorney, Dennis Herrling, immediately after Brown County Circuit Judge William Duffy denied a petition for a writ of prohibition filed by Herrling to block a hearing scheduled for today on earlier charges against Speener.

However, today's hearing was postponed, as Duffy granted a temporary stay to permit Herrling to appeal his ruling to the state Supreme Court. A new hearing was set for 9 a.m. Aug. 21.

Herrling, after quickly reading the new charges, indicated he may not appeal Duffy's ruling "because it appears the new charges answer my complaint." He said he would make his decision after studying the new charges in detail.

Herrling had sought the writ of prohibition to block today's hearing on the grounds that the charges against Speener were not specific enough for him to prepare an adequate defense and that this would result in a denial of due process of law for Speener.

The hospital superintendent was, charged with misconduct, malfeasance, neglect, inefficiency and dereliction in office.

In the new set of charges, Speener is charged with misconduct in granting a pay increase to an employee on Jan. 1, 1973 "without approval of the county board or board of trustees" and that on other occasions he gave unauthorized pay increases to the superintendent of nurses and assistant superintendent of the health center.

He also is charged with misconduct in making personal long distance telephone calls and charging them to the county in 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1973 and that he continued to do so after being specifically ordered not to do so.

He is charged with inefficiency and neglect in administering personnel practices and procedures in that he "promoted individuals to positions for which they were not qualified, terminated employees without giving them prior notification... refused or disallowed shift changes for employees on the grounds that vacancies were not available and at the same time advertised for additional employees to fill vacancies which present employees wished to fill; failed to pay terminated employees amounts which they had due or accrued to them, and delivered to some, but not all, employees paychecks in advance.

Eight specific travel vouchers are cited for which there was no documentation, was submitted for verification and that two of the travel vouchers appeared to be for the same trip. "The said Eugene K. Speener has been reimbursed in an amount double to the expenses allegedly incurred on said trip."

Because of the practices, the complaint states, there is no "adequate method or procedure whereby determination can be made that public funds are in fact being used for public purposes... and that in addition... there have been instances of expenditures donated in private funds, specifically, the Outagamie County Hospital Patient's Fund and Gate Fund, apparently for purposes for which said donations were not intended."

During the hearing on his writ of prohibition, Herrling had charged that it was the trustees, and not Speener, who should be charged for failing to specify Speener's duties. "The trustees are guilty of malfeasance," Herrling said.

Duffy, in denying the writ, said that the writ of prohibition "was not the proper remedy" in this case. Citing a Supreme Court ruling in another case, he said it would be "premature to assume" that the trustees would not "sharpen up" the charges to permit a proper defense. He noted that you cannot rule in advance on what a body might do. "There has been no action by the board to indicate that the petitioner's rights will be ignored," Duffy said.

However, he agreed that Herrling should have sufficient time to appeal his ruling if he so desired.

Last year the fair association paid the city $850 for facility use and police protection. Police protection alone runs more than $800, Ald. Peggy Hemauer said.

She also reported, as chairman of the health, sanitation and welfare committee, on an inspection tour of the Manitowoc River from the Carnation Co. on the east city limits to the fairgrounds on the west.

The committee concluded that a general cleanup be done behind the railroad tracks behind Knauf and Tesch. This work, which included removing dead trees and trash, was completed by Boy Scouts Troop 2 and Jeff Schumacher, a city worker.

The committee also recommended that the fair association be notified to arrange for hauling away animal wastes on a daily basis.

Other recommendations of the committee included a proposal for a setback in conjunction with the floodplain concerning fill along the river bank, and that there be a total community effort for continuous cleanup of rat harborage areas.

Walter Muehl, Rodney Ronk, Lyle Kurtz and Reuben Schultz were appointed to a committee to investigate possible sites for a new city well.

The council approved the annexation of the Vogt property to become part of the 4th Ward of the city, zoned as I-2 (industrial), and agreed to pay Vogt $1 per foot for an easement for water and sewer construction through the property.

East, west play-off action starts Sunday in BABA

Play-offs in the eastern and western divisions of the Badger Amateur Baseball Association begin Sunday.

Marion will play at Shawano and Gresham will be at Clintonville in eastern division openers. Shawano won the championship and Clintonville was runner-up. It was Shawano's first division title since 1971.

Bowler and Big Falls, first and second teams, respectively, in the western division, also will be at home Sunday. Third place Leopold will play at Bowler while Big Falls will entertain the winner of a special play-off game between Caroline and Tigerton at 8 p.m. Aug. 16 at Tigerton.

Caroline received a favorable ruling on its protested game played at Tigerton July 12. The protest was based on an ineligible player, and Caroline was declared winner. The revision of the final standings left both teams with 5-8 records and a tie for the fourth and final play-off berth.

Sunday's games at Bowler and Clintonville will start at the usual 2 p.m. time but the games at Shawano and Big Falls will be delayed until 2:30 p.m. because of the Marion homecoming parade Sunday.

Winners of Sunday's games will advance to the divisional finals Aug. 18. The east-west play-off is scheduled Aug. 25. The western division representative will be host for the game. The BABA semi-finals are slated for Sept. 1 and the grand championship will be decided Sept. 8.

Marion is defending BABA grand champion. Marion beat the Polar Cubs of the Langlade County division by a 9-1 score at Marion last year to win the title in the 38-team organization. It was Marion's third championship.

Calumet panel okays application for state aids for police rescue boat

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent correspondent

CHILTON — The Calumet County Protection of Persons and Property Committee Wednesday afternoon authorized Officer Warren Jodar to apply for state funds for the purchase, operation and maintenance of a police patrol rescue boat for Lake Winnebago.

Chairman Carl Wilberscheid said that authorizing the application should not be "implied as going ahead" with the purchase of a boat as this action is reserved for the county board.

Wilberscheid said the committee had been "getting a lot of flack" because the county does not have a boat and agreed that something should be done in this direction. He also said a boat-house should be built at the county park near Stockbridge.

A letter from Supv. George Holz-knecht, Appleton, urged the purchase of a patrol rescue boat, noting that if one life were saved every year, the cost would be worth it. He also pointed out that many of the county's taxpayers live along the lakeshore and having this service would make the county attractive to people.

Holz-knecht quoted Bill Ritchie, captain of the Neenah police boat, who stressed the need for rescue service and said that 62 per cent of the cost had been returned there.

Jodar, who serves as the boat patrol officer, said funding is not available unless it is used for patrolling and rescue work.

A patrol schedule would have to be drawn up and the application made by Sept. 1. All expenses connected with the boat are 75 per cent reimbursable, plus 12½ per cent depreciation per year for eight years. It has been estimated that total cost to the county would be about $15,000, plus $4,000 a year with 75 per cent reimbursable.

No problems are expected with the union regarding manning the boat. Water patrolmen will be paid "straight time" and only one on the boat has to be deputized.

Jodar reported that he had been unsuccessful in obtaining a Landing Craft Vehicle and Personnel (LCVP) government surplus boat through the Civil Defense.

A landing craft of this type would be ideal, according to Eldor Gilbertson, a former Navy man. Surplus vehicles, when available, are given free to municipalities. Jodar said he would continue his search and would investigate a report that 300 boats were available.

Gilbertson reported that he had been authorized by the county park commission to have Jodar place the buoys on Lake Winnebago. Jodar explained that he did not have a boat and was concerned about possibly damaging one loaned to do the job.

Supv. Julius Schmidt, representative of Sherwood and Harrison, agreed to loan his boat and Wilberscheid and Schmidt said they would assist Jodar with the installation of the buoys.

In a related matter, Sheriff Ted Pagel informed the committee that the bill for mileage and meals for Jodar when he attended a Department of Natural Resources water safety school in Oshkosh on his day off had failed to get approval of the finance committee. The bill had been approved by the protection of persons and property committee.

Pagel said that because other officers are paid for extra duties, he thought it proper to submit a bill for Jodar's time. Pagel said Jodar used his own car and paid for the gasoline.

Asked why Pagel didn't take his car, (he went with Jodar), the sheriff said he had 42,000 miles on his car in 1½ years and appreciated it when he had an opportunity to ride with someone else.

Wilberscheid told Jodar that the request for time payment was rejected but the meals bill would be allowed. Jodar was also told to take some gasoline from the county's supply to replace the gas for which he himself had paid because the mileage had been rejected.

County committee backs data processing lease plan

On a 3-2 vote, the Outagamie County Finance Committee has recommended that the county lease data processing equipment rather than contract for the service from a service bureau.

Supv. John Hennessy, who cast the deciding vote, said he would support the lease plan only if a table of organization establishing a single person in charge of the program was included in the resolution accepting the lease.

Supvs. John Schreiter and Gene Retzlaff had supported accepting a proposal from Action Data, Inc., of Appleton to do the county's data processing work, while Supvs. Joseph DeBruin and Irving Iversen had backed the leasing arrangement.

The decision came after a comparison of bids from two service bureaus with a low bid lease proposal made by NCR nearly a year ago, but which the firm has agreed to maintain through the end of this year.

Action Data had submitted a bid proposal that would cost the county $27,470 annually to do payroll, tax billing, alimony and support and general ledger accounts, except accounts payable. In addition, there would be a one-time setup charge of $2,300.

The other bid was from Data, Inc., of Green Bay which had bid on a unit basis. Robert Steffen, systems analyst in the county executive's office, said that based on his estimate on the number of units involved, the annual cost would be $38,106. There would be a one-time setup charge of $1,282.

A representative of Action Data estimated that it would cost about $6,000 a year additional if the accounts payable were added to the program.

NCR's base lease bid was for about $22,000 a year. But County Executive Alvin Woehler indicated there was additional equipment to increase flexibility and capability that he would like which would raise the lease cost to about $38,000 a year.

The four categories on which Action Data bid were the four that the county is doing on its own equipment. That equipment is at capacity and is considered obsolete.

Woehler argued that if the county had its own equipment, it could expand its programs into many other areas, such as highway, social services, sheriff's department and hospital without having to negotiate new contracts with an outside firm.

He said the county has a "mother government responsibility to its municipalities." He said the county has had a number of requests from other units of government to do more data processing work for them and that two cities are holding up purchasing that equipment to see what the county will do. "We can do this work for these people," he said.

The executive also contended that the county would have to hire only one additional person, a key punch operator, to operate the program.

Members of the finance committee strongly questioned that point. Retzlaff said he found it "hard to believe." And Hennessy felt they would need at least two people.

DeBruin noted that the purchase of service proposal would only transfer what the county was already doing. "I thought the object was to add new programs," he said.

Retzlaff argued that the service agreement would only be the basis for future expansion at a point when the county would get its own equipment.

Hennessy said his primary concern was the transition from the present system to a new one. "I can't see the transition being as orderly as forecast," he said. "We don't have the personnel requirements in black and white. There is no way we can go into data processing and not have one person responsible." He said he did not want to see another shredder plant situation occur.

A report from the river improvement committee stated that the city had received only one bid for the repair of the wall along a portion of the Pigeon River from the dam to behind the Red Owl store. The bid was rejected because the cost was higher than the budget figure.

Ald. Robert Kitzman (2nd) said that in view of this, the committee did not believe it should reveal the name of the bidder or the amount because plans are to advertise again for bids.

Aldermen approved a recommendation from the police and fire commission to accept the bid from Krueger Paint and Hardware, Clintonville, for one Smith and Weston 357 magnum at a price of $127.

A letter was read from the police and fire commission inquiring of the council's action to expedite the fulfilling of the police car contract with Kuehl Motors. The letter stated that it was reported that the cars are stalling and that the police are having difficulty getting them restarted, and that the police department should have had squad car replacements months ago.

City Atty. Ralph Lauer stated that he started court action against Kuehl Motors some time ago and the matter will be coming up after Aug. 20.

A letter from the association of commerce regarding a youth center was referred to the park and recreation commission.

A letter from Doris Abrahamson to Mayor Kenneth Suehring asking about plans the city might be making for the bicentennial in 1976 was referred to the historical committee.

Suehring reported that he will be at the city hall on Aug. 17 to meet with citizens regarding city affairs.

Prior to adjourning, discussion was held on printing the council's agenda in the official city newspaper the week before the council meeting. The clerk pointed out that he can only put on the agenda what is turned in to him by the various boards, commissions and committees and usually he does not get this information until a day or two before the scheduled council meeting. Also some of the meetings of the groups are not held until several days before the council meeting.

A motion was passed to have the agenda printed on a trial basis and containing whatever information is available at the time of publication.

It was the understanding of the aldermen that additions may be made to the agenda for the council meeting.

Chief M. M. Bodoh. Regular collections were $603 and fines amounted to $42.

Other fines paid, which are reported for June, totaled $1,227.

Eighteen arrests were made in July, of which six were for speeding; two each for operating a vehicle while intoxicated and having an expired registration; and one each for failure to stop at a stop sign, inattentive driving, defective muffler, expired driver's license, violation of driver's license restriction, driving a motorcycle without license, permitting unauthorized person to operate a cycle and disorderly conduct.

Checks collected for merchants totaled $165.

Five cases of vandalism and four of breaking and entering were reported. One case of auto theft was handled and three runaways were apprehended.

During July, there were five city fire calls and two rural calls. Warnings were issued on 10 dogs or cats.

Other activities reported by the police department last month included two arrests made for other departments, seven blood runs, 14 accidents, eight accidents reported to other departments, 15 escorts, nine out-of-state vehicles checked, 13 doors or windows found open, 192 calls handled, 35 rescue calls, six conservation department calls received, and two sets of fingerprints taken.

Miles driven for the month were 5,005. Two members of the police department attended pistol shoots at Shawano and New London.

Clintonville's record of 13 years' record of pedestrian death cited

CLINTONVILLE — This city's 13-year record without a pedestrian fatality was recognized Tuesday afternoon by the Wisconsin Division of the American Automobile Association.

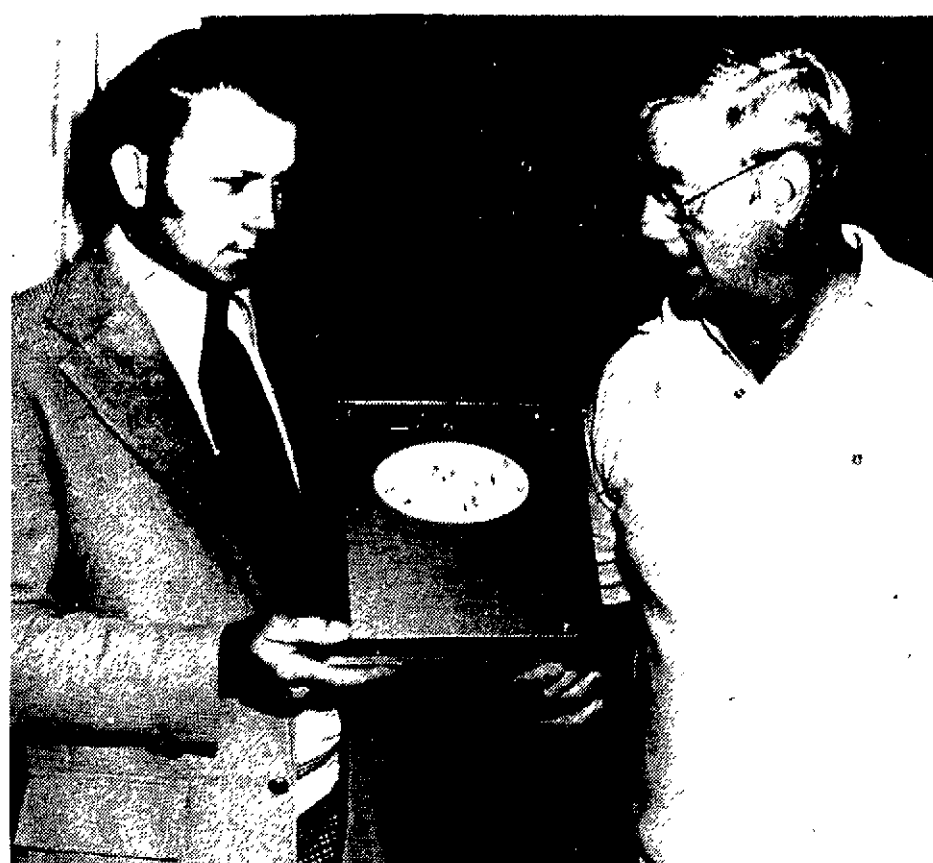

Francis J. Eckerman, director of safety for the state organization, presented a plaque to Police Chief M. M. Bodoh and Mayor Kenneth Suehring as an award for the city's pedestrian protection program.

Eckerman stated, in part, in a letter to Suehring, "It is most gratifying to those of us in AAA to note the continued emphasis that your community is placing on pedestrian safety. You are to be commended for this effort and the fine record you have achieved."

Registration Aug. 22

CLINTONVILLE — The public schools will have kindergarten registration on Aug. 22 for youngsters who did not register last March. To be eligible, children must be 5 by Dec. 1.

Parents who plan to register children may call Mrs. Esther Wisniewski for an appointment.

Outstanding record

work is being done on maps for assessment purposes. The matter of replacing or redrafting those maps, drawn up in 1954, to bring them up to date was referred to the board of public works.

Referred to the safety committee was a report of complaints on the stop sign at Auto and First streets, which allows a right turn with no stop, and an effort to find a desirable location on city property to display the National Guard unit to allow a public information sign.

Also referred to the safety committee was a suggestion that the intersection of E. 14th and Avenue streets be made a four-way stop in view of the increased traffic due to the new medical clinic.

Ald. Robert Kitzman told the council that the application for an ambulance grant has been sent to the Wisconsin Division of Highway Safety Coordination.

Steve Latza, 83 E. first St., asked the council about what he described as a mobile home near the east end of first street — stating that the council last fall refused permission to locate a mobile home there. City Atty. Ralph Lauer told Latza he directed Basil Arvey, who is the building inspector, to issue the permit.

Lauer said that the home located there doesn't meet statutory requirements for a mobile home and complies with the zoning.

Considerable discussion followed with Latza contending that the structure is a mobile home.

Steenbock said, "It appears we have hit on a gray area of our ordinances. This is technically not a mobile home, according to statute."

The building in question was hauled to the site, with one half inside the other, then put in place at the site and finished, according to information given at the council meeting during the discussion.

Ald. Ed Wanta asked the assessor how he will assess it. Lindow said, "As real estate."

The matter was referred to the ordinance committee.

ant fled the scene in the truck. He managed to elude officers from the Appleton, Kimberly, Kaukauna and Litchfield police departments, as well as Brown County Sheriff's Department officers.

Kemps was transported to St. F. beth Hospital in Appleton. The serious wounds were not serious and Kemps was treated and later released from the hospital.

Kemps reportedly did not know Seidl.

Seidl was married and had one child. Neighbors report that he did not appear to be under any kind of stress. "He would always bid you the time of day," one of them said. He had been living at the residence for about a year.

Detective Captain Jerome H. Kavaney of the Appleton Police Department said Seidl had no previous criminal record. Seidl had served with the U. S. Marine Corps.

In addition to his widow and child, his parents, paternal grandparents Seidl is survived by three brothers and a sister.

The funeral will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Holy Angels Church, Darboy, with burial in the parish cemetery.

Visitation will be from 3 to 9 p.m. Friday and after 8 a.m. Saturday until the time of services at the Ellenbecker-Andersen Funeral Home.

Formality of impeachment vote all that's left

House Republican leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona tells newsmen Tuesday that he will vote for the impeachment of President Nixon, saying no person, not even the President, is 'above the law,' and 'coverup of criminal activity and misuse of federal agencies can neither be condoned nor tolerated.'

WASHINGTON (AP) — One by one they took their stand on the impeachment of President Nixon, and at the end of the day it was clear the vote in the House will be a mere formality.

From Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona to freshman Rep. Robert E. Bauman of Maryland, a number of House Republicans announced their support for impeachment, many of them calling for Nixon's resignation as well.

The list included all 10 Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee who had voted against the articles of impeachment that will be brought to the House floor Aug. 19.

Their statements, issued in response to Nixon's admission that he withheld evidence linking him to the Watergate cover-up, left no doubt Tuesday that Nixon faces a Senate trial and possible removal from office if he does not resign.

And despite repeated statements from the White House that Nixon will not resign, the belief persists on Capitol Hill that it remains a possibility, especially if there is a heavy House vote for impeachment.

Rhodes said at a news conference he felt Nixon would resign whenever he felt he was unable to govern. Asked to evaluate Nixon's ability to govern now, Rhodes said, "I would say it has been sadly impaired."

The hopelessness of Nixon's situation in the House was underscored by Rhodes' response to a question as to whether there was anything the President could do to save himself.

"I suppose there might be, but right now I couldn't say. I'm at a loss to know," he said.

Meanwhile, administration and congressional sources said the disclosures by Nixon had been prompted in part by St. Clair, who had learned last week that Nixon had withheld important evidence from him.

The sources said St. Clair told Nixon "You make a statement or I will," after which the decision was made to release the material.

The surge in support for impeachment brought with it a marked release in tension among House Republicans, who had been dreading the coming vote. Although they made frequent references to the sorrow and anguish of their decision, they found comfort in the numbers of their colleagues joining them.

"Obviously, it relieves the pressure on a number of members who were just on the brink, who were beside themselves," said Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill.

So strong was the surge, members reported it was hard to find anyone who still opposed impeachment. "I don't think there will be anybody in the House who will vote against impeachment," said Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich.

But reporters found one in Rep. Earl F. Landgrebe, R-Ind., who said his support for Nixon is unshakable.

"I'm going to stick with my President even if he and I have to be taken out of this building and shot," said Landgrebe.

He said a lynch mob frenzy had swept the House following Nixon's disclosure that he knew of the Watergate cover-up long before the March 21, 1973, date he spoke of in repeated public addresses.

"Even if he lied or obstructed justice, where's the disadvantage?" asked Landgrebe. "No traumatic thing is happening to the country."

Few members shared that view, however. Rep. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., called Nixon's conduct in the Watergate affair "an appalling betrayal of his responsibility to his country."

Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J., said the whole country is paying the price of Watergate because "many decisions at the White House have been made on the basis of self-interest rather than with the welfare of our country foremost in mind."

In other reaction to impeachment developments:

— Rabbi Baruch Korff assured Nixon of his continued support in a meeting in Nixon's office. In a statement issued through his National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, Korff said, "This President will go down in history as the greatest president of the century."

— California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Nixon should subject himself to interrogation by the House during impeachment proceedings and answer any questions the lawmakers have.

— Reflecting the latest impeachment developments, the stock market pulled away to strong morning gains, then dropped nearly half the advance.

— The U.S. dollar remained steady on European money markets and some foreign exchanges reported what was felt to be the increased possibility of Nixon's resignation had helped to strengthen the U.S. currency after months of unease.

As a means of inducing a favorable attitude toward resignation in the White House, some members revived talk of legislation that would grant Nixon immunity from criminal prosecution.

The proposal was quickly squelched, however, by Rhodes and Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee.

Rhodes said he doubted that Congress had any authority to grant immunity, which is a power reserved to the executive branch. "It wouldn't be worth the paper it was written on," he said.

Conable said he thought it was especially important to grant immunity.

Nixon's top aide confers with Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's spokesman declined today to say whether Nixon would meet with a delegation of Republican congressional leaders to discuss mounting demands for his resignation.

"We would meet that situation when it occurs, and it hasn't," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said at a news briefing. "If such a request comes in, it would be given due consideration."

Earlier today, Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr., met with Vice President Gerald R. Ford to discuss rapidly occurring events related to the presidency.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., told reporters today that several Republican senators have contacted Nixon and urged him to resign. "To my knowledge, no response has been received," Brooke said.

As Warren met with reporters, top Republican leaders were preparing to meet to decide whether to send a delegation to warn Nixon he faces the growing likelihood of conviction in an impeachment trial if he does not resign.

quoting "a reliable source close to the President," said in a story from Washington that Nixon already has made the decision to resign.

When asked about reports that some Republican senators believed Nixon did not have any clear picture of the depth of his difficulties, Warren responded: "In all respect to the senators, they are wrong in that regard. If they believe the President is not getting the message, they are wrong."

Warren again declined to say flatly that Nixon would not resign: "I have no reason to add anything today to what has been said before."

When asked whether any direct or indirect plea bargaining is underway, Warren said, "I know of no discussion about that whatsoever in the White House...I think I would know if that were taking place."

The meeting in Ford's office was requested by Haig, said Ford's press secretary, Paul Miltich.

Miltich said the two men "exchanged views on the current situation" but refused to elaborate, saying, "that's all I can tell you."

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked whether Haig's request for a meeting was at the President's instructions, responded, "I'm sure it is at the President's behest." He said Ford and Haig had been meeting often, although the last previously announced session was about a week ago.

Between towers

French professional stuntman Philippe Petit carries a balance pole as he walks across a tightrope suspended between New York's World Trade Center twin towers early today. Petit,

who had performed similar stunts in Paris and Australia, hung by his heels at one point and crossed the cable twice. (AP wirephoto)

Tower power sparks high-wire hijinks

NEW YORK (AP) — A 24-year-old daredevil from France walked a tightrope for a half hour between the rooftops of the World Trade Center's twin 110-story towers this morning, balancing on a metal cable seven-eighths of an inch in diameter.

"If I see three oranges, I have to juggle," Philippe Petit told authorities later. "And if I see two towers, I have to walk."

The stunt thrilled the curious below as Petit stood, lay down and at one point hung by his feet, police said. Police rushed to the rooftops to apprehend him and when it was over they took him to a hospital's mental ward for examination.

Police at the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey said he had performed similar feats in Paris and Australia.

Petit's walk atop the 1,350-foot-high buildings almost doubled the previous record for the highest tightrope walk. The Guinness Book of World Records lists the walk of Karl Wallenda over the 750-foot-deep Tallulah Gorge in Georgia in 1970 as the previous record.

In Paris, Petit had walked between the towers of the Cathedral of Notre Dame; in Australia it was the towers of the Sydney Harbor Bridge, according to David Forman. Petit and his friends — at times

there were six — played the roles of delivery men, workers, or messengers, Forman said.

Petit and an assistant spent the night on the south tower's rooftop, hidden at first under a tarpaulin. Two other friends with cameras stayed on the north tower. At dawn, they used a five-foot longbow to fire a fishing line attached to the cable across the 90 feet that separates the structures, Forman said. At about 7 a.m., the stunt began.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted a $300 million cut in U.S. military aid for South Vietnam, in what proponents called notice for the Thieu regime to negotiate a political settlement with Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

Authorities search for bomb clues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities are inspecting heaps of debris in an effort to determine who placed a bomb that killed two persons and injured 36 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Federal aviation officials said the explosion on Tuesday was believed the largest ever to hit an airline terminal in the United States and the first to kill anyone.

The blast apparently occurred inside one of 20 public, coin-operated wall lockers in the Pan American World Airways section of the International Carriers Terminal, police said.

Officials said they could conceive of no motive for the explosion and had no leads. They ruled out, for the moment, the possibility that radical groups were involved.

William A. Sullivan, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, speculated that the person who planted the bomb which exploded on Tuesday "may have wanted to take it on a plane" but was frustrated by tight security at the terminal entrance.

Officials said there was no warning of the blast, but afterward some other airlines received false bomb threats.

Several flights were canceled or rerouted and one Pan Am flight, to Hawaii, was detained immediately after the blast. Airport operations were back to normal seven hours later.

The explosion killed Harper Glass, 64, of Inglewood, a skipjack who was walking past the bank of wall lockers, and Leonard Hsu, 47, of Los Angeles, a Pan Am employee.

Among the injured was the Rev. Rhett Patrick Shaughnessy, who had a leg amputated. Sixteen other persons were hospitalized.

"The first thing I saw was an orange flash and then I heard a noise that was unbelievable," said John Rich, an Pan Am service representative who was standing behind a wall six feet away.

Cathleen Wylder of Tarzana, Calif., was seeing her daughter, Linda, 24, off on a Hawaiian vacation when the blast hurled the young woman toward a baggage counter.

"I looked and saw her flying through the air," Mrs. Wylder said. "Her head went into the counter and I thought she had been killed. I leaned over her and she was rigid, like she was dead. I started screaming. Then she opened her eyes and talked to me." She was not seriously injured.

Police investigator Michael Strong said, "It was a scene of utter devastation."

made in a $83.4 billion defense appropriation bill approved by the House 350
to 43 on Tuesday and sent to the Senate.

The House voted down initial funds
for a new binary nerve gas weapon criticized as too costly and a possible threat to international chemical warfare control.

An effort to cut the defense bill $2.5
billion across the board was rejected.
So was one to write off the 10-year-old
$5 billion Safeguard antimissile system
as a failure.

The $300 million cut in U.S. military aid to South Vietnam was approved 233
to 157 over opponents' contention the cut would be interpreted by Hanoi as a weakening, if not abandonment, of U.S.
support of South Vietnam.

But the cuts' cosponsors, Reps. John
J. Flynt, D-Ga., and Robert N. Giaimo,
D-Conn., said it was needed to put pressure on South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu to stop trying to fight the North Vietnamese and to work out the political settlement they said
was directed by the 1972 Vietnam
cease-fire.

"We must say, 'We're serving notice
on you that we're cutting you down to $700 million which is enough for you to defend yourselves and sit down and work out a political settlement,'" Giaimo said.

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., read
a letter from Secretary of State Henry
A. Kissinger saying such a cut would undermine South Vietnam's ability to defend itself against the North.

All $5.8 million initial funding for the new binary nerve gas projectile was cut out of the bill by a vote of 214 to 186
despite backers' contention the new gas
weapons would be safer to handle and
store than existing weapons.

The new weapons were to hold relatively harmless chemical compounds in separate chambers which when mixed
together create a deadly nerve gas.

The amendment to knock initial production money out of the bill was made
by Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., who said they would cost up to $2 billion
when the U.S. stockpile of 50 million pounds of nerve gas is adequate for all future needs.

Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, D-
Wis., of the House National Security Affairs subcommittee, said hearings into
the new binary weapons produced testimony from several administration officials that they would complicate efforts
in Geneva to negotiate international chemical warfare control.

knowledge that presidential resignation remains a possibility.

"Sure it is — all options are open,"
said one source.

Another agreed, saying that despite Nixon's vow to his cabinet Tuesday that he has no intention of resigning "the situation is fluid. We don't know what is going to happen."

The sources' comments in interviews reflected the clearly perceptible mood of uncertainty cloaking the corridors and cubby holes where the President's men work.

One after another, Nixon aides responded with a sigh or a shrug of their shoulders when asked what could or would happen next.

Some said they thought the wave of resignation and impeachment demands would subside. Others weren't too sure and privately were glum about the President's chances of clinging to the nation's highest office.

Washington Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward reported, meanwhile, that "There are guarded statements and reluctant confirmations, generally in the most restrained language, that the President is under great psychological strain."

They quoted one source as saying: "I don't mean to be alarmist, and it has to be said delicately, but the President will not listen to anyone, not really listen. . . He's serene, I'd say serene, but not in touch with reality."

Woodward and Bernstein said the source had first-hand knowledge of the President's mood.

Presidential spokesmen did little to dispell the mood of uncertainty when they stopped short of ruling out a possible Nixon resignation.

Resignation demands mounted Tuesday, especially among congressional Republicans in the mushrooming reaction to Nixon's dual, damaging disclosures Monday that he tried two years ago to thwart a major phase of the FBI's Watergate investigation, and that he withheld this information from Congress and his own lawyer.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L.
Warren skirted direct answers to reporters who pressed him repeatedly to say flatly that Nixon would not resign.

Finally, Warren said, "He does not intend to resign."

Rather, the spokesman said, Nixon intends to "see that the business of the people continues . . . as we move through the constitutional process."

By constitutional process, Warren said he meant a Senate impeachment
trial.

Israeli jets attack suspected guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon after raid

By The Associated Press

Israeli planes raided suspected guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon twice
today, and first reports said at least 14
Lebanese villagers were hospitalized.

The attacks were the first into Lebanon since July 23, and apparently were in retaliation for the latest guerrilla
raid on the frontier.

The Israeli command said its jets
made their first raid early in the morning, blasting targets near Hareba Junction, just across the Lebanese border.

A spokesman said the raid lasted five minutes and all planes returned safely.

Witnesses in southern Lebanon said
the second raid came in the afternoon
and lasted two hours.

But the Israeli command said the afternoon attack lasted only several minutes, and again all planes returned safely.

The witnesses said the planes
bombed and strafed the eastern slopes
of Mt. Hermon in the Arkoub region.

The villages of Zaghla and Abu Kamha in the district of Hasbaya were
the main targets of the afternoon attack, the witnesses said.

The two raids came 24 hours after a mortar and artillery duel along the Israeli-Lebanese frontier. Each side
blamed the other for the gunnery
battle, which lasted almost an hour.

Lebanon's Defense Ministry had accused the Israelis of precipitating the Tuesday afternoon battle on the border

by sending halftracks into the village of Majidieh under cover of artillery fire.

The Israeli command said armed infiltrators from Lebanon crossed into Israel and kidnapped four Arab laborers from a border security force. It indicated that Israeli troops then crossed into Lebanon to rescue the workers but succeeded only in seizing six suspects.

The fighting in Lebanon occurred as Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said his government is ready to negotiate with another Arab neighbor, Jordan, either a peace treaty or an interim "no-shooting agreement."

"We want peace with Jordan," Rabin said on Tuesday.

But he told Israel's parliament that the government would not negotiate away any territory it holds before a general election.

In Beirut, the newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour reported that President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has sent an ultimatum to the Libyan premier demanding the ouster of Libyan leader Moammar Kha-dafi.

"Unless Khadafy resigns and is banished from Libya by Aug. 18, Egypt will be compelled to take the necessary measures to eliminate the obstacles for normalizing relations between the two countries," Sadat reportedly threatened.

The report was attributed to Arab diplomatic sources in Beirut.

The paper said the note was sent to Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, who is considered the No. 2 man in Khadafy's 12-man Revolutionary Command Council.

L'Orient-Le Jour said the ultimatum was tantamount to a "threat of direct Egyptian intervention to overthrow Khadafy." It triggered widespread speculation in Beirut that Egypt and Libya were on the verge of a total break.

In another development, the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahran said that Sadat has won the support of Saudi Arabia's King Faisal for his compromise position on the role of the Palestine Liberation Organization in any peace moves.

Egypt and Jordan agreed last month that the PLO would represent all Palestinians living outside Jordan, and Jordan's King Hussein would represent Palestinians living inside his kingdom.

The newspaper also said Faisal would pledge $1 billion in reconstruction aid to Egypt in a joint communique to be issued Wednesday.

Bribe to Connally admitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas lawyer
Jake Jacobsen today pleaded guilty to a charge of bribing his one-time friend
John B. Connally with $10,000.

In return, the Watergate special prosecution force agreed to drop the government's seven-count indictment against Jacobsen in an unrelated savings and loan scandal in San Angelo,
Tex., and to bring no further charges
against Jacobsen concerning matters
already uncovered by the prosecutors.

Jacobsen was indicted last week at the same time Connally was named in a five-count indictment charging bribery, perjury and a conspiracy to obstruct justice. Connally is scheduled to enter his plea Friday and has said he is innocent.

Jacobsen promised prosecutors to testify truthfully at a trial if called as a witness. He is expected to be the Watergate prosecutor's star witness at the anticipated trial of Connally, a former secretary of the Treasury and one-time
governor of Texas.

Jacobsen said, in pleading before
U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr.,
that he had given Connally two $5,000
payments on behalf of his client, Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative.

The money allegedly was given to Connally in return for his help in persuading President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971.

Jacobsen was once a close aide to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

cially wrong for Republicans to be seeking immunity for Nixon.

"The Republicans shouldn't put themselves into the position of defending illegal acts," he told a reporter.

However, in the Senate, Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin said
he was leaning toward support of legislation to grant immunity.

The prospect of an overwhelming
vote for impeachment led House leaders to revise their schedule for the debate and vote, for which they had

Some members suggested running through the whole process in a day, and
others said it could be done in hours,
but Speaker Carl Albert and Chairman
Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., of the Judiciary Committee, are resisting any such drastic pruning of the schedule.

After a meeting between leaders of both parties and Rodino and the ranking Republican member of the Judiciary Committee, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., it was tentatively agreed to try to confine consideration
to the week of Aug. 19.

In anticipation that radio and television will want to cover the House debate, the Rules Committee Tuesday approved a resolution permitting it to be broadcast. The resolution is expected to be approved by the House later this week.

Scope of DNR probe questioned

Wednesday, Aug. 7, 1974

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Menasha-Menasha, Wis.

A-3

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A professor investigating the Natural Resources Department says the limits of his study are subject to study. An aide to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said it may be a study in semantics.

James MacDonald conferred Tuesday with Lucey about a legislator's complaint that MacDonald intends to consider only those grievances which have received news media attention.

W. Jeffrey Smoller, Lucey's press aide, said the governor "reassured Prof. MacDonald that he may go beyond" the instances cited in newspaper articles.

MacDonald, on leave from the University of Wisconsin law school, said it boils down to an interpretation of "go beyond."

"It all turns on the phrase and what it is interpreted to mean," he reasoned. "If 'go beyond' means relate from that incident to general policies, procedures and attitudes, then 'go beyond' is an accurate statement."

Smoller remarked to a newsman: "There seems to be a disagreement on semantics."

"It is my hope that we can work out a statement on which we can all agree," MacDonald said. "I hope we can soon resolve the controversy."

The Assembly Environmental Quality Committee has raised a grievance about what it calls MacDonald's apparent intention of ignoring nonpublished gripes about DNR activities.

The committee chairman has said that, if Lucey's professor doesn't undertake an investigation broad in scope, the committee may have to.

Smoller insisted "there is no intention at all to limit the probe."

If there was any initial reluctance to commit MacDonald to a broad investigation, it may have reflected the fact "that he does not have the staff to do all that," Smoller said.

The starting point of the investigation, Smoller said, should be the newspaper articles in which the department was accused of mismanaging several affairs, from road construction and logging leases to urban pollution and reservoir weeds.

Smoller said the governor's legal adviser is exploring the legal limitations which MacDonald may encounter.

"MacDonald and his panel will reach some conclusions and make some recommendations," Smoller said.

"They may involve authority within the executive branch, the legislature and administration by the DNR. We're not sure," he said.

Smoller capped his explanation with a reminder that Lucey and other Democrats have suggested amending the bureaucratic status of the Natural Resources Board and other citizen policy panels which operate some departmental.

"This governor and previous governors have had very little to do with the operation of the DNR because it is an independent agency," Smoller said.

Lucey recommends the citizen boards, which select department executives, be replaced with a cabinet-type system under which the governor appoints executives, subject to Senate approval.

It would make the departments more directly responsible to chief executives elected by the voters, Lucey argues.

Nelson seeks ban on defoliant use in national forests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson says he is asking Congress to outlaw the controversial herbicide 2,4,5-T in national forests in northern Wisconsin and 22 other states.

The Wisconsin Democrat said his request is in the form of an amendment to an appropriations bill which the Senate was to consider this week.

Wisconsin's Nicolet and Chequamegon national forests are among the 61 national forests listed by Nelson.

A U.S. District Court in Milwaukee is reviewing the state's request that the U.S. Forest Service be prohibited from spraying the defoliant on pine plantations in the two forests.

The service has said the state's challenge, based on arguments that 2,4,5-T has not been guaranteed to be safe for humans and wildlife, has forced a spraying postponement for possibly a year regardless of how the court rules.

"Sound public policy dictates restraining all use of potent and toxic agents, such as 2,4,5-T, until adequate safety tests are conducted," Nelson said.

Also on Nelson's list are the Chippewa and Superior national forests in Minnesota, Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois, and the Ottawa and Huron-Manistee forests in Michigan.

State offers options on loans to veterans

MONROE, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin soon will become the first state in the nation to offer two kinds of mortgage loans to veterans, Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber said Tuesday.

Schreiber said the new program, under which veterans may choose either a first or a second mortgage, will save veterans substantial mortgage payments and ensure that mortgage money will be available for them.

"This is very much in keeping with Wisconsin's long traditions of concern for those who have served their country," Schreiber said.

Double standard created on financial disclosures

By LISA C. BERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The State Elections Board has created a double standard for financial disclosure statements to be filed by state and federal candidates.

Nonresidents donating funds to Wisconsin candidacies must file complete statements.

Reports for federal office candidates, however, need only be duplicates of the disclosure forms required under federal rules.

The board vice chairman, David Adamany, and two other board members indicated they had been approached by congressmen concerning the modified reporting provision for federal candidates.

"If it's important enough to report an $11 contribution for governor, it's important enough for senator," Adamany said, voting against the provision.

"I don't appreciate being lobbied by congressmen," he said.

The reporting policy is designed to avoid circumvention of state financial disclosure rules.

Candidates theoretically could have formed out-of-state organizations to finance elections and, because of ambiguity in the law, have had to file with the state.

Board members including J. Curtis McKay and Joanne Wells joined Adamany in remarks about being approached by congressmen.

McKay said he favored the federal reporting standards for congressional candidates because it would be too much work to file both state and federal statements.

"No congressman is going to be pushed over for $100," he said.

Rep. Kenneth Merkell, R-Brookfield, also voting against the provision, said he had not been contacted by congressmen.

"I don't feel sorry for these dudes at all. I say we ought to nail their hides to the barn door wall and make them report," Merkell said.

The board was created this year to oversee new rules under which candidates and their supporters must disclose the source of contributions.

The rules also limit campaign spending.

The board also decided to allow special-interest groups and political parties to donate their full allowable percentage of a candidate's total spending limit all at once, rather than divide the limit between primary and general elections.

The provision would allow candidates to receive all their money from political parties, an advantage for Republicans, or the bulk of it from special interest groups, an advantage for Democrats.

Adamany, who voted against the rule, said that "by applying the 65 per cent rule, a political candidate could be supported completely by a political party or interest group."

Adamany said the legislature had intended that, in either the primary or the general election, candidates should at least be partially supported by individual contributions.

McKay, former GOP legislator, countered that contributors should be allowed to donate the full amount and let voters decide at the polls whether candidate finances are above suspicion.

The board also decided it will defend as constitutional a law providing that lawmakers who vote for a pay raise for an elective office may later hold the office if they serve at the lower pay.

The board is being sued by Timothy Provis of Eau Claire for allegedly illegally certifying five candidates for executive offices in the fall primaries.

The five are state Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, Sen. Douglas La Follette, D-Kenosha, Rep. Anthony Earl, D-Wausau, Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, and Rep. John Alberts, R-Oconomowoc.

They should not be allowed to run for higher offices because the salary law is unconstitutional, Provis contends.

GOP got most money from industrial group

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A political action fund whose treasurer is executive vice president of the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association reports more donations for Republicans than Democrats.

In statements filed with the state Elections Board, the Concerned Business and Industry Political Action Fund reported $2,812 contributed to Republicans and $580 to Democrats.

Paul E. Hassett, former assistant to GOP Gov. Warren P. Knowles and now with the manufacturers' group, is secretary and treasurer of the fund.

When registering it with the state, he described its purpose as assisting "on a nonpartisan basis (candidates) who have demonstrated interest in good government and the private enterprise system."

The fund, in a report of its activities from Jan. 2 to July 28, said it contributed to seven Democrats and 23 Republicans who are running for the state legislature in this year's elections.

It listed contributions of $21,158, none of them exceeding $200.

An association publication said more than 20 companies in Wisconsin are promoting the fund among their management personnel.

Some corporations sent checks to the fund, the publication said, but the gifts were returned "with the notation that only personal checks can be accepted."

Corporations and associations are allowed to establish political funds under Wisconsin's new campaign finance law.

But the firm or group may solicit from individuals only and cannot donate money of its own.

COPE donated $5,000 to Lucey

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A $5,000 contribution to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's re-election campaign was reported Tuesday by the AFL-CIO's Political Education Committee.

The report covering contributions from March 25 to July 28 was filed with the State Elections Board.

It listed $6,650 in contributions to political candidates among $30,889 in expenses which included overhead and voter registration drives.

Other contributions reported by the committee were $800 to state Rep. Raymond Tobiasz, D-Milwaukee, for his state Senate campaign; $800 to Kenneth S. Harvey of Superior, who is running in the Democratic primary for the seat held by state Sen. Daniel Theno, R-Ashland, and $50 to the re-election campaign of state Sen. Dale McKenna, D-Jefferson.

A report by the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE), a separate group involved with federal rather than state candidates, showed a $48 expense for "impeach Nixon" bumper stickers.

The Political Education Committee's balance, which stood at $97,000 in March, grew to $135,900 in July through fund raisers, interest on investments and a 2 cent per union member monthly checkoff from about 1,000 AFL-CIO locals, the report said.

COPE's balance grew from $20,561 to $20,753 due to interest, its report said.

Picture of a besieged President

Over the weekend, President Nixon was holed up at Camp David, surrounded by members of his family and his closest White House entourage, planning strategy for his Watergate defense. The picture of the President of the United States under siege, not from a foreign enemy but from his fellow Americans, is unwholesome indeed.

However, from the time of Mr. Nixon's entrance into the public eye and all that political participation means, he has assumed a stance of standing virtually alone against the massed forces of ignorance and evil. In his congressional campaign against Helen Gahagan Douglas, it was really communism and everything that it stood for which he thought to be his opponent. The famous Checkers speech pictured Mr. Nixon as threatened by insidious but unnamed outside forces. And when he lost the race for governor of California, it was the press he inferred had caused it all.

The White enemies list was not a misnomer. President Nixon and those who clustered around him really believed those so listed had only the most nefarious motives. The tape conversations, even the ones which the President under pressure has released, show a man obsessed with hushing things up so anxious was he to protect himself. Invariably he and his aides suspected only evil and attack from Democrats, the news media, liberal Republicans and their own bureaucrats who hinted the slightest deviation from the Nixon line.

Whether the real reason for the ill-fated break-in at Democratic national headquarters was to get the goods on political opponents or to hush up distasteful financial deals by Mr. Nixon, it was the work of obsessed, even emotionally disturbed people. One must begin to wonder whether Richard Nixon is indeed ill, so unnatural his paranoia seems to be.

The C.I.A.'s role in Greece

For years it has been rumored that the United States Central Intelligence Agency had extensive ties with the military junta in Greece. Unfortunately so far there are only reports by people who do not wish to be identified. More accurate information should be developed.

Reporter David Binder of the New York Times writes that "until the last few weeks of the Athens military junta, according to high American officials and to Greek sources, American operatives remained quite close to the men in power in Greece." Binder's sources also claimed that C.I.A. money went to George Papadopoulos, the colonel who led the 1967 coup. Binder gives the names of American C.I.A. agents supposed to have been in close touch with the junta and he also relates past C.I.A. activities in Greek affairs. He writes that the American Ambassador to Greece, Henry Tasca, was incensed about a party given by a departing C.I.A. official since the top members of the junta were there.

In quite a few nations, especially with emerging liberal front or so-called peoples' organizations, the C.I.A. has often become a scapegoat for the abuses and excesses of authoritarian regimes. Undoubtedly it is important for C.I.A. officials to be in close contact with governments in power, however tyrannical they may be.

But aiding and abetting such regimes or "tilting" toward one or another political organization would certainly appear to be outside of the C.I.A.'s authority. And it should be noted that United States intelligence in recent years has not appeared to be very effective. However close the C.I.A. was to the Greek military junta, it failed to notice that the junta was on its way out. In fact, identifying with a regime is the quickest way to become irrelevant as far as sound intelligence is concerned.

Brazil's Indian history

The recent history of the Bororos Indian tribe of Brazil is a typical example of what has happened to such so-called primitive peoples in their confrontations with the world of the Western whites.

The Bororos live far inland in Brazil and were a hundred years ago about 6,000 strong, a tribe still largely composed of fishermen and hunters with a growing agriculture bent. Then came the white man. Other tribes were pushed back to the land of the Bororos, who fought other Indians. The white man's diseases — measles, chicken pox, syphilis — collected their toll. So did alcohol. Brazil's aggressive white pioneers, like those of the pioneer United States, seized lands, used force and legal technicalities, violence and stockades, to send the Bororos to flight. The forests were cut, even the jungle streams polluted. Three years ago almost 80 per cent of the remaining Bororos had tuberculosis and there are only 400 of them left.

But thanks largely to a Roman Catholic mission they seem now to have hope for the future. Chief Lourenco explained that "the trouble is we don't know how to defend ourselves yet. White Brazilians don't kill Bororos anymore but they are destroying us with their vices — alcohol, cigarettes, diversions." But the chief believes that now his people can learn the ways of white civilization little by little without too much harm.

In all of Brazil it is estimated that there were 2 to 3 million Indians when the Portuguese arrived in the 16th Century. Now anthropologists put the number still in existence between 100,000 and 200,000. Medical care has improved and publicity seems to have curbed government pressure that included violence. The National Indian Foundation is pledged to defend Indian territory and culture and even some lands may be regained.

The Bororos are showing new confidence. Four years ago the women apparently took a secret plant that prevents conception. Today babies are born once again among the Bororos.

Potomac fever

The Smithsonian Institution is seeking unusual clothing for an exhibit. However, it can't accept Nixon's "emperor's clothes."

The Democrats are worried they'll have a lopsided majority after elections. It's like adding another concubine to the harem.

The government's economic advisers are discouraged over inflation. And that's just in the White House.

Senator Javits said the world economy would improve if Nixon stepped down. That's like trying to straighten out the leaning tower of Pisa.

Republicans might cross over this year

MADISON — The candidate lineup for the statewide primary elections that will produce the nominees of the parties in September suggests a reversal of the familiar "cross-over" practice.

For many years, it had been an accepted fact of political life in Wisconsin that the weak Democrats, rarely having contests for major nominations in primary elections on their own ballot, would choose the Republican ballot on primary election day. That was one of the major reasons why the conservatives or "Stalwarts" among the Republicans devised the convention endorsement rule decades ago.

Sometimes, indeed, the "cross-over" habit of Democrats who found little to arouse them on their own ballot worked to the advantage of the Republican regulars. The late Sen. Joe McCarthy, for example, always acknowledged that in his successful 1946 campaign for his first Republican nomination for senator he was strategically assisted to his narrow triumph because many Democrats were lured to his campaign, although perhaps for reasons of ethnic association rather than ideological preference.

But the state has lately had a partisan realignment of greater impact than any similar movement since the emergence of the LaFollette progressives at the turn of the century.

The Democratic party is now the majority party of the state according to any realistic test. The Democratic party is now the vehicle for ambitious young people planning a serious political career, even as a quarter of a century ago the Republicans were attracting the ambitious young often without regard to ideological conformity.

There are no contests of significance for statewide Republican nominations. A precise count has not been made, but it is evident to the naked eye that there are fewer competitive situations for legislative and other local nominations than at any time three decades or more.

Conversely, Democrats have a lively and interesting contest for the nomination to the major office of attorney general, more competitive lineups for the legislature and other places than within the memory of the senior party leaders and, as a result, are generating the publicity that will obscure the less intensive pre-primary activity of the uncontested Republican aspirants.

Out of such situations comes the "cross-over" phenomenon. The average voter is attracted by competitive situations. A typical Republican, having no pressing reason to "stay home," may choose the Democratic ballot on primary election day, if only to make his vote count. The Republican "cross-over" is not altogether unique. It has been visible, for example in the Wisconsin presidential primaries when George Wallace was listed and there was no urgent competition in the Republican column. Some student of Wisconsin affairs feel that the late John F. Kennedy benefited from Republican cross-overs in 1960 and that he had included that factor in his strategic calculations.

The convinced partisan of whatever tag tends to decry such cross-over voting as contrary to the spirit of the political nomination process. Democrats should nominate Democrats, as the state Democratic committee has said in suggesting a "closed" presidential primary law for the state. The person who regards himself as a Republican and has strong ideological convictions generally agrees.

Yet such convictions, earnest as they usually are, run counter to the times. The polls have repeatedly shown that fewer persons than ever before now regard themselves as Republicans. There are more self-identified Democrats, but the major change in the American electorate is the eschewing of partisan loyalty by average persons. The big "party" today embraces the independents, the increasing millions of men and women who eschew the party label.

Congress incapable of being leader

WASHINGTON — Despite talk about a "legislative dictatorship," there is really very little likelihood that Congress will stay at the center of the national stage for more than a year or two after impeachment. If you look around the world, or skim back through the history books, legislative bodies are simply not capable of effective national leadership in times of turmoil.

Prior to Watergate, a number of leading U.S. political analysts, among them Samuel Lubell and Walter Dean Burnham, speculated that the U.S. was entering an era in which "president-managers" would be at odds with Congresses. On one hand, the chief executives would represent the counter-revolutionary white middle-class constituency, while Congress would represent the pressure groups and institutionalized interests of the sixties. In terms of power, scholars generally gave the advantage to the executive branch.

Difficult job for Gerald Ford

If Gerald Ford becomes President, being a creature of Congress and a fairly passive man by nature, he may try to work closely with the legislative branch. But my guess is that this will be difficult: First, because of the built-in conflict mentioned above; second, because of abnormal left-liberal majorities likely to be produced in November's elections.

Some political analysts — Richard Scammon is one — argue that the new Democratic congressmen elected in 1974 will be moderates. I disagree. Checking the marginal districts across the country, an extraordinary ratio of the Democratic candidates are professors, consumer activists, consultants and others bound to push the House farther in a new politics direction. Michael Barone, co-author of the "Almanac of American Politics," a district-by-district Congressional guide, says "Virtually all of the new Democrats will win 80s or 90s from both ADA and COPE . . . In House races, I expect Democrats to get half their gains in the Midwest and another quarter in the West, mostly in California . . . In these areas, Democratic gains there will strengthen the ADA-ish segment of the party."

While the new Congress will probably be a bit short of veto-proof, it ought to be a real ideological whirling dervish. Thus, despite the new efforts of the liberals (and the liberal media) to picture Congress as the hallowed halls of decent, Constitutional government, I expect that by 1975 or 1976, most conservatives and many moderates will be angry at Congress. This could resurrect the Burnham-Lubell thesis of hostile executive-congressional constituencies, with the forces of the right rallied around the executive, and the forces of the left rallied around Congress.

Major upheaval if inflation continues
The cleavage seems probable enough; but intensity and bitterness of the polarization is still up in the air. If Congress becomes a circus, babbling leftist slogans while inflation ravages the middle classes, the scene could be set for a major upheaval.

Bear in mind that no major industrialized country today allows itself — or has ever long allowed itself — to be run by a legislature, especially a run-amok body that has just overthrown a chief of state. Over the last three centuries, most European nations have toppled their thrones at least once: I refer to the great national traumas of England's execution of Charles I.

Geographic briefs

The planet Jupiter's most dominant feature, the Great Red Spot, is a huge, baleful eye in the cloud tops, large enough to hold three earths. Some scientists believe it may be developing basic forms of life on the distant planet.

The state of Vermont got its name from French explorers, who first saw the region in 1609 and called it Verd-Mont (Green Mountain), National Geographic says.

France's beheading of Louis XVI, Germany's post-World War One abolition of the Hohenzollern monarchy, Russia's Revolutionary execution of Czar Nicholas and Spain's 1931 exile of King Alfonso XIII.

In each instance, legislatures prominent in the overthrow tried to fill the vacuum of executive leadership, and in each instance, they failed. England's Rump Parliament yielded to Oliver Cromwell, France's National Assembly to Napoleon Bonaparte, Russia's Duma to Nicolai Lenin, Germany's Weimar Republic Reichstag to Adolf Hitler and Spain's fledgling Cortes to General Franco.

On the other hand, perhaps a new U.S. chief executive will be able to re-assume effective White House power and return Congress to its proper secondary role. But whatever happens, there is very little chance that Congress will run the country for long.

Looking back

Mr. Castony, of Neenah, unusual man

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Post, Aug. 6, 1874.

There is a remarkable man living in Neenah by the name of Charles Castony, a native of France who is 97 years of age, and his wife is 95.

They have been married 75 years, have had several children, the youngest of which is 51 years old. The gentleman and his lady retain their memory remarkably well.

Mr. Castony was a soldier under Napoleon I. He was in the Russian War, also in the Battle of Waterloo. He said he shed tears at the downfall of his brave commander.

He seems to be hale and hearty, his eyesight is good, as he has never worn spectacles in his life, and neither has his wife. He walked a mile out and back Sunday last, just for recreation, he said.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Aug. 3, 1949.

Walter Van Munn was elected commander of the Holy Name Post, Catholic War Veterans, Kimberly. He succeeded Joseph Van Daalwyk.

Mike Hammond, Appleton, was elected president of the American Legion's Boys Forum of National Government in Washington, D.C. Hammond won on the mythical National party slate.

Norbert G. Vanevenhoven, formerly of Kaukauna, was named officially to the position of postmaster of Kimberly. He had been acting postmaster for the previous two years and he was approved for the job by the United States Senate Monday.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Aug. 5, 1964.

Contestants in an exciting blueberry pie eating contest were neighborhood friends Jay Kamys, the winner, Patrick, Jerry, Steve, Scott and Mike Dercks, in whose Nicholas Street backyard the competition was held, Charlie, Mike and Billy Wirth, Charles Rosenberg, John Lee and Carl Roehl.

Ronald Jens was elected president of the August Plamann family when 102 members held their reunion in Plamann Park. Other officers elected were Walter Stolzman, vice president; Mrs. Dennis Plamann, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Clyde Weyenberg, historian; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Plamann, entertainment chairman.

Miss Bonnie Steckbar was chairman of the ice cream social being held that evening in City Park by the Senior High Methodist Youth Fellowship.
